Governor Wires Coolidge to Have Flight's End Here

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—Gov. Richardson today dispatched a telegram to President Coolidge asking that the latter inquire into the facts surrounding the decision of the Army Air Service to have the 'round-the-world flight end at Seattle instead of at Clover Field, Santa Monica, the official starting point and the point officially designated, up to Saturday, as the place where the epochal undertaking should be brought to its successful conclusion.

In his telegram the Governor voiced the feeling of the people of California that the decision of Gen. Patrick is not in accord with the official program of the flight and that no around-the-earth flight can be complete until the planes descend at the point where they took off. The Governor referred to the common understanding that delays due to weather, repairs, etc., and other waits during the flight shall be deducted from the total flying time so that the nineteen days lost between Clover Field and Seattle will not actually cut any figure, as Gen. Patrick appears to have assumed.

The decision of the chief of the Army Air Service was based upon the assumption that, by ending the flight at Seattle, those nineteen days would be cut off from the time of the flight, whereas the original program contemplated the computation of actual flying time only so that the time lost on the first leg would not be considered in any event. On such a basis the time from Clover Field to Clover Field is estimated probably to be actually slightly less than from Seattle to Seattle.

The telegram of the Governor to the President follows:

SAN FRANCISCO,
July 27.

Hon. Calvin Coolidge,
President of the United States,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

The people of California took great pride in the selection of Clover Field, Santa Monica, as the official starting point of the around-the-world flight of Army aviators and keen disappointment is felt over the reported decision of Air Service officials to have flight end at Seattle. California feels, with some justice, that flight can only end at official starting point to be complete. I am advised that delays en route will be deducted from flying time so that time lost from Clover Field to Seattle will not figure in flight record. I do not view this situation as a sectional controversy as to which State or community shall have the honor of welcoming our splendid flyers at the end of their journey, but regard it purely in the light of the flight program as originally laid down. Under the circumstances I feel justified in calling this matter directly to your attention and suggesting that you make inquiry into the facts and if results of your investigation warrant that decision be reconsidered.

[Signed] FRIEND W. RICHARDSON,
Governor of California.

WAVE OF PROTEST MEETS PATRICK'S ORDER

A wave of protest against the action of Gen. M. M. Patrick, chief of the Air Service, in designating Seattle instead of Clover Field, Santa Monica, as the official finish of the around-the-world flight swept over Los Angeles yesterday, and indications were that the indignation felt would crystalize into concentrated action today.

From city officials, civic leaders, prominent business men, the heads of clubs and many other organizations came a stream of protest against Gen. Patrick's decision.

Why, when Los Angeles was the actual starting point of the flight, should she be robbed of the glory of the finish? Was not the flight made to Los Angeles made planes, and did not 100,000 Southern California people gather to give the aviators the greatest send-off ever accorded airmen? How can a circle be complete when the ends don't meet? Can the Air Service claim to have circumnavigated the globe if the airmen don't finish where they started?

Those were the questions most frequently asked as the protests grew in number. In the meantime, officials of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce have wired President Coolidge, Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur protesting against the action of the Air Service chief and asking that the decision be reconsidered.

CONFERENCE LIKELY

Plans for further action will probably result in a conference of Chamber of Commerce officials today, R. W. Pridham, vice-president of the chamber said last night. William Lacy, president, has announced he is in "for a fight to a finish" on the question.

"It's a deep injustice to Los Angeles, and one that the citizens are not going to stand for without expressing their disapproval," declared Frank Wiggins, secretary of

SENATOR LODGE IS SERIOUSLY ILL IN EASTERN HOSPITAL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) July 27.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is seriously ill in a hospital here, it became known tonight, following an emergency operation performed late today.

Stricken early this morning in his home at East Point, Nahant, the senior Senator from Massachusetts, now in his seventy-fourth year, was removed here to the hospital. The operation was performed at 4:30 in the afternoon. His illness is a recurrence of a bladder ailment of long standing, physicians stated.

Tonight Senator Lodge had regained consciousness, but his condition was regarded as serious. In a statement his physician said:

"It is a serious situation. I believe Senator Lodge will be all right, but nothing much can be told for another twenty-four to forty-eight hours."

Continually in touch with the condition of the patient, one of his physicians said tonight "everything is satisfactory."

The recovery of the senior Senator, physicians said, will depend in large measure on his physical condition, which, it was stated, was good, considering his advanced years. A second operation will be necessary, his physician said, adding that this was not unusual in cases of this kind.

It was said that Senator Lodge would be unable to return to Washington until fall at the earliest, in view of his present condition. Although suffering great pain, he was not depressed in spirit when he entered the hospital and doctors and nurses at once prepared him for the operating table.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., accompanied his father to the hospital on the automobile trip from Nahant to the hospital and remained during the operation and afterward.

Man Struck by Avalanche Dies From Injuries

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

TACOMA (Wash.) July 27.—Sidney W. Cole, 22 years of age, of Sacramento, died in a local hospital last night from the effects of injuries suffered yesterday when he was struck by an avalanche of rocks and ice on Mt. Rainier.

Cole was a member of a party of tourists descending from the summit of the mountain. Hans Fuhrer, veteran Swiss guide, was in charge of the party and gave warning of the avalanche, which was started by a slight earthquake felt throughout this vicinity. Other members of the party reached the shelter of an overhanging ledge, but Cole was struck by a boulder.

...Chicago is now a seething grain ...pit, as the Chicago board. For... ...eigners, sensing a grain shortage, ...are coming into the American ...market with heavy orders. The ...Russian wheat market is said to ...be a failure and the Canadian crop ...is admittedly very short. Wheat ...jumped 6 cents a bushel Saturday from its lowest point and closed with net advances of 2 1-2 to 4 1-2 cents. May delivery wheat went above $1.43. Hogs advanced to practically a $10 level. Two weeks ago they were selling at $7.50 and the prediction was made then that they would go to $10 by October.

The South is getting a liberal dip into prosperity with cotton rising approximately $18 a bale during the past week. Diversified farming in the South also lets the farmers there in on the advance in meat products and corn. They also will get more for cane syrup and other southern food products.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 27.—The first Ku Klux Klan formed in Constantinople was disbanded today in strange circumstances. It all started in Maxim's on the night of the Fourth of July. The place was full of American merchant sailors and American mining engineers, coming and going to Russia, and American adventurers from every corner of the Near East.

The jovial American negro proprietor, Dick Thomas, who fled from Russia and his horse training job there when the revolution broke out, was setting up drinks on the house time and again.

A dense hush fell on the noisy, singing, cursing assemblage as a beautiful young American girl entered with a handsome Egyptian and two ugly Lascar sailors.

GIRL ABOARD SHIP

"That's her," whispered the habitues of Maxim's, "and two of her guards."

It is well known in the American colony in Constantinople that Prince Mehmed Ali of Egypt, cousin of King Fuad, had recently arrived in the former Kaiser's yacht Meteor, on which the latter had signed his declaration of war, and that Prince Ali had Pearl Shepperd, an American chorus girl, aboard as a semiprisoner.

As the wild night wore on the American girl threw deeply appealing glances at her compatriots. But Prince Ali threatened her every time he caught her, and finally dragged her away with fourteen Lascars covering the retreat in the rear. He pushed her into a huge limousine, yelling to the chauffeur to drive like mad for the Galata docks. The Lascars followed in another big car.

The first Ku Klux Klan in the Near East was organized just as the sun crept up behind the Bosphorus that morning, the 5th inst.

"I swear to be faithful to this Ku Klux Klan and rescue the

WOMAN IN GOVERNOR RACE GAINS

Feminine Candidate May be in Texas Nomination Run-Off Primary

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DALLAS (Tex.) July 27.—Possibility of a woman entering the run-off primary for the Democratic nomination for Governor loomed tonight when Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Temple, Tex., first gubernatorial woman candidate in the history of Texas politics, nosed out Lynch Davidson of Houston for second place. Judge Felix Robertson of Dallas continued to pile up a lead for first place.

The count for the three leaders announced by the Texas election bureau at 11 p.m. was: Robertson, 124,152; Ferguson, 94,737, and Davidson, 94,725.

United States Senator Morris Shephard, seeking re-election, had a majority of 73,128 over Fred W. Davis of Austin, the total vote tabulated giving Shephard 117,141 and Davis, 44,013. John F. Maddox, the third Senatorial candidate, had received 20,368.

Returns still were meager in the Congressional race, but the bureau said incumbents probably all had been renominated.

MULFORD OF HOLLYWOOD DIES IN RACE

Auto Driver is Fatally Injured in Main Event at San Jose

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN JOSE, July 27.—A. L. Mulford of Hollywood, automobile race driver, was injured fatally when his car crashed through the fence on the Alum Rock Avenue Speedway here this afternoon, rolled into the ditch and burst into flames. Mulford, who was thrown clear of the car, was picked up unconscious and rushed to the San Jose Hospital, where he died an hour later.

The crash occurred during the third lap of the feature event of the day, the forty-lap automobile race. Mulford was fighting to retain his place in front of five other cars. His car appeared to hover erratically for a few seconds along the upper edge of the track as he entered the north turn, then crashed through the fence.

The automobile Mulford was driving was owned by DeWitt J. Brady of Culver City. Mulford was taking the place of Lieut. N. B. Slater, the regular driver, who was unable to drive the car in today's races, it was reported, because of injuries he received in a crash on the San Luis Obispo track recently.

EVERETT (Wash.) July 27.—Trapped under a wrecked automobile which caught fire, Miss Doris Chambers, 20 years of age, of Seattle, who was driving the machine, was burned to death early this morning and her companion, Norman Garmie, also of Seattle, was so badly burned that he died five hours later in a hospital here.

BUILDER, WIFE, SON AND PILOT CRASH TO EARTH IN FIRST PUBLIC FLIGHT

In full sight of a horrified crowd of several thousands four persons were dashed to death yesterday in the fall of an airplane about a half mile from the Rogers Airport at Western avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. The dead are the inventor and designer of the plane, Osmond T. Belcher, 31 years of age, 5715 Berendo street; his wife and 7-year-old son, Osmond T. Belcher, Jr., and B. F. Creeth, 29, of Beverly Hills, pilot of the craft.

In the crowd which witnessed the crash to earth were Creeth's mother, with whom the pilot lived, and several relatives of the Belcher family.

The plane, known as the Belcher Air Liner California, was on its first public exhibition trip. It was christened yesterday with elaborate ceremonies, including the breaking of a bottle of champagne over the fuselage by Mrs. Belcher, and had been up barely five minutes when it plunged to earth from a distance of 200 feet. Failure of the ailerons was believed to have caused the fall. It was said these did not work well on trial trips, but the trouble was believed to have been remedied.

The ailerons are movable sections of the wing surface located on the rear edge of the two extremities of the upper wing. These movable sections, which operate in opposite directions in the horizontal plane, make possible the "banking" to either right or left. When the right aileron is elevated above the surface of the wing, the left aileron is depressed a corresponding distance below. They are important factors in control.

Pilot Creeth was an experienced flyer attached to the Rogers Airport staff and was loaned to Belcher for the trip. The plane was known as Model B. T. 1 of the Belcher Aerial Manufacturing Company, and was built in Los Angeles. The wings were made of a patented fabric controlled by this company, and in all there were twenty-six patented features embodied in the new plane, all invented by Belcher or controlled by his company. The test flight had been widely advertised.

Following the christening ceremonies, and amid the cheers of the crowd, the plane took off. When it reached a height of about 200 feet, the ailerons on each wing were seen to flutter and the ship was evidently in difficulty. Pilot Creeth, those who were watching with field glasses saw, seemed to be making desperate efforts to keep the plane on an even keel, but she canted slowly to one side and then began to fall.

The plane struck on one side and was reduced to splinters and kindling. All four of the occupants were crushed and must have died instantly.

TELLS OF CRASH

G. G. Budwig, president of the Professional Pilots' Association, an eye-witness of the crash, gives the following account:

"Creeth took off from the Rogers Airport and made a complete circle of the field at between 100 and 150 feet. As he started to climb on his second circle both ailerons began to flutter and a moment later the right aileron jammed up and the left aileron jammed down. The ship rocked violently and banked to the left just before it dived for the ground.

"The cause of the accident was defective ailerons.

"So great was the force of impact when the plane struck the ground that the bodies were hurled clear of the splintered wreckage. None was within fifteen feet of the broken plane. Creeth was killed instantly.

"No fault may attach to the

CRIME URGE HELD GUIDING FORCE OF LEOPOLD AND LOEB

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 27.—Richard Loeb was the "master mind;" Nathan Leopold, Jr., was the mental slave.

The psychiatric report, based on examinations of the two slayers of Robert Franks by Dr. Carl M. Bowman of Boston and Dr. H. S. Hulbert of Oak Park, alienists for the defense, was made public today.

From early youth the two have been criminals the report shows.

Petty thefts led to more important burglaries, to setting houses on fire. Then it led to death plots.

And always it was Loeb who led and Leopold who gloried in being the follower.

There was no sentimentality in their search for the supreme adventure of killing a fellow-human being. Often, the thought entered into the mind of Loeb of killing Leopold, and Leopold believed that some day he might kill Loeb.

But, if either one did that, half the thrill of the thing would be missing. There would be no one to share it, and there was no great glory in killing if no one else knew, if there was no one else to admire.

THE GREAT IDEA

When the combined crime of kidnaping and murder came to them last fall, the first plan was to kill a mutual friend, Richard Ruben, but the boy's father might not come across with a large enough ransom, they thought, so they abandoned the plan.

They thought of Tommy Loeb, Richard Loeb's brother. They talked of making their own fathers the victims of the plot which should satisfy this torturing craving for some one to kill. But, no, this was so close to home as to make the full unravelling of the plot unfeasible. Again it was not sentiment, but practically, that moved them.

First in the list of the things that moved these two to kill was the pleasure to be gained from it. All other things were secondary. Even the notoriety was secondary, though the added thrill of seeing the details of their killing, of seeing the lesser minds running about seeking a solution in vain, and knowing all the time that they alone held the key to the mystery, was a mighty urge. Lastly, there was the money.

NO SELECTION YET

It was last fall when the idea of killing a boy first came to them, though they had not yet selected the Franks boy.

The two had gone to Ann Arbor, armed with burglars tools, and had entered and robbed Loeb's fraternity house. It was just one of

BABE SURVIVES CAR PLUNGE

Runaway Auto Carries Infant Over Cliff Into Pit Fifty Feet Below; Mother Tries Death Leap

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MONTEREY, July 27.—Seeing her baby plunge over a fifty-foot cliff in a runaway automobile, Mrs. U. L. Holmes of San Jose tried to throw herself to her death after the child at Point Lobos this afternoon.

Mrs. Holmes leaped on the running board and struggled to put on the brakes. A foot from the edge of the cliff she was swept off the car by a bough of a cypress. The car plunged over.

SAVED BY STUDENT

Almost insane from terror and grief the mother tried to throw herself from the cliff, but was caught and held by Tom Roberts, Pomona College student, who ran to her assistance. She fought desperately with Roberts, seeking to kill herself on the rocks, where she supposed her baby had been dashed to its death.

In the meantime the father and other men in the vicinity ran to the foot of the cliff, found the wrecked car and rescued the baby, crying in the tonneau of the wrecked machine, but only scratched and bruised.

FAMILY PICNIC PARTY

Mrs. Holmes and her husband, a San Jose hardware man, were picnicking at the top of the bluffs. As they went a few feet away to prepare their lunch, they left their baby girl, 2 years of age, asleep in the car.

The brakes slipped. Mrs. Holmes turned around just in time to see the heavy machine quickly pick up speed and head for the brink of the precipice.

Screaming in fright, her only thought for her baby that was sleeping as the car neared the edge,

Efficient Methods Bring Success on Big Berry Farm

An Old-Time R...

WHEN you have lived in a region for fifty-nine years and farmed on one piece of land for forty-seven years of that time you're liable to become rather attached to a place and not want to leave. That, at least, is the way W. D. Roberts, proprietor of Fairview Jersey Farm in Round Valley and a pioneer of the Owens River Valley section, says he felt about it when he was approached by representatives of the City of Los Angeles seeking to "buy him out" in connection with the municipality's water development first, also, it, indeed, not the first, encroached in the West, Mr. Roberts's claims in the latter respect not having been disputed, so far as he knows. The old milk house, also of tufa rock, dates back farther than the silo, being one of the oldest structures standing in Owens Valley. Its second story once served as an inn for early-day travelers. The present attractive bungalow home occupies the site of the original ranch house, which was destroyed five or six years ago.

DAVIS WILL NOT GET UNION VOTE

Gompers is Leading Way in Swing to La Follette

Defection of A. F. of L. Tough Blow to Democrats

Radical Injunction Stand is Federation Hope

BY DONALD EWING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Organized labor, which in the past national elections always has placed the strength of its 5,000,000 votes chiefly in Democratic lines, is about to desert the Davis-Bryan ticket and, with President Samuel Gompers leading the way, jump to La Follette.

Final decision will be made next Friday in Atlantic City, N. J., when the American Federation of Labor executive council meets. In this meeting much will depend on the attitude of Gompers. But those close to the aged leader say his mind is made up; that he cannot support Davis or Coolidge and that the only question is how far to go in approving La Follette.

A switch of organized labor's support to La Follette will mean nothing to Coolidge, for the Republicans never count on labor votes. But, to Davis it will mean much, particularly in the industrial sections east of the Mississippi. In such important States as Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, where victory counts so much in the electoral college, he would be immeasurably weakened, though La Follette probably would not gain sufficient strength to outstrip Coolidge.

The executive council is not expected to come out with a formal statement holding up La Follette as a panacea for all labor ills, though some of its members will advocate that extreme. Gompers, however, is strongly opposed to labor permanently affiliating itself with any candidate or party. His plan is expected to be to issue a statement denouncing Davis and Coolidge and declaring that La Follette, while not perfect, comes closer to general agreement with labor's principles than any other candidate.

GOOD AS INDORSEMENT

This, in effect, would be just as good for La Follette as a blanket indorsement. Even if the Senator's name were not mentioned the purpose would be served, for denunciation of Davis would be ample to swing organized labor from him. Naturally it would turn to La Follette.

Gompers for weeks has been ill in New York, spending part of the time in a hospital. Lately he has been gathering his strength for the Atlantic City meeting, in the meantime holding conferences with his chieftains in his bedroom.

There he has received envoys from the La Follette camp and gone over with them in detail the stand of La Follette on every question labor is interested in. At the same time, envoys from the American Federation of Labor have frequent conferences with the Senator here.

None will speak officially, but all are satisfied that while there will be considerable fighting in the meeting over the form of indorsement, the final result will be unmistakable recommendations to the workers that they cannot support a Democrat like Davis and, since they would not support Coolidge and Dawes, anyhow, they should swing to La Follette.

GOMPERS TO HOLD REINS

Gompers, however, is not likely to let his council run away with a blanket approval of everything La Follette, or with indorsement of any new party the Wisconsin Senator plans to form if he is fairly successful in his November drive. There are many reasons for this.

First is the unalterable opposition of Gompers to having organized labor definitely attached to any party—even a labor party—because political parties must have many principles in which labor has no interest. Labor should always be nonpolitical, he feels, and his position was made clear in a recent editorial in the American Federationist, signed by him.

"Principles for which labor contends," he said, "cannot be made the private property of any political party. They are neither Republican nor Democratic, neither Socialist nor Populist. Not any more than they are Baptist or Presbyterian."

And then:

"Labor is interested in the success of measures, not in the fortunes of a party."

And, he ends this way:

"American labor in the 1924 campaign will be partisan in principles. It will fight to the finish against every candidate who is opposed to those principles; it will fight to the last for every candidate who is for them. And labor is going to win tremendous victories this year."

The editorial urges labor to beware "third" parties on the ground that they divide the progressive vote, strengthen reactionaries and bring only "one foot forward, two feet backward kind of fog in the well of advancement."

LaFollette, however, technically is not a third party and it is as an advocate of certain principles that he could be supported without taking back any of this editorial.

Another reason why Gompers would not be willing to permit the American Federation of Labor permanently to ally itself with LaFollette is that he and LaFollette have some decided fundamental differences. Gompers opposes socialism, LaFollette tolerates many forms of it, though not actually advancing such theories. He has the support of the Socialist party, however. LaFollette would do a lot of jimmying with the Constitution; Gompers thinks its pretty good as a whole. LaFollette would tear down corporations; Gompers favors unit industries.

But both Republicans and Democrats rejected the platform plank which Gompers considers as standing for the greatest labor principle—the plank that would recommend doing away with strike injunctions. And LaFollette and Gompers feel the same on this point, but both have always hated the Department of Justice.

It is on this question that LaFollette chiefs make their plea for Gompers support, and it is on this that Gompers is inclined to give support. His twelve rail unions already have approved LaFollette, many State federations have done the same and Gompers never tries to sail against the wind. William H. Johnston, machinists' chief, is chairman of LaFollette's national committee.

Besides the executive council, many union leaders will be in Atlantic City to present their views. The councilmen who will hear them, and the unions they represent are, besides Gompers:

James Duncan, granite cutters; Joseph Valentine, moulders; Frank Duffy, carpenters; William Green, miners; T. A. Rickart, united garment workers; Jacob Fischer, barbers; Matthew Woll, photograph engravers; Martin Ryan, carmen; Daniel Tobin, teamsters; Frank Morrison, typographers.

All but Duncan, Green and Ryan are Gompers supporters, so he holds the whip hand.

Girl Trio Sue Eddie Rogers as Cave Man

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 27. — The youthful and handsome Eddie Rogers, featured dancer at the Winter Garden, now becomes the center of Broadway's latest caveman episode. In the damage suit recently instituted by Dolly Thomas, Dorothy Phillips, and Margot Kelly, Rogers is accused of attacking the three women during the progress of an all-night party on the 8th inst.

According to the story as related by the girls, the party began when they, accompanied by Finis Fox, a motion-picture director, and Hugh Thomson, an actor, called for Rogers at the Winter Garden after the performance. Margot Kelly and Dorothy Phillips are no relation to the stage and screen stars who bear the same name.

the Dawes plan or isolated political action by France in the event of Germany's default, but not both.

The French spokesmen say freely that it is inconceivable that France would want to repeat her Ruhr experience, but that to bind France not to do what she says she has the right to do under the Versailles treaty is another matter entirely.

HERRIOT DECIDES TO REMAIN IN LONDON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, July 27.—M. Israel, general secretary for Quai d'Orsay, returned to Paris this afternoon after a flying trip to London to consult Premier Herriot, and announced that the French Premier had decided not to return to Paris for the reopening of Parliament Tuesday.

M. Israel called a meeting of several ministers and presidents of parliamentary committees to arrange for the conduct of affairs in the Premier's absence. It was decided to ask Parliament to pass all the legislation marked urgent without waiting for Premier Herriot's return.

Premier Herriot's decision to remain in London is considered a clever stroke of politics, as the Senate is not likely to overthrow his government while he is conducting important negotiations. Although danger exists, he is better off in London than in facing the Senate. If he can remain away long enough Parliament may adjourn for the summer, leaving him with his hands free until November.

AMERICA PLAYED BY RUSSIAN LEADERS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

MOSCOW, July 27.—In the course of a long, severely critical and flamboyant pronouncement touching on the anniversary of the outbreak of the World War and on the present Allied conference in London, the executive committee of the Communist Internationale says that all the countries represented at the conference expect salvation through the intercession of the United States.

"But," the statement adds, "the United States itself is beset with an agrarian crisis, 2,000,000 farmers throwing away their plots of ground and the shadow of economic catastrophe is knocking at its door.

"America's internal market is being curtailed more and more. Ruined and exhausted, Europe cannot absorb America's goods, while in South America, the United States is finding an increasingly narrow scope for its capital. Mr. Morgan is dictating to the United States and in the name of the United States, Gen. Dawes and Secretary Hughes are dictating to Europe.

"One of the first results of a Democratic pacifist era will be the coming of a dictatorship of American capital, which aims to transform Europe into a vassal colony.

"The English Labor government and the Left bloc in France are serving as a curtain for this dictatorship.

"After four years of fruitless wrangling on the reparations problem, the United States, the most terrible and avaricious participant in the war, enters the European arena ready with its European allies to strangle the German proletariat and transform Germany into an international colony for the machinations and exploitations of the robbers of all countries.

"The results of the present London conference will bring to the German workers a twelve-hour day, dismissal of 50 per cent of the railway workers, curtailment of the state employees, imposition of heavy taxes, increased customs and railroad tariffs and high prices. German workers will be converted into slaves of democracy and coolies of pacifism."

The executive committee urges the proletariat and the toilers of world not to allow a repetition of the World War and concludes its manifesto:

"Hands off the German proletariat! Down with imperialistic slavery in the guise of pacifism! Down with the dictatorship of Morgan and American capital! Down with the Versailles Treaty and the Second Internationale and forward toward the proletarian revolution!"

American compatriot from that awful Egyptian," solemnly chanted in turn a famous mining engineer, the vice-president of one of the largest New York shipping companies, an American lawyer from Paris, and half a dozen other Yankees, including several Jews and Catholics.

KILL-JOY KONKLAVE

The rescue plans were delayed day after day, while the yacht cruised about, but a native fishing boat noiselessly slid up beside the Meteor in the Sea of Marmora one midnight this week when Prince Ali and half the crew were carousing ashore. The barefooted Turkish boatman had overpowered the sailor on watch and stuffed a rag in his mouth before he could move. A dozen intrepid Americans had leaped aboard the Meteor and battered down hatches leading to the crew's quarters and temporarily captured the Meteor in the name of the Ku Klux Klan of Constantinople.

"We have come to rescue you," blurted out the leader as the cabin door suddenly opened, and the Princess Pearl of Hollywood, U. S. A., angrily appeared in a kimono.

"You roughnecks have your nerve with you," she restorted, slamming the door in their astonished faces.

Papers in Milan Confiscated for Matteotti Story

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ROME, July 27.—All the Milan papers except the Popolo D'Italia, owned by Premier Mussolini's brother, were confiscated this morning. The reason is believed to be their reprinting and commenting on an article which appeared in the Rome paper, Sereno.

The article stated that Sig. Rossi had begun to make revelations implicating other persons in the kidnaping and murder of Deputy Matteotti some time ago.

DAVIS NOT TO DICTATE PLATFORMS

Denies Rumor Regarding Opposition to New York's Anti-Klan Plank

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DARK HARBOR, ISLESBORO (Me.) July 27.—John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominee, declared today that he had no desire to dictate State Democratic party platforms.

His statement was in response to inquiries concerning published reports that he had been urged to return to New York early next week in order to prevent a threatened clash with Gov. Alfred E. Smith over the question of the adoption of a strong anti-Ku Klux Klan plank by the New York State convention in September.

"I am naturally interested in the State platforms," Mr. Davis said, "but my observation has been that State conventions reserve the right to write their own platforms."

Reports that he had been urged to return to New York before the scheduled date of ending his vacation next Thursday were characterized by the nominee as "pure imagination."

"Would you object to Gov. Smith as a candidate to succeed himself as Governor of New York?" Mr. Davis was asked.

"I would be very glad to see him run," was the reply.

FOUR KILLED IN FALL OF PLANE

pilot. In a trial flight three weeks ago the defective ailerons were noted. They were evidently never properly fixed. So violent was the vibration of the two ailerons that bits of the fabric covering them were torn loose before the plane went into the bank which shot it to earth."

While thousands, gathered to witness what was to have been the triumphal flight, saw the plane plunge to earth, none was close at hand when it hit. The big machine was so demolished that it had the appearance, when mechanicians from the flying field a half-mile away arrived on the scene, of a plane but half the size. The plane had a wingspread of forty-one feet two inches, was twenty-six feet eleven inches in length and capable of carrying four passengers and a pilot.

Charles Killefer, vice-president of the Belcher Aerial Manufacturing Company, Inc., which built the "California," in a statement to authorities declared that before the plane ascended Belcher made a thorough and minute examination of it and pronounced it in first-class condition.

"The machine is in A-1 shape," Killifer quoted Belcher as saying "and if it comes down, I want to come down with it."

PATENT FEATURES

The "California" was built in Los Angeles by Los Angeles capital after the inventor had put years of work and study on the improvements said to have been incorporated in it. Salient among the features of the ship was a patent wood fabric with which the wings, fusilage, ailerons and rudders were covered. Others were the method of motor housing, cabin controls, interior bracing and joint wrappings. The plane is capable of developing a speed for cruising of 125 miles an hour, and has a cruising radius, fully loaded, of 1100 miles.

The Belcher corporation was incorporated under the California laws in July, 1921, and the stock is held exclusively by local investors.

The triple tragedy is the second bereavement suffered in the Belcher family recently. On June 6 the dead man's father, E. Belcher, died of natural causes. A daughter of Henry Belcher, a brother of the dead inventor, died last November. Henry Belcher is a member of Engine Company No. 6 of the Los Angeles Fire Department.

The bodies of Belcher and his 7-year-old son and Creeth are at the Remington Mortuary, 1133 South Flower, while the body of the dead wife and mother is at the Central-avenue Mortuary.

Coroner's inquest will be held Tuesday.

Yesterday's fatal accident was the tragic climax to some three years' work in building the plane. Belcher was a former instructor in aviation at North Island, having learned to fly before the war. Following the armistice he perfected the system of basket-weaving thin spruce strips which he had invented during the war. He was convinced that this covering, which combined lightness with great strength, could be utilized in airplane manufacture just as the Germans had used Duralumin in the Junkers airplanes.

Belcher started work in a little shop at the intersection of Slauson and Long Beach avenues and finally secured the backing to produce a plane. For three years he and Mrs. Belcher labored on the plane in which they met their death. It was without question one of the most graceful planes ever built and was a hand-finished affair that was a model of craftsmanship.

This was the first plane built by Mr. Belcher, who was a practical flyer but not an aeronautical engineer. It was freely rumored after the initial flight of the plane that there had been a serious error in design, but this was never confirmed although the plane was admittedly hard to handle as it had terrific speed. Bud Creeth, the pilot, was said to have mastered its eccentricities during the course of its trial flights, however, and it had been proclaimed ready for passenger service before its fatal flight yesterday.

Maryland Takes Engineer Honors for Battleships

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BREMERTON (Wash.) July 27. Engineer honors of the Navy for the fiscal year ending June 30, last, have been given to the United States battleship Maryland, according to an announcement made today. The battleship Arizona placed second for the engineering flag.

Three hundred and twenty men or both vessels will receive the prize money, amounting to $5 each. The Maryland will fly the flag for twelve months.

The scout cruiser Omaha will run full-power trials tomorrow.

URGES CLOSING OF FLIGHT HERE

the Chamber of Commerce last night. "We want every organization to stand back of us on this issue, and a bombardment of telegrams to Washington showing the sentiment here will probably do much to cause a reversal of the decision."

Irwin H. Rice, president of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, was outspoken in his denunciation of Gen. Patrick's action.

"Los Angeles was practically promised the honor of witnessing the end of the flight, and we did our part in the early days when a big boost was what was most needed by the air service," he said. "Now we are suddenly told that someone else is going to finish what we started."

Maj. Walter K. Tuller, member of the Community Development Association, added his voice to the general protest.

"I'm with the Chamber of Commerce on this," he announced. "We want fair treatment, and it doesn't look like we're to get it unless we make our case clear to Washington authorities."

ARGUMENT ATTACKED

The argument advanced by the air service that nineteen days would be clipped from the flyers' time by ending the flight at Seattle was attacked vigorously by Chamber of Commerce officials. The contention of Gen. Patrick is that, assuming that the flight officially started from Seattle and ended there, the nineteen days that the aviators spent there after they had left Los Angeles and were waiting for pontoons to be put on their machines would not have to be counted.

However, countered the chamber officials, only the actual elapsed flying time is to be considered, anyway, and all time spent for repairs and enforced stops, it has been announced, will be deducted. Therefore, it would take the flyers no more actual time to fly to Los Angeles than it would to Seattle. Furthermore, it was pointed out, the flight was not primarily intended for a speed test, its only aim being the circumnavigation of the world through the air. Another good argument in favor of Los Angeles was advanced when the attention of the authorities was brought to the fact that Southern California presents ideal flying conditions, while Puget Sound air conditions and climate are not as favorable to avaitors.

SEATTLE PLANS FOR GREAT WELCOME

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SEATTLE, July 27.—Plans for the reception and entertainment of the American around-the-world aviators on the completion of their journey here will be made immediately, declared David Whitcomb, president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, when informed that the United States Army Air Service had decided officially that the memorial journey will end in Seattle.

"Every resource of the city will be called on to help provide a wonderful reception for these men," said Mr. Whitcomb.

The U.S.S. Milwaukee arrived at Port Saunders, Newfoundland, at 6:30 last night. Army authorities proceeded today to Hawkes Bay, seven miles up the inlet, to set anchors.

TOKIO, July 28.—One hundred and sixty-nine persons were drowned in the wreck of the steamship Tairei Maru off Cape Notoro, northeast of Hokkaido, at 10:45 o'clock last night, says a dispatch to the Asahi, a leading Tokio newspaper.

The Tairei Maru, nominally a freight steamship, was carrying a number of passengers between the Island of Saghalien and Hokkaido.

The dead comprised 138 passengers and fifty-four of the crew. Eighteen passengers and five of the crew survived, reaching Tokyohara in lifeboats.

GIRL SAYS FEAR OF MAN CAUSED JUMP

Found unconscious last night in the 1900 block on South Union avenue, Miss Hazel McDuell, 20 years of age, upon regaining her senses told Receiving Hospital physicians she had jumped from an automobile because she was afraid of a man. She suffered a possible skull fracture.

Frank McGregor of 1726 South Berendo street admitted Miss McDuell had entered his machine, the police said, vut evidently had stepped out when he shifted gears.

Miss McDuell asserted she did not remember how far she had ridden with McGregor when she decided to alight. He is being held for failure to stop and render aid in an automobile accident.

ANTI-JAPANESE MOVE LAID TO LABOR MIX-UP

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

TOKIO, July 28.—Recent anti-Japanese activities in California, reports of which, printed in leading Japanese newspapers, caused a sensation here, apparently were due to labor troubles, Consul-General Oyama, stationed at San Francisco, has reported to the Foreign Office after an investigation. His report does not mention the Ku Klux Klan.

NAB YOUTH ACCUSED OF HOLDING UP MAN

Tony Sabedra, 18 years of age, of 316½ Avila street was arrested last night by Detectives Lyons and Frost after several persons identified the youth as one of two bandits who assaulted and robbed an aged man near the intersection of Avila and Ogier streets. The second bandit escaped and the officers were not able to locate the victim.

CRIME URGE IS RULER OF BOYS

the crimes in which they had indulged all their lives.

On the return journey the plan which resulted in the death of Robert Franks seven months later, began to take crystallized form.

And again it was Loeb who planned. Leopold might disagree in minor things, might even have his way—provided Loeb did not deem the matter important. But in the fundamental details of the proposals it was Loeb who had his way.

Ever since babyhood almost he had dreams of being just such a master mind of crime. He had dreamed of himself behind prison bars and had found the fantasy not unpleasant, because he was being looked at in his cell by an admiring world.

The murder that they planned was to be just such a crime as the pair had conceived of in their day dreams of abnormality, in their conversations. As boys they had made just such a compact of eternal fidelity to each other, as other boys make. Now they were to put this bond to the test of the most momentous crime in history.

Intellectually superior to the average boy, the two who planned are emotionally far below normal. Loeb especially is almost devoid of emotions.

A queer complex, Loeb posses. In actual physical encounter he is cowardly, say the physicians. Yet he is of the type that sets off into certain danger, perhaps involving loss of life, without a tremor of fear.

Neither Leopold nor Loeb appears very much afraid to die. They would die on the gallows without any more feeling than they displayed when killing little Robert Franks.

Would Loeb go through with the killing of another little boy provided he was released and had reason to believe he might escape punishment? He would, he says, if he was sure he could get the money. He thinks of the money when his father is a multimillionaire.

"I killed because I wanted to," is his reason. It is cause enough for Richard Loeb.

DESIRES HIS LAW

Leopold has done what he has done because he acknowledged no other law than his own desires. Loeb acted because, though he recognized the rights of others, he believed himself so superior to them that he did not need to obey them.

Except for the slant taken by his reveries, Loeb is like a child, still. He play acts. He calls himself a bootlegger, flourishes a pistol, tells tails of shooting up a saloon, just to impress a girl.

He pictures himself as a detective as well as the criminal, the greatest detective of them all. He pictures himself as one of the hard-riding, hard-shooting frontiersmen, afraid of nothing.

He lies to himself, as early he learned to lie to his parents, and his governess, and as latterly he lied even to the doctors whose testimony might save his neck from the noose.

He read books of crime and pictured himself as the hero, as the criminal, if the criminal came out on top in the end, as the sleuth if the crime was solved and the criminal caught.

In the matter of theft and arson, the alienists find that both Leopold and Loeb did not find so much pleasure in the destruction of property as they did in noting the bewilderment of the authorities and the knowledge that they, the boys, knew more about the whole thing than the gaping bystanders.

Loeb denied being implicated in the so-called gland robbery of Charles Ream, and he denied being at Geneva in the case of the "ragged stranger," who was found dead with his hands cut off and his face mutilated, and he denied having participated in any other delinquencies, but later refarred to four episodes, for which the letters A, B, C and D were suggested. It was found inadvisable to question him about these.

In November 1923, while Loeb and his companion, Leopold, were on their way home from robbing a fraternity house at Ann Arbor they got into a heated argument; each one was disgusted with the other's work in the robberies; they raised other personal questions about which they were not harmonious; their friendship threatened to collapse.

This argument was very bitter and lasted for several hours. It was suggested at this time that the friendship should dissolve. However, both gained by this friendship in several ways, and therefore they came to an agreement to perpetuate it under certain restrictions.

NEEDED ASSISTANT

The patient Loeb wanted an assistant in the carrying out of his criminal activities. The other with his exaggerated idea of his own mental superiority over all the world, and not wanting to be entirely lonesome, but needing some one who could understand him and who could associate with him as requested, they agreed that Loeb could call on the other for assistance at a certain number of times, in certain intervals of time, and the other could call on Loeb for companionship.

This relationship was to last until the associate went to Europe in the summer of 1924. Loeb's companion agreed to be absolutely under any orders that the former might give, except ridiculous commands and things that would cause trouble or friction with his family.

All this and much more will be presented to Judge John R. Caverly by the defense after the State finishes its case tomorrow with the reading of the confessions of Loeb and Leopold, telling in detail how and why they beat and strangled the life out of little Bobbie Franks.

Police Captain William Schumacher will be the first witness to be called by the State tomorrow. Capt. Schumacher will tell how the defendants went with him and reenacted the murder after they had confessed. They showed him everything, the place where they lay in wait for a likely boy to come along, where they sat in an automobile and watched through field glasses for a victim. They showed him how the boy was killed, pointed out the spot where his body was placed and went through the motions of placing it there and then accompanied him to the hiding places of the boy's shoes and belt, the typewriter on which they had written the letter demanding ransom and the auto robe in which they had wrapped the body.

Johnny Levinson, one of a number of boys marked as potential victims for "the great experiment" in murder will be another witness. Leopold and Loeb finally had decided on killing Johnny. But Johnny was busy and Bobbie Franks came along and Bobbie's father had millions of dollars and he wouldn't hesitate at paying $10,000 for ransom. It wasn't the boy who counted so much, it will be noticed. It was the boy's father.

Irving Hartman, who also was favored by the experimental killers, was to testify, but he is out of town on a vacation and probably will not be called.

The confessions will then be read by the stenographers who took them down in shorthand.

It is believed Darrow will begin his defense Tuesday morning.

Several hundreds of lives have been lost. It is feared the death roll when communications are established with the more remote districts will be very heavy. European planters are among those missing and the fate of many others is unknown.

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) July 27. Clifford Whipple, proprietor of a drug store, was abducted from a downtown street last night, taken to a lonely spot in the woods and flogged by four unidentified and unmasked men, it was reported to the police tonight.

The flogging occurred shortly before or after John J. Richter, a carpenter, was taken from in front of his home to a lot near by and whipped by four men. It was the seventh flogging in Jacksonville in three weeks.

Richter said the men charged him with beating his wife. He denied the charge.

FRANKS CASE WARNING TO PARENTS, SAYS LINDSAY

Trend of Dangerous Age in Youth Shown by "Infant" Slayers, Asserts Denver Judge

Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, for a quarter of a century one of the world's foremost authorities on juvenile problems, in the following article (written especially for The Times and the North American Newspaper Alliance) declares the lesson of Chicago's Loeb-Leopold case is this: "Mothers and fathers, awake. The children's crime of this generation calls you to action." He declares the infliction of the death penalty on young Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for the murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks would not solve the real problem, which is to prevent youth's golden age of emancipation from becoming the dangerous age—a menace which he sees on every side in petting parties, jazz, speed mania and inexperienced personal freedom.

BY BEN B. LINDSEY
Judge of the Juvenile Court of Denver
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, in United States, Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.]

DENVER (Colo. July 26.—Leopold and Loeb are no real samples of modern youth, even youth that is spreading its wings and making flights into the realm of the unknown. Nevertheless, the case of these boys, with their marvelous, but twisted mentality leading to this shocking crime, may yet bring some good to the world if it but impresses on American parents the terrific task that rests on them to know and understand their children, and how, in turn, to help their children to know and understand them.

So then, let the mothers and fathers of America awake. The children's crime of this generation calls you to action.

The Leopold-Franks murder case—you have all read about it. Not that you are given to the maudlin following of gruesome murder stories; there is more than that in this grim deed that has turned what should be the bright lexicon of youth into a veritable shambles of blood and death. And remember, through all its grewsome, sickening details, it is a children's story, a story of youth, even though it be the story of Chicago's direst crime. It never can be compared to any other tragedies of modern times; it has none of their motives, passions or purposes.

BEGGARS COMPARISON

It beggars all comparisons and challenges all explanations as judged by the records of modern crimes. It is a new kind of a murder with a new kind of a cause. That cause is to be found in the modern mentality and modern freedom of youth, with the misunderstandings between parenthood and childhood. Thus we have the modern misdirection of youth.

Do you not then see that this is more than the story of a murder?

It is the story of modern youth, the story of modern parents, the story of modern education, even though it be an extreme and exceptional episode in the stream of modern life.

There are lesser offenses, lesser difficulties, without the startling and spectacular episode of blood and death, that come from the same causes and pass us by almost daily. The indifference to the rights of others in the stealing of automobiles, in joyrides, jazz parties, petting parties, freedom in sex relations and the mania of speed on every turn. They do not gain our attention because they are not so startling, so terrible. And yet, by accretion, these lesser deeds in the "dangerous age," coming in such numbers all about us, are not less important, and if a spectacular murder was necessary to direct attention it may not have been without its good as well as its evil.

ALL ARE CONCERNED

It concerns you, mother, and you, father, and you, teacher, and all of our institutions responsible for the future of the race through that childhood which is left as a divine trusteeship in our everlasting arms.

Not that these youths should not be held responsible as individuals for the foul deed they have brought upon their community, but the lesson of such a tragedy would altogether fail if we could not fairly and justly reckon with its causes. In criminal courts the judge deals only with the thing the person does. Did he commit a murder? Then the judge looks to a direction in a book, and there he finds the State's remedy in its vengeance. But the judge knows little or nothing of the causes of the thing or the person that did it.

Back to these causes we must go. For either hanging these boys or putting them for the balance of their existence behind stone walls does not rid us of our problems of misdirected youth. It holds out little promise that, without more, we may not expect a recurrence, even though from different angles not so spectacular, of misfortune which may threaten modern civilization. Even with the best of parents and teachers, such things in individual cases may happen, but they are not so likely to happen if parents and teachers live up to their full responsibility.

For days the papers have been filled first with the details of this wretched crime, first a mystery and then, like a bolt out of the blue, with the confession of its perpetrators turning out to be nothing but children themselves. So the outstanding murder of this generation will always remain in history as a murder of a child done by children.

THEY ARE CHILDREN

Advisedly, I speak of them as children, not in mitigation of their crime, but to remind you fathers and mothers that at law, for hundreds of years, all persons under the age of 21 years are and have been just children, or as the law more technically expresses it, infants. That is to say, they are so regarded as being inferior to adults, because as yet there does not exist in their brief careers up to the age of 21 the experience that comes with maturity and age.

You, as laymen, know they cannot deal with property, they cannot be trusted with dangerous mechanical machinery, they cannot get married, they cannot do many legal things without the consent and advice of some adult, legally related to their lives. But when you think of this difference between adults and minors, it is with reference to property and the laws of property. Yet why should there be this distinction merely as to property and not as to morals, manners and behavior? If the child needs advice in dealing with his property until he is 21 years of age, does he not all the more need such advice and guidance in dealing with his mind and his morals until he is 21?

And now, though not trusted with property nor acknowledged in legal right to the liberty in life given only by law to adults, yet they are allowed mentally and morally to forage their way through every field of literature, through every weird cult, to delve into every strange philosophy with no more direction than that of their own immature minds, without life's real experience to guide them. Thus these mentally alert and emotionally unbalanced youths were permitted to drift where they would, with no guide but their own untutored egotism, their own eager, wild, undisciplined minds.

DRIFTED INTO DANGER

Thus it is we account for this extreme and exceptional crime of two infants (at law, as to their property, even if not as to their morals and mentality) who, unbridled and undisciplined are allowed the mental freedom, without adult direction, to roam at will amidst the pitfalls that adult civilization opened up to them.

They drifted into the dangers that certain adult minds have made for all misdirected youths. Thus in Loeb and Leopold we find two childhood wrecks, beating against the rocky mental shores of the Schopenhauers and the Nietzsches with their pessimism, their atheism, their materialism, to which is added the filthy sex eroticism of the sixteenth century. In the midst of its mental storm and wreck are two youths who might have been glorious in their fine capacities, if rightly directed, nor abused by this adult pessimism and despair, doing murder of a poor child to satisfy their jaded appetites and perverted brains. And for what? New sensations, new adventures, new thrills. The pity of it, when we consider all the big purposes to which these marvelous intellects might have been directed.

What have parents and teachers to say about the failure of these two minds to interest themselves, as an eminent Jewish rabbi has well said, even in the problems of their own age—to say nothing of all the great problems of all races—instead of surrendering themselves to wild and unnatural passions?

Why is it that two youths with such native ability should be without ideals and without responsibility in life, should be allowed to drift into this moral anarchy when they might have busied themselves through their God-given talents in noble service?

ARE THERE OTHERS?

How many other parents are there in this nation who are dense to the fact that the great stream of modern youth is flowing by them with all the power of a mighty river, finding its own course, sounding its own depths—a stream whose silences are as unknown to parents as that of the real great river itself? When will parents wake up to the fact that so many of them do not know their children, that so many of them know as little of their children as these parents must have known when these boys were reveling in the Nietzscheisms of "I love the great destroyers because they are the great adorers." Instead of a more wholesome interest in those things that concern the football field? When they were reveling in the obscenities of Pietro Aretino and his lascivious "Scourge of Princes," and acts of perversion that should have never been permitted to taint their fine young minds? In a lesser degree, or from different angles, how many parents know of those things that are surging in the minds of their own children?

The precocity, the wonderment, the curiosity of modern youth in this, its golden age, is a thing to be welcomed as boding good for the future, provided the modern parents of youth know how to perform the part that is theirs. Without that part lightly understood and performed, it is to be dreaded lest this golden age become a hopelessly dangerous age and lead us to some great tragedy for the race, as this exceptional case has been a great tragedy for three children and the parents involved.

Then, fathers and mothers of America, as one who has spent twenty-five years dealing with the affairs of your children, please do not let this tragedy pass without taking from it its lessons that you so much need. You do not know your children as you should, and your children do not know you as they should.

NEED UNDERSTANDING

What are you going to do to make it easier for them to understand you?

I warn you, the emancipation of modern youth is at hand. You will go with it, be a part of it, help to guide and direct it, or it will leave you far in the lurch. It will go alone and without you through its uncharted seas — leading God knows where. It is true that it came with the emancipation of modern woman. No longer will either be bound alone by tradition, by convention.

They are going to chart out a channel for themselves, but you must step along with the procession. You may not be able to lead, but you must know how to follow with that advice, counsel and direction that the saving grace of experience and maturity of years have added to your judgment.

But too many of you are making no effort either to lead or follow in this, the greatest procession of the ages, with your wise and kindly counsel. More and more your children are going to make their own lives, and I am one who is willing to trust them if you will only consent to share their lives with them and know how to do your part.

I rejoice in the freedom and emancipation of modern youth, as I do in that of modern woman, but, like every fight for freedom, like every movement forward, it is not without its pitfalls and its dangers. These two children, Leopold and Loeb, have all unwittingly, through their stumbling—yes, through their foul crime and the tears of all its tragedy—suggested to the mothers and fathers of this golden age that it will be a "dangerous age" only as sons and daughters and fathers and mothers, in moving forward, draw apart and move not together but alone.

LEARN LANGUAGE

Fathers and mothers, learn the languages of your children. Know their thoughts even better than you know their actions. For this tragedy of modern youth is rather the tragedy of modern parenthood. If it involves the lives of three children and the suffering of their parents as the one tragic necessity of arousing the parenthood and the teacherhood of America to a better understanding of responsibilities, it will have been a horrid evil not without its good.

Are these boys insane? It is very difficult to believe that two boys of such brilliant mentalities could both be insane. That is a question for the alienists. The State will undoubtedly have eminent specialists who will prove they are sane. Their defense will have those equally eminent who will prove they are not.

Yet, we cannot escape the fact that both of these boys had perfect freedom of will and entire freedom of moral action. There never has been a case in which this could be better shown by the length of time spent in planning their crime. It would seem that some kind of insanity may have accounted for the conduct of the stronger mentality of these two characters, as I believe Nathan Leopold, Jr. is.

PAMPERED LIFE

But in searching for causes, much more satisfactory conclusions, it seems to me, may be drawn from the lives and environment of these boys and the effect of all of that upon their minds. Here we find things that might have been avoided by more diligent parents or teachers. There was a pampered existence and an utter indifference to the rights of others, an utterly selfish life allowed to take its own uninterrupted course, a native precocity permitted to take a reckless and unbridled path where it would, with the advantages of an intensive education more material than moral, and with no kind of intimate contact with or understanding by the parents of what was going on underneath in these fervid, brilliant, unbridled, yet childish minds.

I am sure it was never suspected by parents or teachers. In these things, far more than in any theories of insanity, I find the reason for this dire tragedy—their self-importance, their self-esteem, aided by their station in life, the great wealth of their families, all fed an unchecked and unheard of egotism developed by an education directed by immaturity and not maturity. All of these things, with adolescent irresponsibility for conduct—as surely as the law admits in youth when dealing with property—had much to do with shaping their minds to the commission of such a horrid deed.

ATTORNEYS PRAISED

I think the attorneys for these two boys are to be commended for their action in throwing them upon the mercy of the court. They should be punished, of course. They should be placed beyond the possibility of again inflicting the innocent with the results of their perverted minds.

But they should not be hanged. To my mind that would be only adding one crime to another. It would only be the un-Christ-like doctrine of vengeance trying to solve the results of ignorance and violence. It might satisfy the mob, it might satisfy our tradition and conventions of ignorance, it might rid the world of two now mentally misshapen youths, but it would not rid us of our problem. In the solution of that, which is the only good that may come out of this evil, it would be much better to leave these boys to be mercifully experimented upon by society, instead of unmercifully taking their lives in the name of vengeance, or of permitting them to experiment upon others by being at large.

Aged Shorthand Expert Reports Speech Speeded

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—Human speech is speeding up with time and men no longer weigh their words as in days of old, according to James F. Allen, the oldest living shorthand expert in Missouri.

"Men don't think much before they speak nowadays," said Allen, who is nearly 80 years of age and who began shorthand work during the Civil War. "As a result shorthand writing has been speeded up to keep pace with the testimony. In my fifty-two years of reporting I have seen many interesting things. The work sometimes was full of hazards, as men came to court armed.

"There is little individuality in the business any more as the modern stenographer is little more than a machine, absorbing words and pounding them out on paper."

SINGLE CONTROL FOR FOUR ROADS

Van Sweringen Rail Merger is Almost Complete

Combined Systems Will Have 11,000 Miles Track

New $77,000,000 Station to Rise in Cleveland

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CLEVELAND, July 27.—The Sunday News-Leader today said:

The Van Sweringen Railroad merger is next door to an accomplished fact. It is in fact, accomplished. What remains to be done is detail.

Four systems, Nickel Plate, Chesapeake and Ohio, including the Hocking Valley; Erie, and Pere Marquette, operating more than 11,000 miles of line and with total balance sheet footings of upwards of $1,500,000 will within a few weeks be brought under a unified control with Cleveland headquarters.

NEW UNION STATION

Put into the picture also Cleveland's new $77,000,000 Union Station and terminal for which O. P. Van Sweringen says he expects to see the steel going up on the central section of the depot on the public square within a few weeks.

Here in Cleveland, the Van Sweringen brothers, Orris P., and Mantis J., are taken for granted.

O. P. Van Sweringen is young—46— and just beginning. M. J., is 44. Both were born in Wooster, O.

The first Van Sweringen railroad purchase was the Nickel Plate in 1916, then doing the unprofitable freight hauls of the New York Central to leave the main four to six-track system clear for the big money.

The next Van Sweringen purchase was two more similar lines strung out in the territory around Lake Erie—the Clover Leaf and Lake Erie and Western. These were welded into the Nickel Plate system.

GETS C. & O. CONTROL

The next was a real railroad—the Chesapeake and Ohio, carrying control of the Hocking Valley, both notable among the coal-carrying systems of central territory east of the Mississippi.

Pere Marquette and Erie are another story. O. P. Van Sweringen has acknowledged ownership of upwards of 100,000 shares of Pere Marquette and the gossip of the financial district here is that it is around 150,000 shares.

NEW CANAL RECORD SET AT PANAMA

Net Tonnage and Tolls for Year Show Increase of About 40 Per Cent

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 27.—The tenth fiscal year of operation of the Panama Canal, which ended June 30, last, broke all previous records, according to the official Record, issued yesterday.

During the twelve months, 5618 ocean-going ships, 5230 of them commercial, 418 United States government craft, passed through the interoceanic waterway. Total tolls collected amounted to $24,291,492, or a monthly average of $2,024,291. The total cargo passed through the canal was 27,218,928 long tons, a monthly average of 2,268,244 tons.

Compared with the fiscal year 1923, the figures were as follows:

Transits an increase of 1269 vessels or 31.3 per cent; Panama Canal net tonnage, an increase of 7,543,092 tons, or 40.5 per cent; tolls an increase of $6,782,548, or 38.7 per cent; cargo carried an increase of 4,426,536 tons, or 37.4 per cent.

PREHISTORIC ANIMALS UNEARTHED IN TEXAS

MUSEUM EXPEDITION DIGS UP SKELETONS OF CREATURES 500,000 YEARS OLD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CROSBYTON (Tex.) July 27.—Fossilized skeletons of prehistoric horses, pigs, a camel and a mastodon have been found in Blanco Canyon near here by an expedition of the American Museum of Natural History of New York, under the direction of Dr. W. D. Matthews.

The members of the horse family roamed this part of the earth 300,000 to 500,000 years ago. They were not much larger than a jackrabbit, and instead of having hoofs like the horses of today, they were three-toed, it is stated. For several scientific expeditions have been exploring the formations of this region and many remarkable specimens of prehistoric animal life have been discovered. This is particularly true of the section around Silverton, about fifty miles north of here.

It was stated by Dr. Matthews that the scene of the present explorations is the best ever discovered for obtaining specimens of the kind.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

From this amount was deducted $225,651.83 to reimburse the company for expense in improving property and drilling oil wells involved in the litigation. The other two companies were ordered to pay the plaintiffs $162,854.71.

Every man and woman should read this book!

PROPERTY is never without an owner. While a man lives it is his to do with as he please; but when his time comes to go it must inevitably pass to others.

The law permits a man to select those who shall inherit his property. He may make his own law of succession—a Will.

It is dangerous to delay the making of a Will. Do you know why? Do you know when and how to draw your Will, or what will happen to what you leave should you neglect to do so? The laws of descent of property are inflexible. Every man and woman should understand them.

"Your Executor and Trustee" is a booklet which explains these matters briefly and clearly, together with many other important phases of property management and distribution.

It will tell you that, after arranging the preparation of the Will, the next important step is the selection of an Executor. Grave responsibility devolves upon the Executor. His duties are complex and his necessary qualifications such that a prudent person will give serious consideration to the selection. Several paragraphs are devoted to this step in the protection of your family.

A wise man's obligation to his family does not conclude with the drawing of a Will and provision of a competent Executor. The dangers which await an unguarded inheritance and methods of protection against them fill important pages of this booklet, as does discussion of California State Inheritance Taxes and Federal Estate Taxes.

Those who realize the value of preparedness for any emergency will find the information contained in "Your Executor and Trustee" not only interesting and instructive but of advantage in assisting them to decide what they wish to do in these important matters.

RIS PAYS VERTISING N HONOR

ic Throngs to Greet Americans at Tomb of Soldier

BY HENRY WALES
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Of the Chicago Tribune.]
PARIS, July 27.—The reception of American advertising men by the French government and people here today took on an unprecedented form of ostentation. The Amer-icans, followed by huge crowds of Parisians, appeared when they left their program, and the ceremony was accom-plished by 10 o'clock this morning, the entire group visiting the tomb of the unknown soldier and placing a wreath. The wreath remained before the tomb, where a spe-cial guard was held and again during this afternoon when the party motored in Place de la Concorde to a trip to Versailles. After a tour of Louis XIV's pal-ace of the Americans dined at the Trianons, amid scenes of Marie Antoinette's rustic amuse-ments of years ago.
The day ended with a display of fireworks in eighteenth century style at Madame's Ranch in Pal-ace. These fireworks were specially arranged by Ruggiero Ricci, construction of one of the big fetes at Versailles in honor of victory over the Marne.

COINCIDENCES AID ALLIES

Presence of Hughes and Bankers at Conference in London Helps; Fleet Review Significant

BY JOHN STEELE
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, July 27.—The London conference on the Dawes plan is fortunate in its coincidences. It was pure coincidence that Secretary of State Hughes is in London as head of the American Bar Association delegates. It was coincidence, perhaps, that the American bankers are congregated in London and are able to tell the political delegates on what terms they think it possible to float a $200,000,000 German loan.

Perhaps it is coincident that J. Pierpont Morgan is now on his way to London for a European holiday at a moment when the negotiations have reached a most critical point.

But the most striking coincidence of all is the great British fleet review by King George at Spithead today, at which the delegates to the conference were present, and at which the British exhibited the lion's claw to Premiers Herriot and Theunis and others who might perhaps have imagined they had been drawn by the Socialist government and who may, if disposed, ignore him as a factor in the settlement of world affairs.

It is doubly significant that the last review of the present King was held in July, 1914, on the eve of the outbreak of the World War and the fleet which might have been assembled for ceremonial inspection never was demobilized until the war was over.

Doubtless these reflections were passing through the minds of the conference delegates today when they accompanied the King along forty miles of ships, practically every one new since 1914. Of the 200 warships in line only one took part in the 1914 review.

Apart from these ceremonial affairs the delegates are taking a rest over the week-end.

As a matter of fact, the real struggle now has passed outside of the conference proper and has resolved itself into a matching of forces between the rival groups of bankers to insure the $200,000,000 loan to Germany. Premier Theunis, who called in a Jewish group to bid against J. Pierpont Morgan and the Bank of England, achieved a master stroke which may save the conference.

The delegates are much pleased over the apparent anxiety of the Morgan group, shown by M. Harjes's dispatch from Paris, and Mr. Morgan's interview in New York on the eve of his sailing for Europe.

It is now practically certain that an invitation will be sent to Germany after Monday's plenary sitting. Prime Minister MacDonald has told Premier Herriot that even if the Allies are not in full agreement an invitation to the Germans cannot be postponed longer, and M. Herriot, although troubled, has consented.

LA FOLLETTE TO SPEND MILLIONS

Expenses of Campaign May Reach Huge Amount

Railroads, Radio Concerns to Get Big Sums

Wheeler Tour Expected to Cost $250,000

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Indications are that the La Follette campaign for the Presidency will cost from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Much of this will go to railroads and radio concerns. Some estimate that $1,000,000 will be spent for broadcasting.

Little is known yet as to how much money can be raised. Some of his aides frankly hope to get $5,000,000. Others decry such a sum for a "poor man's candidate." All agree, however, that they will not refuse any contribution.

Railroads will get a good share of the fund. Recently in a conference of the lieutenants, one of them remarked that "it will cost $250,000 to send Wheeler on the proper kind of a swing around the country."

TO VISIT STATES

The Vice-Presidential candidate expects to visit almost every State in the Union, but whether he will travel by private train, private car or upper berth is not settled yet. Expenses for his meetings will be borne largely by local organizations, so that the national campaign fund will not suffer on that account.

Senator La Follette himself also wants to make a great tour, but probably will not. He, however, will use the radio freely. Tentative offers from the radio concerns run as high as $10,000 for each broadcasting, depending on the number of stations hooked together.

It is to cut this expense that La Follette may go to Madison later. The radio cost there will be cheaper than in Washington due to better facilities at Chicago.

Representatives of railroads and radio stations have called on the Senator recently, but thus far he has not made any deals with them.

SEEK UNION AID

Then, the candidates will be plastered over the country on posters, banners, buttons, etc. The La Follette camp is distributing thousands of pamphlets, special editions of labor papers and copies of past speeches of their candidates.

Plans for raising the La Follette money are not complete. The various unions are being asked to contribute and each contributor will receive a certificate and a La Follette button, regardless of the size of his contribution. The Senator wants as many small contributions as possible, figuring that 1000 one-dollar contributions means 1000 votes, where one $1000 contribution means only one vote.

One plan that has been discussed is to ask labor union members to work on Labor Day and give the proceeds to the campaign fund, but it is doubted if that could be done. Rudolph Spreckles, California banker, who once suggested that a Presidential campaign ought to cost $25,000,000 may help a lot.

Lawyer and Dry Officer in Court Threaten Fight

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

HILO (T. H.) July 27.—A fist fight between John Wise, Federal prohibition director, and J. W. Russell, an attorney, was averted in the Federal courtroom yesterday by the intervention of U. S. Dist.-Atty. Carden and other officials. The incident occurred prior to the opening of a special session when Russell, who was appearing for James Ako, a county supervisor, charged with transporting liquor, called Wise a "blackmailer."

Wise tore off Russell's glasses and aimed a blow at him, which, however, Carden deflected. Other officials intervened and Russell left the building until court was convened.

ANDREW W. BAIRD

The Affair at Othman's

BY WILL PAYNE

She was fairly launched now, and went on with a voluble earnestness: "You can see how it is, captain. My customers are mostly women, married women, a good many of them young married women. Well, their husbands see the bills, or know where they go to get their hair dressed, and say, 'O, that's the woman that was mixed up in the Othman murder.' There are plenty of other beauty parlors. Nobody has to come to me, and anything that looks, well, shady, might send them away." With a little laugh she added, in sudden confidence, "My goodness, captain, women can have plenty of things to explain to their husbands without having to bother about their hair dressers."

The touch of nature made Welbasky laugh and he answered her, "I'll not give you away unless it has to come out in court."

She looked somewhat downcast over that and observed, "Well, I do hope it won't have to. That's why I hated coming here, you see. Of course, I've been reading the newspapers. Maybe what I have to tell you isn't of any account anyway. But it did seem that I really ought to tell the police. I'm a widow, captain, and I live in the Kingsel apartment building, a little apartment on the twelfth floor. I've had it three years. I guess I didn't tell you my name. It's Mrs. Littleton, Mrs. Bertha Littleton."

She hesitated a moment, and looked at the policeman rather appealingly, as though she required some further urging, or a command to overcome her reluctance. Then by way of taking the plunge, she said:

"Really, I suppose it's my duty to tell you. You see, I was busy in the shop Friday evening till 6:30 or maybe a little later. I do try to get out and walk a little every day when the weather isn't too awfully bad. I'm in the shop all day, you know, and then going up to my apartment if I don't make an effort I get no exercise at all. My doctor says it's bad for me"—she laughed—"and I know it myself when I step on the scales. It was bad Friday evening, you know, but I thought I must get out for half an hour or so before dinner. So I went up to my apartment and got my rubbbers and a raincoat and an old hat, and went out.

"I really don't know just how far I walked up Park avenue. After I'd once got out of doors, for all it was so sloppy, the air felt good, and I just plodded on in the snow, enjoying it. I know I went over to Madison avenue and walked a ways; and then I thought I'd go over to Fifth avenue. I wasn't paying any particular attention to the cross streets, you see, and didn't know exactly where I was until I recognized Mr. Othman's house. I never knew Mr. Othman. That is, I knew him by sight; he'd been pointed out to me; but I never had any acquaintance with him. Of course, I knew his house. I guess everybody in New York has had it pointed out to them. If I had to try to fix the time, I would say it was probably around a quarter to seven when I left the Kingsel and I must have been walking about half an hour when I recognised Mr. Othman's house."

She made a gesture with a plump little hand, indicating a body moving in a straight line. "I was walking west, you see, right past his house, and I was keeping over toward the building. You know how it was Friday night—all that soggy snow coming down. I had my umbrella up, so I didn't see far, and I was watching my step, too, for a body might slip easily. Well, there's a driveway on the west side of Mr. Othman's house, and the first thing I knew I saw a woman stooping down over at the further side of that driveway, right at that corner, you know, at the west side of the driveway."

Habit enabled Capt. Welbasky to keep his face perfectly straight and his voice cool as he suggested, "Suppose you draw me a little diagram, show me just where this woman was when you saw her."

That seemed to daunt her. "Why, I'm no hand at drawing, captain. I don't believe I could get it right," she protested. Nevertheless, taking the pencil which he offered her in a small, fat, gloved hand, she drew a line to represent the front of the house and a half circle to represent the driveway and made a dot. "There, if you see what I mean—she was just about there."

Her dot was at the spot where the pistol had been found.

"And she was stooping down when you saw her," the captain prompted. "Then what did she do?"

"Well, she straightened up just about as soon as I saw her," Mrs. Littleton went on. "I mean, as near as I can remember it, she was straightening up when I saw her. And she stepped out on the sidewalk, just a step, or half a step. She started west, you know, toward Fifth avenue, and then a cab at the curb gave a little toot. You see, captain, this cab was waiting at the curb here." She laid a finger on the diagram. "It was at the curb just east of the driveway, and she came out on the sidewalk and started west. Then the cab gave a little toot and she turned around and saw it and went over and got in.

"You see, captain, this cab must have been waiting for her; she must have told it to wait for her, only, the way I make it out, she thought it would be at the curb west of the driveway and so started in that direction. And then the cab driver saw her and gave a little toot to call her attention, and she turned around and saw her cab and went over to it."

"No doubt," said the captain. "Did she see you?"

She considered that an instant and answered, "Why, I don't know, but I don't believe she did. It was so snowy, you know, and she was in a hurry. She didn't stop at all, just started west and heard the toot and turned around and ran to the cab and got in, if you know what I mean, going right along, you see, in a hurry. And I was over near the building. I don't believe she saw me at all. Her back would be toward me when she started west and then as she turned around she would be turning away from me, you see. And she went right over to the cab and got in. I don't believe she saw me."

"Did you notice the cab?"

"I noticed it was a black and white taxi."

"How good a look did you get at the woman? Would you recognize her if you saw her again?"

Mrs. Littleton considered. "I've been wondering myself whether I would. There wasn't much light and the snow, too. Only when she went over to the cab I was right opposite her. The cab driver had reached round, you know, and opened the door for her. And then I did get—well, a look at her, kind of a sidewise look—profile. Seems to me I would know her if I saw her again, but maybe I wouldn't. I couldn't be sure. She was wearing a loose dark coat—maybe black or dark blue or brown—and a cloth hat. She had dark hair." She hesitated a moment.

"You see, captain, she did kind of attract my attention, I mean more than just casually noticing a person. That was because I saw her coming out of Mr. Othman's house, or I thought she must have come out of his house. Everybody heard stories about Mr. Othman, you know; the house was a sort of mystery. So I had some curiosity about this woman. I know I thought 'that woman is not a servant'—the way she carried herself and so on. Maybe it was the way she moved that made me think she was young and then, from what I saw of her face, she must be a pretty woman. All around, you see, it made me sort of curious. I noticed her more than you would notice a person you passed in the street in a casual way. I almost think I might recognize her, but I couldn't be sure until I tried it."

"And this, you think, must have been fifteen or twenty minutes past seven?"

"It must have been about then," she replied. That was about the moment of the murder as reported in the newspapers. "So it seemed that I ought to tell you, but I hope I can keep out of the papers."

"I rather think you can, Mrs. Littleton," Welbasky assured her. "And we're much obliged to you. I can reach you at your shop by telephone almost any time?"

"Oh, any time," she replied.

With rather unwonted gallantry the thin captain showed his plump little caller out, and immediately set to work on her story, or rather on the woman herself. In the first place the police records contained nothing against her. The police district in which the Kingsel apartment building was located knew nothing against her. The agent of the building gave her an excellent reputation. She had been a tenant for four years, giving no occasion for complaint, paying her rent promptly with checks on the Park avenue branch of the Bullion Bank. The manager of the branch bank gave her a good reputation. Hers was a small business of course; capital invested probably not over $10,000, but it was managed with prudence, for Mrs. Littleton not only maintained good credit at the bank but from time to time invested a few thousand dollars of surplus profits in tiptop bonds.

In fine, Mrs. Littleton was an eminently credible witness; and her story was of the utmost importance vecause nobody, excepting a few policemen, knew that the murder gun had been discovered at the spot where Mrs. Littleton said she saw a young woman stoop down. Only one question remained, Was the young woman who stooped down there Flora Marsden? In a way this new witness took the affair out of Welbasky's hands. That is no self-respecting policeman could pause now until he had an answer to that final question.

Therefore no great while after Mrs. Littleton left Welbasky's office a detective presented himself unannounced at the house on Washington Square with a message that Miss Marsden was to accompany him at once to headquarters. The sword, it seemed, had descended. With hardly a question or comment Flora accompanied the man out to his waiting car, while her mother telephoned to her father. So, after some sixty hours of suspense, with hopes that rose and fell, she found herself in a place with all the grim, stony and ruthless air of a prison.

"Good morning, captain," she said, as she was shown into the bare little office.

Deuce take it! The charm worked even here and now. A shame, somehow, to drag her into this when there were so many others. But Welbasky had an operation to perform.

"I want you to run over Friday evening for me once more," he began. "You called a cab, telephoned for one from your house. What sort of cab was it?"

"A black-and-white taxi," she replied, promptly.

"Where did you leave it at Othman's; at the door?"

"No, I was in a great hurry. The driver turned in from Fifth avenue, which put him on the south side of the cross street. There was more or less traffic. It would have taken time to go on and come back on the other side—the side where the house stood. I told him to let me out at the south side. I could get across quicker on foot."

"And what did you tell him about waiting for you?"

"I told him I was going into the second house from the corner on the other side, and to turn round and come back and wait for me at the curb on that side."

"He did that?"

"Yes. When I came out of the house I started along toward Fifth avenue, west, thinking he'd be at the curb along there. It was snowy, you know; you couldn't see far. So I started west. But he blew his horn. He'd drawn up to the curb just east of the driveway instead of west. He must have been watching for me. He blew his horn, so I turned round and saw the cab and went over to it. He drove on to Fifth avenue and turned south and went home down the avenue."

"Now, think of it carefully, Miss Marsden. After you stepped out of Othman's house, did you stop anywhere?"

She did and shook her head. "No, I went right on."

"But didn't you stop a moment somewhere? Try again; think it over."

She made another effort to reconstruct it, and looked a little embarrassed. "Why—I don't know but I did . . . I believe I did. Ruling passion, I suppose—a woman's vanity. I remember now, I felt that my hair was loose, falling down. I did stop on the steps to give my hair a touch—a minute or two. My gloves were in the way. I couldn't feel my hair with them on. I did stop a minute or so to fumble with my hair."

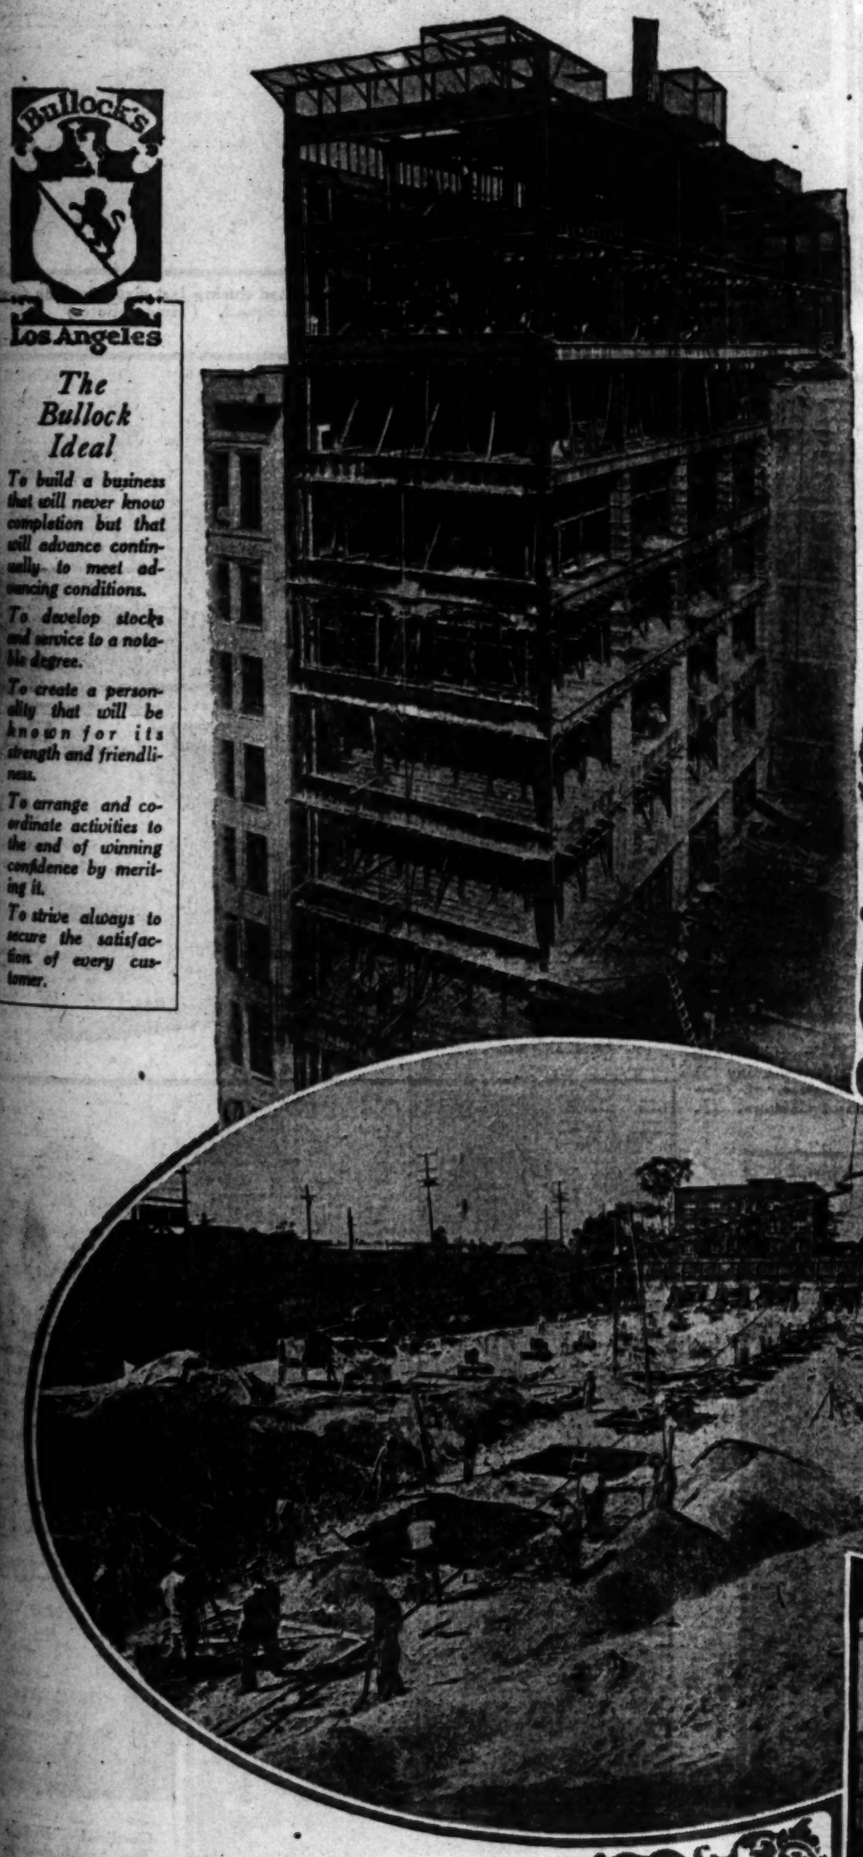
Over One Million, Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, Bullock's Building Program for 1924



Bullock's
Los Angeles

The Bullock Ideal

To build a business that will never know completion but that will advance continually to meet advancing conditions.

To develop stocks and service to a notable degree.

To create a personality that will be known for its strength and friendliness.

To arrange and coordinate activities to the end of winning confidence by meriting it.

To strive always to secure the satisfaction of every customer.

—A great year in the life of a city becomes an outstanding year in the progress of a store.

—As Homes, Happiness and Industry lengthen the stature of Los Angeles towards the starline, an inspiration on the horizon of the world, Sincerity strengthens the arms of Bullock's for service.

—The early months of this year saw the completion of a new ten story and basement Bullock Building on Hill Street, linking additional facilities to Bullock's Broadway, Hill and Seventh Street structures, and bringing the total store area to 503,370 square feet.

—In February 1924 excavations were commenced for another ten story Hill Street Bullock unit, with two basements, which, at the moment, approaches completion, and which will add 62,106 square feet of floor space. Over 900 tons of steel have gone into the construction of this unit. Eight additional elevators will be included, supplementing the sixteen elevators already in operation.

AT THE left is a reproduction of a photograph showing the progress being made on Bullock's new 10-story and double-basement Hill Street addition, companion to the building recently completed by Bullock's on Hill Street. Another graphic illustration of enterprise directed toward the building of "a business that will never know completion."

—All of which construction makes possible an important development to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars, now being expended, for expansion of existing sections.

—In addition, work is well under way on the new, block long service building for Bullock's, on Stanford Street, Tenth to Eleventh, each floor to contain 57,000 square feet of space.

—Over a million, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars—98% of which is going to Los Angeles manufacturers—the 1924 building program of Bullock's—to meet the immediate needs of that service which has as its ultimate "the satisfaction of every customer"—which is Bullock Service, growing soundly, steadily, with Los Angeles—on its way towards Friends.

ABOVE is a reproduction of a photograph taken recently, showing the work now being done, preparing for the foundation of Bullock's New Service Building, to be erected on Stanford Street, covering the entire block, from Tenth to Eleventh Streets.

At the right is a reproduction of the architect's drawing of Bullock's New Service Building, as it has been planned.

MESCALL REACHES FINALS

City Golf Champ to Meet Wagner for Title in 36-Hole Match Sunday

Johnny Mescall, present holder of the city golf championship, advanced to the final round of play in the titular tournament now in progress at the Warren G. Harding memorial links at Griffith Park yesterday when he defeated L. M. Brown, 2 up in a spectacular struggle. Mescall will meet G. W. Wagner next Sunday in a thirty-six-hole final match for the championship, Wagner having eliminated Billy Jack in the other semi-final match, 4 and 3.

Although Mescall lead all the way in his match with Brown, he was forced to his very best brand of golf in order to win. At the turn Brown was 2 down, and although Brown won back these holes, Mescall finished three, three, three for a medal score of 36 on the second nine, and won, 2 up. Mescall's score for the eighteen holes was 78 and Brown had an 81.

Earl Neitzel jumped into the limelight yesterday by setting a new course record for George Thomas's difficult layout with a card of 74 in a play-off with Fuller Thompson for the low gross trophy. Although George Von Elm won the medal round with a 75, he returned the trophy to Ike Wentworth, chairman of the tournament committee to be awarded to the winner of the play-off for second low gross when he found he was unable to play through the tournament. Thompson and Neitzel had tied at 79. Thompson had a 77 in the play-off.

The first round of the thirty-six-hole encounter for the city title next Sunday will start at 9:30 a.m., and the second at 1:30 p.m., according to Wentworth. Following the match a driving contest will be held, being scheduled to start at 4:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend the final match.

Complete semi-final results follow:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

Johnnie Mescall defeated L. M. Brown, 3 up.
G. W. Wagner defeated Billy Jack, 4-3.

CHAMPIONSHIP DEFEATED 8

Harold Thompson defeated Fuller Thompson.

YANKS GET LION'S SHARE OF TROPHIES AS OLYMPICS END

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

OLYMPIC STADIUM, COLOMBES (France) July 27. The eighth Olympic games, in which the United States scored a triumph, came to a formal close this afternoon in the Colombes Stadium.

More than 15,000 persons, a crowd which compared favorably with most of the gatherings to witness the keenest competition during the games, were present for the closing spectacle, marking the official conclusion of games which had been in progress more than seven months.

Ninety-eight of the 361 Olympic medals awarded this afternoon went to the United States. Prizes were awarded for the first three places in each event, although six places counted in the point scoring. The Americans received nearly one-third of the total trophies comprised of prizes for forty-five first places, twenty-six for second places and twenty-seven for third places. Finland, with thirty-seven firsts, France with thirty-six and Great Britain with thirty-one were next on the list of the twenty-seven nations which received prizes. South America was represented on the list by Argentina and Uruguay. Argentina had one first, one second and two third places to her credit. Uruguay had one first place.

Today's formalities came as something of an anticlimax to the main branches of competition, which concluded a week ago; but they provided a spectacle which was interesting, as well as fitting. Only a handful of the scores of stirring athletic heroes was on hand when the prizes were awarded and fully half of these were Americans, who were accorded an ovation when the gray-haired veteran of sports, Col. Thompson, received from Baron Pierre De Coubertin, president of the international committee, the lion's share of the laurels.

The official pronunciamento of Baron De Coubertin closing the games was followed by a salvo of five guns and

Large Crowd Sees Tennis Play at Midwick Club

Approximately 1000 souls, with apparently very little regard for their respective schoolgirl complexions, journeyed out to the Midwick Country Club yesterday afternoon to see William T. Tilden II, national singles champion, and rather generally credited with being the greatest tennis player that ever lived, slam the lobs and volleys of three opponents all over the court. It was the largest assemblage that ever attended a Midwick net affair and Matt Beasly, instructor in things pertaining to tennis, etc., was more than pleased.

Just by way of a bit of publicity for the overworked and underadvertised motion-picture stars it might be mentioned that Pola Negri, the Polish tragedienne, and Kathleen Williams, were present in a front-line box, which fact didn't seem to overawe Tilden, who socked all offerings of his rivals with great gusto.

In the big singles event of the day Tilden encountered Alfred Chapin, Jr., who came with the champion from Philadelphia. Tilden polished off his traveling partner in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3, exhibiting plenty of the skill that has won him so many titles. Paired with Sandy Weiner, his 16-year-old protege, the champion was less fortunate, bowing to the local duo, Harold Godshall and Tom Ferrandini, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5. This was a decidedly torrid engagement, the last set being a battle royal from start to finish, the locals winning by concentrating their attack on Weiner.

Stanley Robinson of Pasadena, one of Beasley's pupils, trimmed Donald Strachen, another of Tilden's party, in a one-set match, 6-2. Paired with George Thomas, Robinson also emerged victorious, taking the measure of Ted Easton and Strachen, 6-4.

R-BOATS IN REAL BATTLE

Peggy Defeats Debra in Final Race Off Harbor; Stardust Also Wins

Sailing over a twelve-mile triangular course off Los Angeles Harbor, sloops of the California Yacht Club ended a four-race series yesterday.

Harry Fisher's Peggy sailed across the finish line an easy victor, in the R-boat races. The Peggy defeated the Debra, Ben Weston's craft, which had defeated her in one of the heats the day before. The sea-battle between the two boats was close over the first two-thirds of the course, but when the Peggy turned her nose homeward on the last four miles of the triangle, Weston's boat lost ground, but finished an easy second over Joe Spalding's Angelus. The Patricia, Pierpont Davis's boat, was fourth, and the McCree, owned and skippered by John Langdon, took fifth-place honors.

In the Star-boat class the Stardust crossed the line, a victor over the Movie Star after a hard-fought race. The boats went over the same course as the R boats.

SERAPHS, SUDS EACH WIN ONE

Locals Take Opener, 3 to 2, in Eleven Frames

Walter Golvin is Big Hero of First Contest

Seattle Takes Second, 4 to 3; Series to Angels

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Seattle and Los Angeles divided two hotly contested ball games yesterday before some 10,000 fans, the locals taking the opener, 3 to 2, after eleven hectic innings, and the Indians nabbing the second, 4 to 3. Fancy flinging, flossy fielding and numerous thrills were ejected into the pastimes to make the afternoon thoroughly enjoyed by all except those whose hoggish tendencies made them want one team to win both tilts.

Walter Golvin, Angel first sacker, was the hero of the first game and helped to make the supper struggle what it was by contributing numerous sensational plays at first. Clyde Beck crowded Golvin for fielding honors, making a few plays around short that left the cash customers gasping for air.

Ray Rohwer, Seattle left fielder, injured his ankle in the early innings of the first tussle, but before he had to retire from the game he robbed Bill Whaley of a double and the Angels of two runs when he made a sensational, running, meat-hand catch of Whaley's line to left center.

GOLVIN ENDS BATTLE

After Wheezer Dell and George Payne had battled on even terms for ten innings in the first game, Golvin broke up the shindy when he tripled to right and came home on Beck's grounder in the eleventh. Golvin's three-base drive lacked about a quarter of an inch of being a home run into the right-field bleachers, landing on the railing and bounding back into the field.

Seattle took the lead in this game when Lane doubled and scored on Welsh's single to right in the opening inning. The Angels almost made a triple play in the same frame when, with Indians on first and second, Beck made a sensational catch of Eldred's drive and threw to McAuley for a double killing. McAuley's throw to Golvin just missed getting Welsh off first by a whisker.

The Angels came back in their half of the first with a tying marker when Whaley doubled, took third on McAuley's hit and scored on Durst's sacrifice fly to center.

The Suds shoved over the next score in the sixth when Welsh singled, stole second and came

DATE SET FOR FIRPO BOUT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 27.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, and Harry Wills, his negro opponent, will meet in their twelve-round match at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on Thursday night, September 11, according to an announcement made today by Tex Rickard, promoter of the match. The date was finally selected after a prolonged conference with officials of the United States Polo Association, who have requested Rickard not to interfere with the international polo matched scheduled on September 6 and 10, and a possible third game on September 13. Rickard asked the polo association to invite the Prince of Wales, who will be in this country for the polo matches to attend the heavyweight fight.

Tickets for the fight will sell for prices ranging from $2 to $25 nue for ringside seats, plus the usual war tax.

Firpo has virtually decided upon Saratoga as a training ground.

COUNTY EMPLOYEES FORM ICE SKATE CLUB

Another ice skating club with the prospects of a hockey team was promised the ice fans at their meeting Sunday morning when it was learned that county employees are contemplating the formation of a skate club.

The meeting failed to produce the women skaters as had been expected. However, the ice enthusiasts are not giving up their hopes of a women's hockey team, and every effort will be put forth to have the women skaters attend their meeting next Sunday morning at 1557 North Western avenue.

INSURANCE COMPANY MUST MAKE UP OLYMPIAD DEFICIT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, by the New York Herald-Tribune.]

PARIS, July 27.—The Olympic Games, which were officially closed today, face a deficit of 2,000,000 francs due to lack of attendance and particularly the dearth of interest displayed by French citizens, who were sparsely represented in the big stadium.

Foresight of the Olympic committee, however, has prevented a loss, since the games were insured by the British insurance company which underwrites anything from ocean liners to Easter hats.

The British company wrote a policy guaranteeing receipts of 8,000,000 francs, and they will be called upon to pay up the deficit of 2,000,000 francs.

ACTIVITY ON HOMER FRONT VERY QUIET

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, July 27.—Quiet reigned along all sectors of the home run offensives in the major leagues the past week, the leaders, Ruth of the Yankees with thirty and Fournier of the Dodgers, twenty-two, holding their positions.

The only activity was that of Harnett of the Chicago Cubs, who continued to pile up points, running his season's record of circuit clouts to fifteen, with three in the last seven days.

In the American League none of those in secondary positions was able to knock out a home run during the week.

DURAY IS VENTURA CHAMPION

Wins Feature Event of Dirt-Track Program on Northern Oval

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VENTURA, July 27.—A packed grand stand and parking grounds at Seaside Park this afternoon greeted the automobile racing daredevils. The spectators were rewarded by a series of thrilling drives over the half-mile course. Leon Duray won the feature event, the Ventura Sweepstakes, during which he covered a lap in 29 2-5s., the fastest lap ever covered on such a track in the West. Frank Lockhard was second, forcing Duray to extend his car all through the race.

Lockhard won a ten-lap light car race from Jack Petticord by two feet after the drivers had battled hub to hub all the way. The ten-mile handicap was won by Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, who drove an Essex to victory over Lockhard and a big field. Roberts also won the Australian pursuit race with Meicher second. The cars which have been seen often at Ascot took the turns in a side-wise position as the track here is a flat unbanked horse course.

A big delegation of Los Angeles speed fans, including Ralph De Palma and Val Haresnape of the A.A.A. contest board, was in attendance. The races were run under the sanction of the I.M.C.A. Bobby Vanderlip officiated as starter.

Nationally Famous Tennis Stars Start Play in Southern California Tourney Today

TILDEN AMONG THOSE PRESENT

Champion to Defend Crown Won Last Year

Roland Roberts and Wallace Bates Entered

Absence of Local Stars Takes Kick Out of Play

BY BRAVEN DYER

With William Tilden II, national singles champion, entered as defender of the 1923 title, play will start at 10 o'clock this morning in the annual Southern California tennis tournament at the Los Angeles Club courts. Tilden defeated Manuel Alonso, Spanish star, in the finals of last year's tourney, but will hardly have such glit-edged competition this time due to the absence of most of the local stars.

Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Wesbrook, regarded as the best of the Los Angeles players, are still in the East and the burden of upholding the honor of our fair city will fall upon the shoulders of Tom Ferrandini and Harold Godshall, two youthful racquet wielders. This pair is best when playing together in the doubles and should at least give a good account of themselves when on the court at the same time.

Two stars from San Francisco have sent in their entries for the tournament. They are Wallace Bates and Roland Roberts, both of whom are capable of playing splendid tennis when in proper condition. Reports from the north indicate that Roberts has been doing extremely well of late.

Tilden has brought with him his 16-year-old protege, Sandy Weiner, who is to get plenty of opposition from several young stars from San Francisco. They are Bradshaw Harrison, Cranton Holman, Bobby Sellers and Harry McKee. Local fans will remember Sellers as the chap who trounced Weiner last year here. Holman has been playing well lately, but Harrison is regarded as the find of the season in the bay district, having given Holman a terrible run of it recently. Rod Houser is probably the best of the local entries in the junior play. All of these will take part in the regular tourney, however, and are good enough to make anybody hustle.

Two other players with Tilden are Alfred Chapin, Jr., and Donald Strachan, the latter being entered in the junior tourney.

MISSOURIAN MAULS PIRATES SINGLEHANDED

The Montebello Cubs set an example for their older brothers, the Montebello Merchants, and defeated the Pico Pirates at Montebello yesterday by a score of 10 to 1. Chaney, left-handed, angular, freckle-faced, knock-kneed and from Missouri, was the big factor in the Cubs' win holding the Pirates to three scattered hits. All three were singles. The score:

CROSSMAN IS HIGH MAN IN RIFLE SHOOT

Steininger Encounters Tough Luck and Loses in Close Finish

One E. E. Steininger proved to be the hard luck kid at the Sunday shoot of the Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver Club by hanging up high scores in the morning that looked like winning form, and then taking second or third in both of the events, his records being second in the Price match, third in the Crossman match, and second in the Silver Trophy.

The second leg of the Price trophy match taken down by Capt. Crossman with 206 offhand, after the 202 of Steininger was hung up. As 201 has been high score in the offhand events thus far, this seemed like worse than usual luck to the second man in the party.

Stan Hart of Pasadena won the Crossman match for the second time, three wins being necessary, his 231 ex 250 with a .22 rifle at 200 yards being proof of good holding and wind judgment. A puff of wind at this range moves the .22 bullet several feet if the proper allowance is not made and provided for.

The special Silver trophy match of ten shots kneeling saw the boy wonder, J. O. Gardiner, high with the record-tying score of 220, this having been made only once before in the various competitions.

Billy Bevan, of Keystone fame, recently joined the rifle club, and it is hoped that he can put some comedy in some of the shoots for the fellows who run into the sort of luck enjoyed by Steininger.

OLYMPIC GAMES OFFICIALLY END

appropriate music by a band and a choir. Coming at the conclusion of the picturesque equestrian sports, the closing ceremonies also were participated in by the competitors in these and a brilliantly uniformed bugle corps of the Republican guards. Less than half the nations which received awards for the performances of their athletes were personally represented. France acted on behalf of the absentees, among whom were the Argentines, whose representatives departed homeward several days ago.

The ranks of the athletes and officials of all nations had been depleted rapidly last week, and it was a small band of the survivors that marched into the stadium today behind the flags of the victorious nations, most of which were borne, in the absence of their nationals, by French marines.

The American delegation, practically all of whom will depart tomorrow on the America for the homeward voyage, was by far the largest. The Stars and Stripes were carried by Clarence Houser, University of Southern California, the shot put and discus champion.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the Olympic flag was turned over to the city of Paris, which will retain it four years and then hand it over to the Dutch authorities to be used in the 1928 games in Amsterdam.

The final tabulation included several changes. The total of the United States was reduced one point by shifting that country from fifth to sixth place in the gymnastic standing. Two South American nations are in the scoring column, Argentina rating twelfth with thirteen points and Uruguay thirteenth with ten points. The final point tabulation is as follows:

United States, 94; France, 64; Sweden, 44½; Great Britain, 41 1-4; Finland, 34; Norway, 31 1-4; Switzerland, 29½; Italy, 25 3-4; Holland, 19; Belgium, 17 3-4; Denmark, 17; Argentina, 15; Uruguay, 10; Hungary, 8; Czecho-Slovakia, 8; Esthonia, 7; Austria, 5; Rumania, 4; Jugo-Slavia, 4; Spain, 3; Australia, 3; Portugal, 2; South Africa, 1; Haiti, 1; Egypt, 3-4; Poland, 1-4.

MERMEN AND MAIDS PERFORM FOR SOCIETY FOLK

Here are scenes shot at the Ambassador plunge swimfest yesterday afternoon. In the upper picture the young ladies are shown pulling a little novelty stunt in the water, in which nighties and candles played an important part. In the lower left Dudley Steele, winner of the fancy high dive is shown doing a swan dive. Margerite Bunton, tied hand and foot, appears in the other picture just before she dropped into the water. Her stunt might have proved fatal but for the timely arrival of masculine assistance. Here was a chance for some movie star to perform a heroic stunt. There were many of them present, but none cared to lose the crease in his trousers. (Photos by P. & A.)

SWIMMER HAS CLOSE CALL

Margerite Bunton Pulled from Tank After Making Freak Dive in Ambassador Plunge

BY FRANK B. HOWE

Art Margraff, manager of the Ambassador plunge, had to use a shoe horn to get the crowd within range of the tank yesterday when Roger Cornell put on one of the best aquatic shows, from a spectator's standpoint, that has ever been seen in these parts. Roger had spectators hanging on every available point of vantage and then there were some that couldn't make the grade.

The most sensational happening of the day occurred when Margerite Bunton, swimming with hands and feet tied, tried to do too much and found herself helpless after swimming a length and a half of the tank, following a dive. Things looked serious for a few minutes until some heroic gents hopped in and pulled Margerite to shore. She gave a remarkably plucky exhibition.

Cornell has brought something to these parts that will do the swimming game a great amount of good in that his exhibitions are arranged in such fashion that there are no tiresome features. He intersperses the real swimming and diving contests with unexpected novelties that relieve the tension. For example, three waiters serving a bevy of fair damsels at the tables on the east side of the plunge suddenly got into a hot argument that to all appearances was genuine. It ended with the waiters being shoved into the tank by the young ladies' escort, greatly to the crowd's glee.

Any number of other similar on-the-side stunts kept things moving at a rapid pace all afternoon.

NOVELTY RACE

The principal novelty race was programmed as a "night-shirt race." Girls garbed in long night-gowns and carrying lighted candles were sent into the tank, the object being to swim the length of the tank in the encumbering garments without letting the candle go out.

A remarkable diving exhibition by 8-year-old Dorothy Poynton astounded seasoned diving experts. This youngster performed difficult dives—the one and a half gainer, for example—with surprising success. Her jackknife dive, both front and back, is almost unbelievably good.

Among the straight competitive events, special attention should go to the men's fancy diving contest. This event, won by Dudley Steele, brings home the fact that Southern California has some mighty promising material among the younger divers. They may not be Clarence Pinkstons and Al Whites right now, but the boys that competed yesterday have a splendid groundwork on which to work. If the old adage about practice making perfection is true, they all stand a pretty good chance to do something later on.

BOOST SWIM GAME

Another series of novelties that will do the swimming game a lot of good are the baby races Cornell is encouraging. There were three of these yesterday. Exactly as novelties and unexpected features will do the game good by making things interesting for the public and thereby encouraging their attendance and interest in aquatic sports, just so will these races for the babies encourage them to a lively interest in keeping up their swimming and diving. Cornell even had a race for youngsters who couldn't swim. He put them in water wings so they couldn't sink and started them off in a real race with a squad of men on hand to jump in and pull 'em out if anything went wrong. Another race was for youngsters under 6 years of age who could swim. The kids did remarkably well.

Prior to the contests, a fifteen-minute vaudeville show on a platform at one end of the tank served to warm up the crowd and promote a friendly atmosphere.

The results:

Fancy diving, men—Dudley Steele, Bill Cady, Gordon Carveth.

Baby race, free style—Cohn, Blake, Kahn.

Baby race, water wings—Jacqueline Saunders, James Ridder, Marion Loomis.

Nightshirt race—Lois Barry, Coralie Smith, Helen Church.

High diving—Dudley Steele, Gordon Carveth, Jack Weld, Harvey Perry, Paul Malvern (non-competitive).

WHEN TUNNEY DIMMED THE BRILLIANCE OF GORGEOUS GEORGES

Georges Carpentier, fistic idol of France, made his last stand at the New York Polo Grounds last Thursday night and lost at the hands of Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, who scored a technical knockout in the fourteenth round. The picture on the left shows Carpentier holding his stomach after receiving a right-handed blow in the fourteenth which he claimed was a foul, but which the referee allowed. It was the blow that ended the match. The photo on the right shows Carpentier knocked flat on the floor in the tenth round, while Tunney stood ready for him to rise only to knock him down again. These pictures were rushed west by the Pacific and Atlantic Photo Service.

Movie City Merchants Take 4-to-3 Victory

Defeat Huntington Parkers in Return Game

Rall and Weaver Features of Tight Tussle

Floyd Carleton's Hollywood Merchants got revenge on the Huntington Park Merchants by beating them in a 4-to-3 game at Hollywood yesterday. This makes twenty victories out of twenty-one starts for the Hollywood nine. Huntington Park took the only game from them a few weeks ago.

Elmer Rall and Buck Weaver, a pair of schoolboys, were Carleton's whole team. Rall got a pair of doubles and Weaver got a double and a single. The two boys made three of Hollywood's four runs. This is the first game Huntington Park has lost since Del Porto has managed the team. The score:

VENETIANS TRIUMPH OVER MONTEREY PARK

Venice made an auspicious entry into the ranks of the local semipro leagues by trimming Monterey Park, 8 to 4, at Monterey Park yesterday. Venice only got six hits, but counted several runs on the errors of the losers. German and Robinson were the big stars with the bat, each getting two hits during the day. The score:

LOCAL LAUGHS

Each week The Times produces a film entitled "Local Laughs," consisting of the fifteen best jokes submitted by local people. Weekly prizes are paid of $5, $3, $2, and twelve of $1 each. A list of theaters showing the film, together with rules for submitting jokes are given daily in a coupon in The Times. Prize-winning jokes, and names and addresses of winners, appear only on the screen. Jokes receiving honorable mention will be given a place of honor on The Times' comic page each week-day, and each of these contributors will receive a souvenir of acknowledgment.

FOURTEEN NEW WELLS IN KERN

Week's Record is Best So Far This Year

Six Started in Midway Field; Four in Elk Hills

Fullest Wells Reported on Mojave Desert

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 27.—Fourteen new oil wells were started in Kern county during the past week, this being the largest number of wells spudded in during a like period this year. One well is reported to have been started in Tulare county and another in Kings county.

Six wells were begun in the Midway fields as follows: Midland Oil Fields Company, Ltd., Nos. 10 and 11, Section 24, 31-23; Victor Oil Company, No. 11, Section 25, 31-23; General Petroleum Corporation, No. 6, Section 32, 31-24; Pacific Oil Company, No. 122, Section 35, 31-23; North American Consolidated, No. 19, Section 3, 11-24.

Four were spudded in in the Elk Hills: Pacific Oil Company, No. 4, Section 35, 30-24; Belridge Oil Company, Nos. 8 and 9, Section 34, 30-24; Associated Oil Company, No. 14, Section 26, 30-24.

The Vandruff Petroleum, Inc., has begun drilling its No. 1 well in the Devil's Den and the Standard Oil Company has commenced its No. 15 on Wheeler Ridge, Section 2, 11-20.

Out on the Mojave Desert where several wildcat wells are now being drilled the Red Rock Oil Association has begun its No. 1 on Section 19, 30-34 and in the same neighborhood R. H. Shannon has spudded his No. 1 well on Section 1, 11-37.

C. T. Johnson has started his test well in Tulare county on Section 11, 24-23 and Associated Oil Company, has spudded in its No. 1 well on Section 12, 23-18 in Kings county.

C. T. Johnson has started his test well in Tulare county on Section 17, 24-23 and Associated Oil Company has spudded in its No. 1 well on Section 12, 23-18 in Kings county.

Four deepening and redrilling jobs were reported for Kern during the past week and six tests for water shutoff were made.

In the San Joaquin Valley oil fields production totaled 6,272,735 barrels during June, according to figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute. The institute's figures for the month previous were for 6,465,268 as the total, which shows a decrease of 192,535 barrels. The daily average for June was 216,091 barrels.

The June production in the San Joaquin Valley came from seven new listed as producers. During the month there were thirteen new wells completed, having as an initial daily production of 3,240 barrels of oil. During the month 27 thirty new rigs were erected and 127 wells were being newly drilled.

The production for the valley as produced by fields was as follows: Midway-Sunset, 3,247,200 barrels; Kern River, 560,788; McKittrick, 169,422; Lost Hills-Belridge, 169,710; Wheeler Ridge, 31,-

It is interesting to note that the Wheeler Ridge production has increased from 208 barrels in June, 1923, to 31,233 barrels in June, 1924.

Twenty Rigs Up in Section Once Thought Barren

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TAFT, July 27.—The Pacific Oil Company has completed the erection of its rig on the No. 10 located in Section 29, 31-24, just below Forty-six Hill, following the decision of a group of six rigs in the North American Oil Company's district.

The territory, several months ago, was virtually barren country as regarded by most operators. At present there are more than twenty completed on the property. The Oil Company plans to bring its No. 10 well shortly and put it to completion because of the interest the producers have shown in the North American Pacific on this property. Only a half-mile east of the well the Southwest Petroleum Co. is completing a rig on Section 31-24, a short distance from a well which was drilled by the company and completed as a gusher and a few months ago, which was later abandoned because the casing collapsed three days after the oil sand was struck. The wells are some distance from other wells in the district.

HARLAND GETS LEASE

Farm to 640 Acres Southwest of Lost Hills Filed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 27.—The Belridge Oil Company has obtained a 640-acre lease in the district to the west of the Lost Hills field, according to an agreement filed in this city at the office of the recorder of Kern county at Bakersfield.

The lease was leased by John W. Harland from Cleason for a period of twenty years at one-eighth royalty, with six months in which operations to be started. The land is described as the E. 1/2 of Sec. 1-4 and E. 1-2 of Sec. 2-24 and S. W. 1-4 of S. E. 1/4 of Sec. 34; also the W. 1-2 of S. W. 1-4 and W. 1-2 of S. W. 1-4 of E. 1-2 of S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 35, all in Township 26, S. R. 23 E. M. D. B. & M.

KITTRICK FIELD WELL IS SHUT-OFF

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MCKITTRICK, July 27.—The O. K. Oil Company, operating on Section 33, 30-23 in the McKittrick field, has filed notice that it has struck a water shut-off in its No. 1 well and the company only has one well on the property.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and inspect, with letter accompanying, stating what tests are desired. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big envelopes. Correspondents offering matter for analysis with cards, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will hereafter receive no attention. Analyses are made free of charge.

Platinum Absent

LOS ANGELES, July 7.—Question: While on a trip twenty miles east of Daggett, Cal., I ran across a peculiar, white and soft, rock which was heavily impregnated with what looks like black sand, but, under the glass, it looks quite different, and it is quite "draggy" in the pan. Does it contain any platinum? S.

Answer: The sample consists of microscopical grains of quartz particles with crystallized quartz, also microscopic. Traces of crystallized ilmenite (titanifer o us iron,) and proxene present. The drag noticed in panning is probably caused by magnetite traces.

Dendritic Manganese

KINGMAN (Ariz.) July 7.—Q.: I am sending you three samples. I would like to have them classified and to learn if any of them represent commercial values? M.

A.: Sample "No. 1 yellow" is a mixture of lime carbonate, clay, hydrous magnesium silicate and halite (common table salt.) The milk-white specimens, not numbered, are of silicates; they react for aluminum silicate, magnesium silicate and quartz. "No. 2 gray" consists of hydrous magnesium silicate chiefly, and is coated with fern-like characters of what is known to the mining boys in the hills as forest rock (dendritic manganese.) Lime carbonate and clay, each, more or less present. The samples are rather doubtful minerals of value, and, it is probable that koalin occurs near the locality from which the specimens were taken.

Nodular Calcite

PATTON, July 8.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of rock, which I would like to have an analysis made thereon. Has it any commercial value? S.

A.: The sample is nodular lime carbonate, and mineral represented by the sample has more or less value for fertilizer mixtures.

Marl

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—Q.: Please find what this sample is and what it contains. M.

A.: It is a spongiform variety of lime carbonate, suitable for fertilizer and lime mixtures.

Fahlerz

REDLANDS, July 8.—Q.: I am sending you a tobacco-can with a bottle in it containing concentrates. I am sorry I have not more of this. There is a heavy powder in this mixture that falls back when panning the concentrates. I am anxious to know what this mixture consists of. K.

A.: The finely-crushed rock mixture carries traces of arsenical pyrite and a small percentage of magnetite, with low-grade tetrahedrite (falherz.) The whitish-yellow matter contains a sticky powder which seems to be scorodite with baryte. Scorodite is a variety of arsenical iron.

Three Samples

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—Q.: It would be greatly appreciated if you would please let me know what inclosed samples are and if they have any commercial value? They were found near the surface of a mountain (not very high,) in Riverside county, near Hemet. R.

A.: Sample No. 1 is a mixture of aluminum silicate and mica schist containing small flakes of potash mica (muscovite,) and it carries no pyrophyllite, which is often foliated like talc. No. 2 is a mixture of hornblendic rock with feldspathic matter. No. 3 contains some gypsum, hornblende and pyroxene. Commercial value of minerals represented by the samples is problematical.

Tellurium Absent

GLENDALE, July 10.—Q.: I am sending you samples from the Seven Devils, Idaho. No. 1 is from an outcrop of two-foot ledges; does it contain gray copper, and what is the dark-blue mineral? No. 2, specular iron and epidote; do they indicate commercial values? Is No. 3 of value as a copper ore? Can you detect traces of tellurium or selenium in No. 4. H.

A.: Sample No. 1 appears to be from stringers in the ledges. The traces of microscopic blue and green spots in the samples react for copper. Indigo copper (covellite) detected. Iron phosphate and epidote traces. The reddish matter in the samples are of iron, with traces of erythrite (cobalt bloom.) Tetrahedrite (gray copper,) traces only. Manganese, iron and graphite noted. No. 2 consists of two (properly classified by you) samples: epidote and hematite (micaceous iron ore.) The epidote variety is handsomely crystallized and of pistachio-green color; it should be salable to dealers in minerals for colleges, mineral collections, private cabinets and so forth. No. 4 reacts for copper, iron and arsenic. Zinc in low percentage. No selenium reaction. The Seven Devils range of mountains carry a great number of interesting minerals: it is probable that nickel ores occur near the locality from which the specimens were obtained. Silver may be in all of your samples, but silver and gold fire assays are not within the purview of this department of The Times. No. 3 should be of value as an ore of copper, providing that the sample is not a selected one of more than average copper sulphide value.

Five Samples

CEDAR CITY (Utah) July 11.—Q.: In this prescription box please find two samples of rock and three mineral samples, all from a distance of seven miles from Cedar City. Will you kindly classify the specimens and greatly oblige.

PITT.

A.: It is a pleasure to comply with your wishes in so far as we possibly can. Sample No. 1 is the rock trachyte. No. 2 is not a rock; it is the mineral known as vermiculite which is a variety of pyroscelerite, and it resembles talc in appearance. "When heated at 500 to 600 degrees the scaly sample divides into worm-like threads made up of separated laminae of cleavage, swelling out to nearly 100 times the original length with such force as to burst the glass tube in which they are confined and scatter the fragments to a distance." The writer has often compared this variety of vermiculite to "Pharoah's serpents" (a chemical mixture,) which can be purchased from chemical supply dealers. Vermiculite is a hydrous silicate of aluminum, magnesium and iron. No. 3 is also trachyte, and it carries gem quality topaz crystals. No. 4 is egg-yellow potash copperas, known as jarosite, and it carries no lead value. No. 5 is part of a geode of chalcedony (quarts) containing calcite crystals in its "innards."

Free Gold Absent

FULLERTON, July 12.—Q.: For gold and platinum. E. T. L.

A.: Chemically, the rock sample is chiefly hornblendic, with iron silicate present. Reaction for platinum is negative. For other gold values you are referred to assayers.

Free Gold Absent

SIERRA MADRE, July 6.—Q.: I am sending you a little bottle of mineral to analyze. Will the mineral pay to work it? M.

A.: The sand carries approximately 20 per cent magnetite; quarts and titaniferous iron with traces only of iron-copper sulphides. Rather a doubtful showing.

Late Reports From California's Great Petroleum Pools

OFFSET BEGUN AT MARICOPA

Standard Starts Derrick to North of Monte Cristo

Sunset Field Bailing Effort Has Fine Sand Showing

Refinery to be Ready Soon for Company Operation

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MARICOPA, July 27. — The Standard Oil Company has started a derrick in the southwest corner of Section 26, 12-24, offsetting the 1-A Webster well on Section 30, 11-23 of the General Petroleum Corporation, which came in recently with 240 barrels of 15-gravity oil from a depth of 2100 feet. This is on the M. J. and M. and M. property just north of the Monte Cristo, which is one of the oldest producing properties in the Sunset field.

The cement has been drilled out of the No. 1 well of Charles A. Son on the northeast quarter of Section 32, 12-23, Sunset field, and bailing has been started for a test of the water shut-off. The well is 3920 feet deep and has a fine showing of sand. The well is being drilled by Pugh & Miller.

J. L. Hilsey, president of the Lake View No. 2 Oil Company, was in the fields Saturday and stated that the 3000-barrel refinery being built by the company on its property on Section 4, 11-23 will be ready for operation within a few days and will refine the production from the company's wells as well as outside oil which is to be purchased.

Work on the E. G. Lewis No. 6 well on Section 10, 11-23 on the San Emidio Flats beyond Pentland Junction has been shut down, those in charge deciding to wait for results from some of the other wells drilling one-fourth to one-half a mile distant, in order that they may get more data upon which to proceed with the work. While drillers were working to bring in the well at 4856 feet, the sands heaved up, filling the hole for about 240 feet and the last two weeks have been spent in drilling this out.

NEW FIELD IN TEXAS

Two Wells Brought in Fifty Miles From Spindle Top

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HIGH ISLAND (Tex.) July 27. At High Island, situated about twenty-five miles east of Galveston and approximately fifty miles southwest of the pioneer and fabulous oil field of Spindle Top, two oil wells have been brought in recently which are attracting much attention in circles devoted to that industry.

Both of these wells are close to the waters of the Gulf and are in a locality in which intermittent prospecting for oil has been carried on for more than twenty years. The most surprising thing about the discovery is that one of the wells has a daily production of about 450 barrels a day at 196 feet, under pump, while the other is flowing 400 barrels a day at a depth of 3339 feet. The deeper well is owned by the Sun Company, and the shallow well belongs to the Patton interests.

OIL GUSHER LOOKED FOR BY DRILLERS

Speculation on Outcome is Cause of Activities in Kern Bluffs Field

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 27.—Speculation as to the outcome of the drilling going on at Kern Bluffs, six miles northeast of Bakersfield, by the Pan-American Petroleum Company, in virgin territory, is occupying much of the attention of operators in Kern county just now.

Pan-American has moved lumber onto the bluffs for the construction of six new derricks, which is an indication that there is no lack of faith in the project.

The No. 1 well of the Pan-American, now said to be approximately 2900 feet deep, is keeping landowners and leaseholders awake nights, dreaming of possibilities of the future. It is said that geologists for the company are camping on the ground night and day and that tests are being made of every bit of earth brought up from the hole. During the past week reports have come from the property that sufficient oil sand has been passed through to warrant the bringing in of the well on a commercial basis within the next week, but if the company exercises the same discretion it has maintained at El Segundo, in Southern California, the public may long be kept from the real facts in the case.

Pan-American, besides having lumber on the ground for six new derricks, is said to have installed two more boilers at the No. 1 well. This is taken as an indication that the well may come in as a gusher.

All sorts of rumors have been flying about. The officials of the company prefer to hide the real facts behind a high board fence which has been erected around the well.

Whether or not a gusher is obtained in this first well, it is reasonably sure that other wells will be drilled in the vicinity. The St. Helens Petroleum Company, which also has leaseholds on much acreage in the vicinity, has prepared to start a well, and will go ahead with drilling at once, it is understood.

NEW WELL SPUDDED IN BY MIDWAY

Company Reports Activity in Sunset Field; Lilly to Start in Hovey Hills

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TAFT, July 27.—The Midway Oil Company has spudded in its No. 8 well on the Alpine lease, Section 36, 32-23 in the Midway fields and has been going ahead with the drilling steadily. The Midway now has three wells drilling on this property, all started during the past two months, the wells being the No. 5, No. 7 and No. 8.

On Section 28, 12-24 in the Sunset district, the Midway has started its No. 9 and good progress is reported. This is the only active well of the company on that property, but the company has seven active wells on Sections 34 and 35, 12-24 in the Sunset fields, two on 35 and five on 34.

Work is to start soon on the No. 2 well of the Lilly Oil Company on Section 36, 32-23 in the Hovey Hills field. The well has been standing idle for several days but plans are being made to again put the rig on the active list. The No. 1 well of the company on the same property, which was perforated for 100 feet some time ago by the D. L. Shull Perforating Company, continues to produce about twenty-five barrels per day. The company is striving to increase its production.

The deep test hole of the Mascot Oil Company in the Hovey Hills district on Section 36, 12-23, is down about 1240 feet and drilling is being continued. It is planned to drill the well to a depth of approximately 3000 feet in order that the sands obtained by the No. 2 well of the Kendon Petroleum Company, which brought in the finest producers of that section at about 2600 feet, may be reached.

The twelve and one-half-inch casing was set in this hole at 523 feet.

Maricopa Well Flow Checked by Sanding Up

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MARICOPA, July 27.—After flowing ten months without secession, the Transport Oil Company's Bush well on Maricopa Flat in the Sunset field, has sanded up and is reported to be temporarily on the "sick" list. The company has not expressed an opinion as to what is to be done, but it is believed that the well will be cleaned out and put on production again soon.

The well came in September 11, 1923, with a pressure of 500 pounds, and produced more than 3000 barrels of oil daily for a time. Then water began to show up and production fell off. A trap was put in to separate the water from the oil and the well produced for a time at 1300 barrels daily. In ten months, it is asserted, the well produced 591,000 barrels of oil above that used at the well for fuel.

The E. G. Lewis Syndicate has shut down its No. 6 well in the Sunset district and will await developments on adjoining leases. The well is about 4860 feet deep, and while working at this depth the hole sanded up and work has been progressing in drilling out about 240 feet of this sand that clogged the hole.

CALIFORNIANS BUY MINE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PATAGONIA (Ariz.) July 27.—The Gray brothers' mine of twenty claims has been sold to a California company for approximately $200,000. The new owners are to start work at once blocking out known ore bodies for shipment or reduction.

MARKET SURVEY MADE FOR WEEK

Interest Centers on Grain and London Parley

Cotton Advances Sharply on Bullish Report

Safeguard for German Loan Seen Essential

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 27.—Continued strength in grain prices, persistence of ease in money and progress of the London conference shared attention in business and financial circles last week.

While fluctuations in wheat and corn widened with increased speculative activity, values were well maintained. New high prices were achieved during the week. A bullish crop estimate from Alberta and reports of black rust in Manitoba were sustaining factors. Foreign markets were strong.

Cotton jumped sharply on an unexpected bullish government crop report. The latter set the condition on the 16th inst. at 68.5 per cent, as against expectations of about 72 per cent.

RISE IN COTTON

The rise in cotton, which amounted to nearly 2 cents a pound, was not considered, however, a favorable development for the textile industry, already embarrassed by the high cost of raw material.

It was recalled that the recent Census Bureau figures on consumption during June showed that curtailment had brought operations in the mills down close to the low point reached in the depression of 1921.

Money rates show practically no change, with the call rate on the New York Stock Exchange remaining at 3 per cent day after day. There was no appreciable change in the tone of the market. The Federal Reserve Bank statement showed that discounts were still falling off and that open market purchases of short-term government paper were not sufficient to keep up the level of earning assets. Meanwhile, reserves, chiefly of gold, continued to mount.

In the best-informed quarters the deadlock that has developed at the London conference over the question of the security for a German loan is an occasion for regret, but not for surprise. The financial view of the matter is that a German loan cannot be sold unless ample safeguards are provided—that investors, in other words, will be exacting.

EFFECTS OVERCOME

Reports from domestic industry suggested that the effects of the burst of overproduction early in the year were being overcome. In the steel trade, for example, stocks in consumers' hands were reported to be reduced to small proportions, with production clearly being adjusted to consumption.

Output was at approximately 40 per cent of capacity and new buying was perhaps 10 per cent smaller. The outlook for steel now depends on developments in the consuming industry. Consumption admittedly is low and expectations of improvement are moderate.

Instances of poor earnings and reduced dividend distributions came to light during the week. These were accepted as natural consequences of the industrial reaction that occurred in the second quarter of the year.

One of the most encouraging developments of the week was the report of a steady increase in employment at Detroit and other automobile centers.

OILFIELDS WELLS IN COALINGA CEMENTED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 27. — The American Oilfields Company, a subsidiary of the California Petroleum Corporation, has two wells standing cemented in the Coalinga district. The wells are the No. 58 on Section 32, cemented at 3394 feet and the No. 23 on Section 30, standing at 3615 feet. All of the other wells of the company are idle with the exception of the No. 8 on Section 18, which is drilling ahead at 1739 feet.

PERMIAN FORMATION LESS THAN EXPECTED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 27.—Col. E. A. Humphreys, whose Boyd Oil Company of Texas is seeking to find a connecting link between fields of Northern Oklahoma and Southwestern Oklahoma, in Kingfisher county, has found the Permian formation in his test near Okarche to be 1920 feet thick, or about 300 feet thinner than was forecast by F. Julius Fohs, the company's geologist. Benwath the Permian shales and lime shells were found. The test is drilling sixty feet in hard lime at 2500 feet.

WILL GET TELEPHONES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

RACOIMA, July 27.—The construction of a telephone line to accommodate the Hansen Heights community is being started. The service will be supplied by the Sunland Rural Telephone Company. Installation of the new service calls for the placing of poles, laying cable and stringing wires, as the district will be listed with the Tujunga and Sunland service rather than with the San Fernando Valley exchange.

INTEREST IN WEST FRONT HOLE GROWS

Marland No. 1 in Kern is Making Rapid Progress Since Start, 17th Inst.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 27.—Marland No. 1 on Sec. 16, 28-27, west front of the Kern River field, is making good footage since being spudded in the 17th inst. The hole was put down 400 feet in the first twenty-four hours and steady gains have been made daily. It is expected to complete the well at 2800 feet in the third sand, about the depth of Standard No. 2 on section 5 in the same township. Interest in the west front is growing and the Union Oil Company recently completed its No. 7 on Sec. 11, 28-27, adding another good producer to its forty-acre holding. It is said the Union refines the entire output of this lease for lubricants.

Drilling on the Commerce test well on Sec. 36, 28-28 has been resumed by the O. D. Parks organization, which recently secured a heavy interest in the enterprise. The old casing in the well has been pulled and the hole is down 1950 feet with a six-inch string. Drilling will be pushed day and night. The Commerce is three miles east of the old Kern River field and the nearest wells are poor producers in shallow territory. The Commerce has had a heavy gas flow and its development is being watched with great interest by oil men.

Leasing activity is still reported from the Edison district of Kern County, a few miles east of Bakersfield. The Marland has acquired a sixty-acre leasehold there, according to documents filed in the Kern County Hall of Records. The land is described as the N. W. 1-4 of N. W. 1-4 and W. 1-2 of N. E. 1-4 of N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 30, 29-29. The lease is for twenty years at one-eighth royalty and the regular three-year drilling clause is embodied.

Drilling of well No. 4 on Sec. 15, 27-28, north of Poso Creek, Kern county, by the Sanberg Petroleum Company of Los Angeles has been held up, it is said, pending negotiations with T. A. Piper, the pioneer wildcatter of the district. According to reports the well encountered a light showing of oil at 1250 feet. Piper holds leases to large acreage in the district.

BARREN ISLE HOLDS HOPE OF OIL MEN

Six Ask for Permits to Drill on San Nicolas Off California Coast

San Nicolas Island, a barren and desolate bit of land sixty miles southwest of Catalina Island, may figure prominently in the romance of modern business if the calculations of six local men are correct. It is the purpose of these men to prospect on the island for oil, and in furtherance of that plan they have filed applications with the local Land Office for oil and gas permits.

That San Nicolas Island is a likely place to prospect for oil is shown by investigations and reports made by Charles F. Carrol, a geologist of Venice, who is one of the six men filing application for permission to prospect on the island, which now is occupied solely by the government for lighthouse purposes. Associated with Mr. Carrol in the venture are C. C. C. Tatum, Oscar B. Luce, Jacob G. Kemper, Walter M. Lenz and G. A. B. Champney.

The island is about sixteen square miles in extent. The six permits would cover practically the entire island. Messrs. Carrol, Luce and Kemper have applied for permits covering two square miles each. The other applications designate one square mile each.

Application was made for the permits following a recent visit to the island by the applicants. As the Land Office does not have jurisdiction over insular possessions, the applications have been forwarded to the Treasury Department, which controls land used for lighthouse purposes

Huge Deal for Oil Land Closed in New Mexico

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ROSWELL (N. M.) July 27.—The closing of the largest deal for oil lands up to this time in Southeastern New Mexico was officially announced today wherein the Benedum-Trees interests of Pittsburg acquired 30,000 acres in Southwestern Chaves county, which area is known as the Manning Dome. Representatives of the land and geological department of this organization have been here for some time, but nothing authentic has been given out prior to this time.

The Benedum-Trees interests own and control the following oil companies: The Trans-Continental Oil Company, the Arkansas Natural Gas Company, the Big Lake Oil Company and the Arkansis Fuel Oil Company.

The drilling operations in Southeastern New Mexico will be carried on through the Arkansas Fuel Oil Company. Before leaving last night, one of the representatives of the last named company, stated that the company contemplated the starting of a well on the Manning Dome within the next sixty days, and that it is hoped it will be completed by the time the snow flies.

READY TO DRILL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TAFT, July 27.—The Pan-American Petroleum Company is about to drill-in its No. 3 well on Section 34, 30-24 where the company now has six wells producing. The depth is 2700 feet.

GREEN MOUNT STRIKES TOLD

Activity Greatest Since Old Bright Star's Day

Hard Work During Post-war Period Rewarded

Assays Put Mining District to Fore Again

Not since the old Bright Star mine turned up its million or so in the early sixties to the crude mining methods of the period has the Green Mountain mining district given more than an inkling of the golden hoard that lies beneath its pine-clad slopes.

Comes now the report of several recent strikes by some of the new prospectors who have been persistent enough to stay with the game through the post-war period of mining uncertainty. On a recent visit to the locality, indications of reviving activity were met at every turn.

The old Granite King mine is being re-opened by W. L. Rice, who found pay ore for the owners after it had been lost by previous lessors.

MILLS BUSY

The Esperanza of the Goulets is bombarding the air with the sound of its stamp, ball and disc mills, and everything points to a good season.

The Geninger brothers needed a road from Kelso Valley to these properties. The old St. John grade was impassable so two or three miners volunteered to help, the county supplied about a ton of powder and a scraper, and the boys built a road that by now reaches the summit of the Piute, or the mesa immediately below it.

Jim Mack, who has prospected in the district for over twenty years, has some good claims, and the assays from the three shafts will run over $20 average in free gold, reports say.

A rumor of rich telluride gold from a cross-cut of the old Bright Star workings, being operated in a spasmodic way by the Nykirk interests could not be substantiated, although there is no doubt about $300 telluride having been found in spots.

Jack Potter's tunnel near Erskine Creek is 150 feet in the vein, and shows no sign of diminishing either in quantity or value. It is reported to run more than $40 to the ton and may be developed this fall or next spring by Eastern capital, if the offers now made to the owner are accepted.

A number of claims to be opened by a Los Angeles Syndicate show surface assays of $25 and better.

A well-founded report is heard that the old Bright Star mine is about to be re-opened by Eastern mining capital.

PAN-AMERICAN AT WORK ON NEW WELL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TUPMAN, July 27.—The No. 4-G well of the Pan-American Petroleum Company on the Crampton-G lease, Section 2, 31-24 in the Elk Hills was spudded in a few days ago and, according to reports, is to be rushed to completion. The well is the only one on the Crampton-G lease, although the company has several other wells on the active list in the Elk Hills section.

REVIVAL SEEN IN OLD FIELDS

Flashes During Week Show Various Increases

New Production Likely to Surpass June Record

Fourteen New Wells at Torrance Reported

Indications of a revival of the older fields of the Los Angeles district were a notable feature of petroleum operations during the past week. In two of the fields considered past their prime—Santa Fe Springs and Olinda—developments indicated that they still are able to show flashes of old-time vim.

At Santa Fe Springs the Bell Oil Company's well increased unaccountably from 400 to 1400 barrels per day, and at Olinda the Union Oil Company's Hole No. 7, which was originally drilled eight years ago, and at one time produced at the rate of 300 barrels per day, was plugged back from 3000 to 2445 feet, and surprised the field with a 1000-barrel flow.

Reports from the various oil fields of the State seemed to indicate that new production for the month is likely to surpass June's record. An important factor in this respect, is the Dominguez field which practically doubled its output in the last two weeks, as the result of a rapid-fire series of completions by the Shell and Union companies.

The Torrance field completed seven new producers last week. The completions were as follows:

RECORD OIL SAND DEPTH DISCOVERED

Fifteen Hundred Feet Found in Signal Hill by Workers

A "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 27.—What is believed to be a record oil-sand depth for the discovery area of Signal Field was made in drilling Hole No. 1 of the Henderson Petroleum Corporation, when more than 1500 feet of oil sand was exposed between the 3500-foot level and the 5000-foot bottom level. Drilling is under way, with the well expected for completion early next week.

The A. T. Jergins Trust company's another substantial producer in the City-Jergins lease during the past week, when the City-Jergins No. 16 was brought in with an initial daily flow of 700 barrels. The well was drilled to 4798 feet, and the Shell Company completed its No. 1-A at 4956 feet, getting 1200 barrels a day.

Two wells are scheduled for completion in the Signal Hill area. They are the Pan-American Petroleum Company's Union No. 4 and the Ramsay-City No. 2. The former is already down to 4447 feet and the latter is down 4000 feet.

The John Jones No. 4 on the General Petroleum lease came in this week with a flow of 600 barrels. The well marks the twenty-first producer on Signal Hill in which Mr. Jones is interested and increases his royalty income materially.

Standard Oil Levy Lowered in Kern County

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD July 27.—Reductions asked by the Standard Oil Company in the county assessment roll of the Tupman lease were partially granted and Miller & Lux was granted reductions asked on its holdings by the Kern county board of Supervisors, meeting as a board of equalization. The Standard Oil Company argued that the Tupman lease should be valued on a valuation of approximately $5,000,000 or less, rather than $17,000,000, the valuation fixed by the County Assessor, claiming that the property was worth no more.

Figures of the company presented figures on which they based their valuation. Angus Criten was then given what he thought would be a figure, the board considering it to be well informed as to the value of all lands.

Mr. Criten took approximate figures from the charts presented by the Standard Oil Company and arrived at an approximate valuation of $14,000,000. Comparing the Standard Oil and Crites's figures, the board agreed that $10,000,000 would be a good valuation of the property. The assessment is made on this figure, making the assessed values for taxation $5,000,000.

WELL IN DELAYED ACTION

Producer Now Flowing 1000 Barrels Daily Had Been Shut In for Several Years as Indifferent Hole

An oil well with a little field all its own has just been uncovered by the Union Oil Company in Orange county. The incident began eight years ago when the Union started drilling its No. 7 well on the Hole lease, a 2000-acre tract, in the Olinda field, about two miles out from Brea. The well was completed the following year. It wasn't a large well and its 200-barrel production, obtained after eighteen months of hard drilling through the 3000 feet of stubborn formation, was disappointing to field men in charge of the work.

Last Thursday, last seven years after its inauspicious completion, the well, having apparently decided that its career had been too uneventful, performed in a way which attracted the attention and interest of oil operators all over the State.

Originally a producer from 3000 feet, hole No. 7 was plugged back to 2447 feet, from which depth it came in, flowing 1000 barrels daily into the tanks.

Its performance is one of the strangest on record. When the original Hole No. 7 was drilled in 1916 the casing collapsed at 2500 feet and oil was spattered over all the surrounding country. Officials knew that a sand existed at that depth, and, on redrilling, made preparations to handle a gusher. Their disappointment was therefore keen when a 200-barrel well from 3000 feet resulted.

OIL SAND ABSENT

The disappointment was increased when No. 8, the next well on the lease, was drilled. This project was carefully cored at 2500 feet and no oil sand found to exist.

After several years of consistent production No. 7 was shut in. Last February it was decided to redrill the old-timer and go after that 2500-foot showing of 1916. The result was Thursday's derrick-splintering performance.

The depth at which the 1000-barrel production was obtained is 2447 feet, 500 feet shallower than the original depth of the well. Its yield is one of the best in Southern California for a well less than 2500 feet deep. Gravity of the oil is 21.5 deg., and the cut slightly over 1 per cent.

It is considered likely that Hole No. 7 will sand up, as the well was brought in "barefooted." In this event it will be cleaned out, lined put in and the well placed on production again.

The only explanation of the obtaining of oil at 2500 feet in No. 7, with no corresponding production from a similar depth of the next well, is that Hole No. 7 passes through a small oil pool of its own, which does not extend out to other wells on the lease.

NEW INTEREST

Because of the strange performance of the old-timer, which produced from 100 to 200 barrels daily for years and was then shut in, new interest has been attracted to the group of old fields making up the Brea-Olinda group. Hole No. 7 was first drilled in February, 1916, being completed in October, 1917. It was one of eighteen wells drilled on a part of the large lease. All the wells were drilled between the first part of 1913 and the latter months of 1917. Since then the Union has done no new drilling on the property.

The eighteen wells were drilled to depths varying from 3000 to 3750 feet and showed initial production marks of from 200 to 1200 barrels daily, No. 7 being one of the smallest of the wells. A testimonial to the long life of the wells drilled ten years ago on this property is seen in the fact that the Union has—not counting No. 7—fourteen Hole wells on production, 110 barrels being the average yield at this time.

The greatest significance in the performance of Hole No. 7, is not in its production but in the possibility it presents for indefinite activity in the older districts of Southern California. Oil outcroppings were noticed in the hills of that section as early as 1875, and the first wells were drilled in the eighties.

FLOURISHING FIELD

More than twenty years ago the Brea-Olinda district was a flourishing oil field. Its activity continued until 1917 when the first of the newer Los Angeles-Brea districts came in. Since then development has been slower although a number of wells always have been drilling.

The district constitutes one of the best reserves the California oil industry has. The consistency of production from the wells in this area, most of which are from ten to twenty years old, is not exceeded in any other part of the State.

The Union Oil Company is the largest individual holder of lands in the Brea-Olinda country. The Union has thousands of acres in its Stearns, Naranjal, Graham and Loftus and Hole leases, which are lightly drilled and can be relied upon to give good wells whenever needed. It is said that five sands exist in the pools of this field, although production is being obtained from only one.

MINE FIRE STUBBORN

Gleeson Reports Indicate Draft Expense May Halt Efforts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOMBSTONE (Ariz.) July 27.—From Gleeson comes word that some doubt is expressed concerning success of the method tried in the Shannon property of reduction of copper ores by firing the ore body. The ore is highly sulphuretic, probably carrying 25 per cent sulphur, with from 2 to 3 per cent copper.

It will burn where there is plenty of air, but draft appears hard to get, save by artificial means that might prove too expensive. It has been necessary to start the fire on the 400-foot level three times.

PRODUCTION UP AFTER DECLINE

Small Gain Made in Santa Fe Springs Field

Increase First Since Slump Began Year Ago

Well Unexpectedly Adds to Daily Output

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SANTA FE SPRINGS, July 27. For the first time since the daily field average in Santa Fe Springs oil district began to slump nearly one year ago, the weekly average of production has shown a small increase. With 334 wells producing last week, the total daily production averaged 59,500 barrels. The week prior to that with two more wells on production, the daily average was placed at 59,000 barrels. The increase has been due to several of the wells which are producing from the Meyer depths being placed on production in the Bell sand at 3700 feet. Among the wells which showed an increase was that of the Bellview Oil Company, drilled on Telegraph Road at the intersection of Norwalk Road. This well, for no apparent reason, increased its daily flow until it is now making near 400 barrels, whereas its former daily flow was about 400 barrels.

Two new wells are to be started in the field, the Petroleum Midway Oil Company drilling both of the wells. One will be drilled as Twin No. 2 and the other as the Mattern No. 2. Permission has been given the following companies to plug or alter casing: The General Petroleum-Santa Fe No. 2 and the Universal Consolidated Oil Company No. 3 and No. 5. The Co-Operative Petroleum Syndicate has requested permission to abandon No. 3 well which has been drilled to nearly 5000 feet in the western section of the field.

IN LA MARADA AREA

The Associated Oil Company has drilled the McNally No. 1 well, located in the La Marada district to 2130 feet and the well is to be drilled to 3000 feet, it is understood. The Petroleum Producers' Syndicate No. 1 well is idle at 5050 feet and the Scientific Oil Company well is idle at 3895 feet. These wells will be deepened, it is stated.

The Shell Oil Company well on the Slusher lease, which is being drilled to a great depth to explore the area under the Meyer sand section, is now down to 6100 feet and the showings for production have so far not come to light. They are coring carefully and testing so that the exact formation may be ascertained.

The Standard Oil Company Santa Gertrude No. 10 well is drilling in hard sand at 3700 feet and the O. A. Houghton No. 2 well is cemented at 4690 feet. The W. L. Houghton No. 3 well is drilling at 4400 feet and the Orr No. 4 has developed a good showing of oil at 4700 feet. The Jordon No. 6 well is in sandy shale and is drilling at 4200 feet.

The Bell No. 5 well being drilled by the Union Oil Company is bailed to 2300 feet and is developing a small amount of mud. This well has been drilled 4400 feet deep. The No. 9 well on this lease has developed mud and oil after being swabbed.

TROUBLE FOR ARTESIA

In the district near the townsite of Artesia, where the Artesia Oil Company is drilling the Benson well, mechanical troubles have been cleared away and cable tools are being installed, so that the well may be sent deeper. The well is now down to 5300 feet.

Nothing which would encourage the officials of the Oakridge Oil Company have been found in drilling the three wells in the western section. The Rossi No. 1, which is the original well of that area, is standing suspended. Many futile efforts for water shut-offs have been made but the water difficulty is as great now as before. The Gage No. 1 well is drilling in hard sandy shale at about 5000 feet and the K-B Community well drilled by the same concern is drilling at 4950 feet with no showings. The outlook for oil production in commercial quantities in that section is not bright.

Near Downey the C. G. Stall Oil Association is making arrangements to refinance so that that well may be drilled to 5000 feet. The well is standing at 4400 feet and at 4300 feet indications of oil were discovered.

In east Whittier where the Superior Oil Company is preparing to make tests, boilers are being installed at the Andres No. 1 well, while the No. 1-A well on the same lease is drilling in sandy shale at 1700 feet.

The Petroleum Midway Company test, drilled near Norwalk, has just about proven the entire district southeast of Norwalk dry, oil men believe. The well is now down to 5430 feet and since a shallow depth, the showings of oil formation have been few.

Leasing is active, east and south of Whittier, it is asserted. Representatives of independent oil companies, private parties and several of the larger companies have tied up large tracts in that district and wells have been promised within a few months. The price paid per acre varies, but has been on a rental basis in the majority of cases, it would appear.

PETROLEUM EXPORTS ON GAIN AGAIN

Pass 2,000,000-Barrel Mark for First Time in Several Weeks

Petroleum exports from Los Angeles Harbor during the past week passed the 2,000,000-barrel mark for the first time in several weeks. Thirty tankers departed for foreign and domestic ports, carrying aggregate cargoes of 2,204,250 barrels of crude, fuel oil and gasoline. DRILLERS IN OIL FIELDS GET QUININE

Bitter Water is Struck in Sulphur Spring Area of South Oklahoma

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY, (Okla.) July 27.—The cinchonian property of quinine, mixed in a subterranean laboratory of the Arbuckle Mountains in Southern Oklahoma, have robbed sulphur water in the Clay Webster well, near Wynnewood of some of its predominant original elements and substituted a taste of unspeakable bitterness. The well, drilled to 2840 feet, has become one of the most interesting phenomena in the State, attracting attention of geologists and chemists of several States.

The oil men called this the flaming-water well, when it was producing around 40,000 barrels of sulphur water daily so charged with natural gas that it could be ignited. The 280-foot sand that produced that water was cased off and drilling proceeded. The tools passed through fifteen feet of lime and then into another sand producing surphur water. This was heavy with gas and pressure from below shot a stream into the derrick. Drillers tasted the water and said it was better to drink than that produced by the upper sand. It would not ignite.

At the bottom of this sand, which proved to be thirty-five feet thick, the drill entered what appeared to be an ordinary blue shale. This had been penetrated only about one foot when a visitor to the freak well tasted the water. It was as bitter as quinine. The conclusion is that the bitterness came from properties of the shale.

This well is about twelve miles northwest of the Platt National Park which contains many sulphur springs. It is near the foothills of the Arbuckle Mountains and in a region that has been given intensive study by the Oklahoma Geological Survey and the geological department of the State university.

PIPE LINE TO BE BUILT

Project in Arkansas to be 322 Miles in Length

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 27.—A pipe line 322 miles long, from Norphlet, Ark., to a point on the Mississippi River ninety miles north of New Orleans, is to be laid this year by the Crusader Oil Company of Arkansas, according to W. R. Davis, president of the company.

It will have a daily capacity of 50,000 barrels and will make water transportation connection at the Mississippi. Davis says the company also contemplates laying a pipe line from Oklahoma to a connection with the Arkansas end of the other line. The Crusader recently acquired the assets of the Arkansas Pipe Line and Navigation Company at a receiver's sale

OFFICERS ARE SLAIN IN MEXICO

Cerrillo and Pachecho Are Shot From Ambush; Rebel Suspects Escape

BY JACK STARR-HUNT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, July 27.—Gen. Albino Cerrillo and Col. Jose Pachecho are dead as a result of shots fired from ambush, presumably by rebels, near the city of Cordoba in the State of Vera Cruz. The assailants are reported to have been a remnant of the troops commanded by Gen. Guadalupe Sanchez, former commander-in-chief of the De la Huerta revolt on the Vera Cruz front.

Cerrillo, Pachecho and others left Cordoba early in the morning to inspect points outside the city for suitable military camps. Nothing untoward happened until the return journey, when, as they passed a ranch called Tapia, a hail of lead was suddenly poured into their automobile from a group of hidden assailants.

The rifle fire resulted immediately in the death of Col. Pachecho and the grave wounding of Gen. Cerrillo. Gen. Luciano Peralta, who also was in the car, returned the fire with his revolver, but the bushwhackers made off, evidently fearing the approach of other automobiles. Gen. Cerrillo was taken to a hospital at Cordoba, but died soon afterward. His body was brought to Mexico City yesterday evening and buried with full military honors this morning.

Gen. Cerrillo was a member of the old Federal army and had figured in many battles since 1910, when the revolution began. He was wounded several times, including one wound received in the fighting against American sailors and marines when they occupied Vera Cruz. He then attained brigade rank.

Col. Pachecho was commander of the Sixty-sixth Cavalry Regiment.

POLICEMAN DIES WHILE CHASING CAR

Another Hurt as Officer Takes Fatal Spill; Man in Auto Crash Dying

Motorcycle Officer George Papst met death early yesterday while chasing a speeding motorist on Pasadena avenue, opposite Sycamore Grove Park. According to Asst. Capt. Slaten, who investigated, Papst's machine struck a manhole cover that was not level with the street and he was thrown from his seat. His head struck the curb. Officer P. J. Hahn, who was just behind Papst on another machine, crashed into the fallen motorcycle. Hahn also fell.

Papst was taken to the Receiving Hospital in a passing car and died in a few minutes of a basal skull fracture and crushed chest. Hahn suffered slight injuries, which were dressed by Police Surgeon Saverien.

Papst, who was one of the most popular members of the police force, was 28 years of age and lived at 232 South Avenue 56. He leaves a widow. He had been married a year.

According to Officer Hahn, the spill took place when the officers were going about forty miles an hour. The car they were pursuing got away.

In a collision at Wilshire Boulevard and Vermont avenue, Herbert W. Savage, 61, of 2510 East Broadway, Long Beach, was probably mortally hurt and his wife, Mrs. Savage suffered a lacerated scalp and wrenched back. Savage, it was said, ran into a car driven by P. Feha of the Norton Arms Apartments, but accupants of the Fena car were not hurt. At the Receiving Hospital, where Savage was taken, it was said he had a basal skull fracture and is expected to die.

According to a report of the treasurer of the athletic committee, athletics pay at Lehigh. There is a balance of $17,583 in the treasury.

PLATICAS DE LOS LUNES

Por el Profesor R. Guerrero

DEL DEPARTAMENTO ESPANOL DE "THE TIMES"

NUMERO 266

Anuncié en la Plática 265 que señalaría en esta Plática las expresiones españolas que deben emplearse para traducir las inglesas, "to park a car" y "parking space", a fin de evitar los injustificables barbarismos, "arquear un automóvil" y "lugar de parquero o para parquear", que a menudo usan los que por aquí radican.

Desde mucho antes que se conocieran los automóviles y la enorme intensidad de tráfico que ellos han creado en las vías públicas, se usaba en castellano la palabra "apartadero" en las siguientes acepciones, entre otras: "Ensanche que de trecho en trecho hay en las carreteras estrechas," de montaña generalmente, para que puedan cruzar los carruajes que caminan en distinta dirección" (turnout); vía de ferrocarril enlazada por ambos extremos o por uno solo con la principal cerca de las estaciones, que sirve para apartar las locomotoras y los vagones que han de permanecer algún tiempo en la estación, y dejar así expedita la vía general" (siding); "sitio donde permanecen anciadas las embarcaciones en los canales para que quede libre la navegación fluvial".

En vista de estos significados de la voz "apartadero", no puede menos de justificarse su empleo para denotar el sitio donde estaciona un vehículo para no estorbar el tráfico de una vía pública. Deben, pues, designarse con el nombre de "apartaderos", así los "parking places", como los "parking buildings", edificios de varios pisos que ya se están construyendo en las grandes ciudades de los Estados Unidos para que los automovilistas dejen sus coches mientras evacúan ocupaciones o negocios en lugares cercanos al apartadero que eligen.

Tradúzcase "to park" por "apartar"; "I parked my car against the curb"; "Aparté mi coche (auto) contra la acera"; "Where did you park your limousine?"; "¿Dónde apartaste tu limosina?"

Los rótulos o letreros, cada día más abundantes en las grandes poblaciones, que dicen "No parking", pueden verterse así al español: "No es apartadero" o "Aquí no se aparta". Me detengo en estas minucias, porque he visto con frecuencia traducidos al español los avisos que se ponen para el público en esta ciudad, y he podido notar que en la mayoría de los casos las traducciones son detestables.

Trataré ahora del equivalente castellano de "broadcasting", bastándome para ello copiar en seguida lo que sobre el particular dijo en A. F. C. el culto habilista español, don Julio Cánaras:

Rompiendo la incomunicación en que, desde hace tiempo, y bien a mi pesar, me hallo con mis lectores, creo que debo decir algunas palabras acerca de un tema que, después de rodar durante varios meses por periódicos y revistas profesionales, ha trascendido recientemente a los grandes diarios. Se trata de la denominación que hemos de dar los españoles a lo que los ingleses llaman "broadcasting".

No voy a entretenerme en explicar lo que prácticamente se entiende por tal palabra. Vulgarizados hoy los procedimientos de recepción de las emisiones radiotelefónicas, rara será la casa en que no haya algún aficionado, siquiera sea de la humilde clase de "galenistas", dedicado pacientemente horas enteras a "coger la onda" o a discernir si lo que vibra en el auricular es algún ascensor vecino o son los "conciertos de Londres".

Gramatical y originariamente, "broadcasting" es el gerundio de "broadcast", verbo compuesto del simple "cast" (arrojar, lanzar) y del adjetivo "broad" (ancho, espacioso), que desempeña aquí una función adverbial. Dicho gerundio, que ya ha pasado a ser nombre verbal, equivale en todos sentidos a nuestros substantivos abstractos de acción y efecto; de manera que, siendo el significado del verbo el que lógicamente resulta de los elementos que lo integran ("arrojar espaciadamente", o sea "esparcir", "diseminar", "desparramar", "dispersar", "desperdigar, etc.), el valor del nombre 'broadcasting" no será otro que el de "dispersión", "desparramamiento", "diseminación", etcétera. Y nada más. Es decir, que fuera de la idea de "lanzar esparciendo"—sea semilla de alfalfa o balas de ametralladora—no existe ningún otro contenido conceptual en el nombre verbal inglés de que tratamos: ni designa un invento, ni un sistema, ni un aparato, ni se roza de cerca ni de lejos con electricidad, ondas etéreas, sonido, propaganda de ideas, etc. etc. No se trata, pues, de un término técnico.

Conviene insistir en este punto, puesto que en la creencia contraria—la de quienes por ignorancia conceden a toda voz exótica el carácter de tecnicismo insubstituible—reside, a mi entender, la principal causa psicológica que hace prevalecer cierta clase de barbarismos. Y es que las voces de lenguas extranjeras, justamente por sernos poco familiares, se nos ofrecen con un amplio margen de imprecisión, que nos permite atribuirles acepciones especialísimas, preciosas sugestiones metafóricas o irisados matices de expresión, sobre la base, todo ello, de reminiscencias sonoras o de asociaciones de ideas, por simple relación de contigüidad.

Así, por ejemplo, el aficionado español que, sin preocuparse del sentido recto y vulgar de la palabra "broadcasting", aprendió a balbucirla apenas se sintió atacado de "radiofiebre", difícilmente acertará a encontrar entre cuantas voces castellanas le propongan, alguna que, despertando el complejo de ideas y sensaciones vinculado arbitrariamente al vocablo exótico, sirva para evocar, como éste, modo de conjurg, todo el mundo maravilloso de la radiotelefonía. Por eso no ha prosperado francamente la voz "radiodifusión", mucho más propia y significante que la inglesa, y por eso continúa ésta circulando, subrayada o entre comillas, pronunciada de las maneras más absurdas, o castellanizada . . ., vamos al decir. (Tengo un amigo andalus, verdadera autoridad en eso de la "inductansia" y la "reactansia", que se pasa la vida haciendo prosélitos para "er brocateo".)

En este estado las cosas, no sé si habría llegado ya el momento de que la Academia interviniese espontáneamente; pero requerida para ello, creo que por alguna entidad oficial, hubo de emitir su dictamen y, entre adaptar el barbarismo a nuestra fonética, traducirlo, o crear un término nuevo, optó por esto último. Así nació la palabra "perifonía". Formada con los elementos griegos, "peri" (alrededor, en todos sentidos) y "foné" (sonido), corresponde aproximadamente al compuesto alemán "Rundspruch", ideado también para substituir a "broadcasting", y expresa con suficiente propiedad la acción y efecto de esparcir a los cuatro vientos sonidos de todas clases: señales, palabras o música. Sirve, pues, perfectamente para el caso; tiene además a su favor el apoyo de otras formaciones eruditas análogas (v. gr. "telefonía"), hoy ya vulgarizadas; es más breve y eufónica que los restantes términos propuestos hasta ahora, y desde luego los supera a todos en la riqueza de derivaciones posibles (perifónico, perifónicamente, perifonear, perifono, perifonista); derivaciones que, al por el momento no son necesarias, pudieran serlo en día no lenjano, dado el enorme desarrollo que es de prever para las aplicaciones de la telefonía sin hilos.

Husband Said He Made Mistake in Marrying, Says Wife

When Althea Reynolds, dainty stage dancer, finally made up her mind to marry Morris Danial, it was with misgivings. She was not sure she could accustom herself to the routine of domesticity, after the footloose life of the stage.

But it turned out just the other way, according to her testimony before Judge Thompson, who heard her suit for divorce.

"He decided he was not cut out for married life and left me," she said. "He said he had made a mistake in marrying."

Judge Thompson continued her case pending arrival of certain affidavits needed to corroborate technical points.

If It Itches, It's Eczema!

Doctors say that any chronic skin disease that itches is usually eczema. According to leading authorities, this disease constitutes about one-third of all skin troubles.

Eczema is nothing more or less than a severe inflammation of the skin—either acute or chronic—brought about by irritation of some kind. It is not a blood disease—not contagious or catching. The best and safest way to remove the inflammaton is to apply Ki-La-Ga to the affected parts night and morning. This natural mineralized solution is absorbed through the pores, quickly relieving discomfort and helping to restore the skin to sound condition.

Ki-La-Ga is a harmless, odorless liquid taken from the ground in the foothills of California. Remarkably effective in all skin eruptions. One bottle is probably all you will require. Procure it today. Price $1 at

Neither Hot Nor Humid, Sun Just Works Overtime

Although the highest point reached by the temperature yesterday was only 88 degrees, not the high record for the summer, it got hot earlier and stayed hot longer than any other day with the exception of Saturday, according to Col. H. B. Hersey of the Weather Bureau.

The bureau was swamped yesterday by feverish-browed citizens complaining about the heat or asking about the humidity. Colonel Hersey declared. He said the humidity was not unusually high, but the day was almost calm and the sun came out early.

Early in the day the temperature mounted well up in the eighties, he said, reaching 88 at about noon, and sinking so gradually that it was still 84 degrees at 1 p.m. This long hot stretch, being unusual, made the day seem as hot, Col. Hersey declared.

BOARD ENLISTS AID FOR PAVING

Engineering Firms Receive City Contracts

Action Overflow Causing Need for Help

Completed Ordinances Being Delivered to Council

Contracts have been awarded by the Board of Public Works to engineering firms for the preparation of ordinances for the paving of thirteen streets, as a continuation of the plan of the City Council and the board to spend $200,000 for the employment of engineering assistance to speed up the $20,000,000 street improvement program.

Work cannot start on street improvements until the surveys have been made and other engineering data obtained which are embodied in the ordinances for the work.

The City Engineer's office is charged with these petitions of property owners for street improvements, and the Council has authorized funds for the employment of extra engineers to assist in preparing the ordinances, under the direction of City Engineer Griffin. Last week the board awards contracts for the preparation of fifteen of twenty street ordinances. The list of ordinances ordered prepared by the board last week, which insures the early paving of streets, was as follows:

Alhambra avenue, from First street to Third street; Atlantic avenue, from Mateo street to Wilson avenue; Avenue 64 from York boulevard to Pasadena avenue; Avenue 64 from Range View avenue to York Boulevard; streets in Ascot Road and Los Feliz Boulevard improvement district; streets in Berwick avenue and Los Feliz Boulevard improvement district; Bonsall street from Western avenue to Van Ness avenue; Glendale street from Camulos street to Bellevue street; Hooper avenue from Washington street to Thirty-eighth street; Leeward avenue from Willow street to Norton avenue; Lexington Way from El Centro avenue to Hope street; London street from Lexington Way to Occidental Boulevard; Mission O'Farrell street and Pasadena Improvement district; Olympia avenue and Pasadena street improvement district; Reserve street from Pueblo avenue to Rosemead avenue; Rosanna street and Ripley Terrace improvement district; Sierra Vista avenue from Lewis street to Lake avenue; Sepulveda street from Lake street to Gaffey street; Van Ness avenue from Pico street to Fifteenth street.

The proposed ordinances prepared by the emergency engineers have already begun to be delivered to the City Council, and after the ten days protests has expired, the board will proceed to award contracts for the work.

PLANS FOR VIADUCT TO RAIL BOARD

Two Schemes for Bridge at Macy Street Will be Submitted Today

Two plans for the proposed viaduct over Los Angeles River at Macy street will be submitted to the Railroad Commission today at a continued hearing on the matter before Commissioners Eshleman and Stevens.

The Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe presented the two plans when the hearing was opened before the commission on the 16th inst. In the two plans are similar except that the Santa Fe proposes to carry the viaduct sufficient distance to allow room for a street on the river bank so that the arrangement of Santa Fe tracks will not require change. An estimate of the expense of approximately $170,000 will be incurred if the Santa Fe plan is adopted.

Further examination of witnesses will be heard in the alternate proposal will probably be completed at the hearing and the matter taken under advisement by the commission.

Commissioner Handford of the commission is scheduled to conduct hearings on the application of the Los Angeles Railroad for permission to abandon its service from Watts Valley to Ryan as a public utility. The Death Valley Borax Company will appear to protect the railroad's contention that lack of passenger justified the road's action.

A WORD ABOUT PAVING

With a $50,000,000 street-paving program laid out for the next twelve months, the generously paid lobbyists for the various kinds of patented pavings are preparing for a Roman holiday at the City Hall.

Next Friday the City Council is scheduled to take up the matter of revising the specifications governing the kinds of paving which may be used on the streets of Los Angeles.

If past performances are any criterion, the public will be well advised to scrutinize these proceedings with care. Every penny of the $50,000,000 will come directly from the pockets of the property owners by the assessment route and these hearings will largely determine the manner in which this huge sum will be spent.

Under present specifications, several kinds of nonpatented paving may be used and just exactly one kind of patented paving—Warrenite. This situation of virtual monopoly of the patent-paving business has earned for the manufacturers of Warrenite the local sobriquet of the "paving trust." That it has been able for so long to maintain a stranglehold on a tremendously profitable business is a monument to Frank Reese, not inappropriately dubbed the "king of the City Hall lobbyists."

There are some half dozen other companies which manufacture patented paving and, naturally, they are clamoring for a look-in on the fat pickings. Their assault will be on the lines of the manifest inequity of allowing one concern a "corner" on public business. So far their point appears to be well taken.

The Times is not concerned with the warfare between these private companies, each of which is earnestly engaged in making as much as it can out of the public on its own particular patent-plus-royalty. But if anybody wants a patent paving, The Times believes that the competition should be open. The privilege of choice among the various patented pavings, all more or less alike, is not so important as is an honest, above-board bidding system which would insure bedrock prices.

What The Times is concerned with is that the people who are going to put up the $50,000,000 to pave their streets this year shall get $50,000,000 worth of honest-value paving out of it and that no part of that sum shall go to subsidize the hungry politicians at the City Hall nor finance the campaigns of any Councilmen next year.

Upon the shoulders of the Mayor, the Council and the Board of Public Works rests the responsibility of seeing that the property owners not only get what they pay for and all they pay for, but that they shall not be tricked into accepting an inferior pavement at a high price when a better kind could be had for less money.

What the average householder does not know about paving would fill several large volumes. All pavings look pretty much alike to him and when he wants his street paved badly enough to be willing to pay his share of the cost, he is very apt to sign the petition when it comes around to him in the hands of a persuasive talker. Two of the things he does not know are that the persuasive talker is a field man for a paving concern and that the petition specifies the particular kind of paving which that particular agent is selling. If it happens to be a patent paving, another of the things he does not know is that it will cost him something like one-third more than if a substantially identical and equally durable unpatented kind were used.

But he knows that he pays heavily in taxes to support the city government and that the city has experts on paving. He takes it for granted that these experts are looking after his street work honestly and efficiently and that they will see that he gets good paving at the lowest possible price.

If this credulous citizen could have a look behind the scenes at some of the paving deals that have been pulled at the City Hall with his money, he would suffer painful disillusionment.

In general, the history of patent pavings has not been one to commend them to the average taxpayer. Such cities as New York, Kansas City, Columbus, San Francisco, Seattle, Minneapolis, Baltimore, Akron, Milwaukee, Toledo, Newark and many smaller ones have either greatly limited the use of patent pavings or barred them altogether. Our State Highway Commission will have none of them. The most frequent charges against them are those of too-high prices and too-low durability, though there are others and worse.

The Times has no quarrel with any legitimate business, legitimately conducted. But it does demand open competition and a free field. It demands a disinterested experting of street work that will insure the property owner the best paving he can get for the least money and, if necessary, protection against his own ignorance of a technical subject. If an unpatented pavement of inch-and-a-half sheet asphalt on a five-inch concrete base at 27 4-19 cents a square foot will serve his purpose exactly as well as a patented paving of inch-and-a-half asphalt mixture on a five-inch concrete base at 36 4-10 cents a square foot, it is nothing short of criminal to let him be stuck for the higher priced article with the fancy name, merely because he doesn't know any better.

He has a right to expect something from the city in return for his taxes and if he doesn't get it he will get a new set of city officials.

CITY FOURTH IN RANK FOR TAX FILINGS

Third Place is Predicted When All Returns for 1924 Are in, Collector Says

Only New York City, Chicago and Philadelphia led Los Angeles in the number of personal income returns filed in 1923, according to figures compiled in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue. In the opinion of the collector, the tremendous increase in the number of personal returns filed in Los Angeles during the current year will place Los Angeles well ahead of Philadelphia when reports on the total 1924 filings are available. Collector Goodcell has gone to Washington to urge an increase in the personnel of the local office in view of the rapidly growing business of the office.

The 1923 figures, disclosing the number of returns filed during that year in the leading cities of the country, show the number for Los Angeles to exceed the combined totals of Baltimore and Pittsburg. The Los Angeles total amounts to almost as much as the combined figures for San Francisco, Portland and Seattle; more than the combined totals for Buffalo, Omaha, Providence and Indianapolis, and as many as the combined totals of Boston and Minneapolis, or the combined totals of St. Louis and Cleveland.

A list of the leading cities, with the number of 1923 returns filed in each, is given as follows in reports from Washington:

Philadelphia	142,895
Los Angeles	134,385
Detroit	127,790
Boston	94,941
St. Louis	82,170
San Francisco	79,210
Pittsburg	72,375
Baltimore	63,579
Milwaukee	59,979
Buffalo	55,180
Cleveland	52,100
Cincinnati	47,345
Newark	46,374
Minneapolis	41,556
Portland, Or.	39,976
Kansas City, Mo.	37,060
Seattle	36,545
Indianapolis	33,023
Dallas	23,641
Omaha	23,205
Providence	21,272
Columbus	18,160

"The increase in the number of personal income returns filed indicates not only growth in population but a steady advance in the production of income," the Collector explained. "The growth of population as indicated by the number of income returns filed here becomes more significant when it is remembered that the 1920 census ranked Los Angeles as tenth among the largest cities of the United States."

MARTYR SAINT IS HONORED

Hundreds from Canneto Join in Procession in Annual Festival as Tribute to San Vittoriano

The privilege of carrying the image of a saint through the streets of Los Angeles brought $175 yesterday, the honor being accorded the highest bidders. The ceremony was the climax of the Festival of San Vittoriano the Martyr, celebrated once a year by former inhabitants of Canneto, now living in Los Angeles' Little Italy. Hundreds were in the procession and on the sidewalks.

DAGGER TALE WINS DECREE

Gilbert James always kept a dagger handy, and if his wife as much as stirred in her sleep he would start up and accuse her of trying to slip out for the night, Mrs. Lorraine James testified before Judge Thompson, who granted her a divorce. He once chased her from the house with a gun, she said.

Yesterday's procession from St. Peter's Church on North Broadway through the streets of Little Italy back to the church was the most colorful of the fete which began Friday.

MANY CHILDREN

Several hundred children were in the vanguard. These were followed by the bearers of the cross, the six silver lanterns and of the 1000-pound image, which required four men to uphold it. Father Bacceria of St. Peter's who had said mass at 9 a.m. before the procession started, walked before the image. Following the image were four boys bearing a silken canopy and a band.

The image itself, of the long-haired gentle-faced San Vittoriano, with the blood of his martyrdom on his throat, was topped by protecting gilt arches, from which extended fanwise candelabra. These candelabra and the base of the image also were gilded heavily.

As the procession moved south from the church toward Alpine street, smoke-bombs burst high above, releasing parachutes and silken draperies. These caught in the wind unfurled American and Italian flags.

The only events occurring to mar the ceremony were a grass fire which swept through the old Catholic cemetery next to St. Peter's, just as the procession was starting, and the injury of 5-year-old Marie Siore, who was struck by an automobile. Her injuries were slight, it was learned at Receiving Hopital.

WILL END TODAY

Yesterday afternoon more than a score of young men engaged in a contest to see which might be the first to mount a sixty-foot greased pole and win the prize at the summit. A band concert and a procession, bearing a painting of the image of San Vittoriano from the pavilion to St. Peter's concluded the day's program.

The festival will end today with band concerts. It has been under the direction of B. Carlucci, president; Frank Tunzi, vice-president; G. Musacco, director; Louis Giovannazzo, secretary of record; M. Cimarrusti, secretary of correspondence, and John Bruno, and I. Berardino, joint treasurers.

CYANIDE FUMES KILL TWO

Whittier Student Fumigating Orchard and Worker at Huntington Park Plant Victims

Fumes from cyanide, a deadly poison used in fumigation, have claimed two lives in two accidents in Los Angeles in the last twenty-four hours. The dead are: Konstantine Walter, 21 years of age, a Russian student at Whittier College, and Aurelio Abonte, 24, an employee of the California Cyanide Company at Huntington Park.

Walter died at Mercy Memorial Hospital at Whittier Saturday night from the effects of poisoning, suffered while fumigating an orchard at East Whittier.

MYSTERY ACCIDENT

He collapsed while aiding Herbert Benke, head of the fumigating crew, to lift a can of cyanide from a truck. The poisoning was something of a mystery as Benke declared the seal of the can was tight and that no gas was escaping from it. Benke was a fellow student of Walter. The poisoning took place at the E. A. Bickerman orange ranch at East Whittier.

Benke applied ammonia and first-aid treatment and succeeded in reviving Walter partially. Then, after hailing several passing cars without result, he stopped one and took the young man to the hospital. Walter was still living on arrival, but died in a few minutes. It was said his lungs were paralyzed.

Walter was born at Harbin, Manchuria, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Walter, and a brother and sister still live. Another sister, Mrs. Marie Isless, lives at Berkeley. His body was taken to the White & Emerson undertaking rooms at Whittier to await an inquest.

This was Walter's third season at fumigating, it was said, so his death was not the result of lack of experience.

SPRAYED BY ACCIDENT

Abonte died Saturday two hours after he was sprayed with cyanide in an accident at the company's plant near Huntington Park. A hose conveying cyanide into one of the tanks slipped out of the tank and sprayed Abonte, who was working near by. The body was badly burned and enough of the fumes entered the lungs to cause death despite the application of pulmotor aid. No attempt was made to remove him to a hospital.

Abonte is said to be a member of a well-to-do Mexican family at El Paso, Tex., and attempts to reach his father are being made by the authorities. The body is at the Easterling Mortuary, Huntington Park.

TWO DIE IN GOLD HUNT ON DESERT

Heat Kills Angelenos as Automobile Breaks Down in Imperial Valley

Victims of the desert, into which they had gone seeking gold, the bodies of two Los Angeles men yesterday rested in an undertaking parlor at El Centro.

They were R. E. Weston, 34 years of age, of 124½ West Twenty-fourth street, and William F. Smith, 61 years of age, address undetermined.

The two men left Los Angeles last Wednesday on a prospecting tour into the Imperial Valley. They died from heat prostration, after their automobile had been stalled several days in the desert near Flowing Wells.

Weston was picked up Friday by a train crew and taken into Niland, where he died after an acute seizure brought on, it is believed, by the heat and the fact that he had eaten a heavy meal. Smith's body was found by a Sheriff's office searching party from El Centro on a wagon road leading toward the hills near Flowing Wells. Apparently he had been making for a well in the hills. He had missed it by two miles. Smith had been dead about ten hours when found.

Both bodies were taken to the Lemons undertaking parlor in El Centro. From papers in the pockets the identity of the two men was established and a wire sent to the widow of Weston. Weston also had a nephew and a sister living in Los Angeles. Smith was said to have a son living in Willowville, but efforts to reach him have been unsuccessful. Weston's body is being shipped to Brosse Brothers here.

NEW BLAZE RISES NEAR MARICOPA

Little Danger is Seen in Cuyama River Area; Fire at Fish Creek Checked

A force of fire fighters was mobilized at Maricopa late yesterday by Ranger J. D. Reyes to combat a fresh conflagration which started early yesterday in the Cuyama Valley at a point two and one-half miles from the Cuyama River, a dozen miles from Maricopa. Meager reports to the United States Forestry Service at Santa Barbara indicated the blaze was headed for an old burning and was not dangerous.

A fresh outbreak in the Fish Creek district north of Newhall was put under control during the day after a brisk battle in which a force of fifty men operating under forest rangers took part. The blaze, which was in an inaccessible district between Redrock Mountain and Fish Creek, assumed dangerous proportions on Saturday afternoon shortly after it was reported.

Latest reports regarding the blaze in Blackburn Canyon in the San Jacinto Mountains are to the effect that pregress has been made and that it will be brought under control at an early hour. It is not believed that the forest area at the head of the canyon was reached by the fire.

MODERN CHRIST THEORY FLAYED

Presbyterian Moderator in Denunciation of View

Transcendental Nature of Birth is Avowed

Synods of Two States Hear Glendale Address

That brand of modernism which denies the transcendental nature of Christ's birth and the miracle of His resurrection was scored by Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in America, in a sermon preached yesterday at the First Presbyterian church of Glendale before 1000 delegates to the Synods of California and Arizona.

"Two kinds of Christianity are contending within the church today," Dr. Macartney said. "One is a Christianity of education, development, exhortation and ideals, with Jesus a leader and prophet. The other is the Christianity of redemption from sin through faith in a Divine Redeemer. It is idle to claim that these religions are one and the same.

"If one were to compare samples of the popular preaching of today with that of the first witnesses as contained in the New Testament, the thing that would strike one would be this: that first preaching declared the great facts of Christ and His Gospel and explained the meaning of those facts. But the preaching of today often ignores completely the great facts or, if it deals with them, labors to give them some new explanation and interpretation.

"There can be no Christianity which is not founded on granite fact. You cannot dissociate the Christian doctrines from the great historic facts upon which they are based. His holiness is not real to us unless His miraculous conception and birth are facts. His right to be our Redeemer is not established unless His victory over sin is a fact. Forgiveness of our sins through faith in Him is not established unless it is fact that He not only died on the cross but that He died as God's great sacrifice for sin.

"Our hope of life everlasting has no ground of evidence unless Christ rose from the grave with the same body with which He suffered. Nor have we any ground upon which to base our expectation of a new heaven and a new earth unless it be a fact that Christ will come again to judge men and angels. 'If Christ be not risen from the dead, then is our preaching vain.'

"It may have the sound of superior piety and spirituality when men say that they are not interested in the discussion over the facts of the Gospels, and that their faith stands on the far higher ground of fellowship with the living Christ. But when men say this, what they are really saying is that their faith is not the Christian faith.

"The great need of the Christian church today is to recover itself from the growing indifference as to those facts which give us Christianity. We need a great flood tide to reveal in the facts of the Gospel and in the New Testament intrepretation of those facts.

"A church which, 1900 years after Christ came and died and rose again, is not quite sure as to the facts, or hesitates to declare those facts to the world lest they come into contact with some favorite fact, principle or prejudice of the world, is a church whose voice will soon be drowned by the screaming hurricane of time."

Youth Stricken on Barge, Falls in Sea, Drowns

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, July 27.—Stricken by a fainting spell, an unidentified youth, about 19 years of age, fell over the side of a fishing barge anchored two miles off the pier here today and was drowned. Several fishermen, out of about 150 on the barge, saw him disappear and shouted for help. When the body rose to the surface, Capt. Smith, commanding the barge, dived overboard, but was unable to drag the drowning youth from the water. Attempts to recover the body were fruitless.

The only clew to the youth's identity was furnished by fishermen, who said the boy had told them he lived in Redondo Beach. Venice police tonight notified the authorities at Redondo Beach in an effort to identify the victim.

M PARADE PLANS MADE

1st of March is Announced by Chief of Police for Next Friday; Details Are Perfected

In a special bulletin to members of the police department, Chief Heath yesterday issued instructions to facilitate in every way the running of next Friday's downtown pageant and parade, which will be the opening of "greater movie season."

The announcement was made at the line of march for the "Greater Movie Season" parade, which starts at 11 a.m. This is the route:

From Eighteenth and Hill streets north on Hill street to Ninth street, east on Ninth street to Broadway, north on Broadway to Spring street, east on Eighth street to Spring street, north on Spring street to First street, west on First street to Broadway, south on Broadway to Seventh street, west on Seventh street to Hope street, then south on Hope street to Ninth, where the parade will disband. That is the formal route as given out by Chief of Police Heath.

FOUR DIVISIONS

Four divisions will comprise the pageant. A monster band will lead the entire brigade. Each division will have two or more bands. More than fifty floats have been completed. Three hundred stars will ride in their own machines. Downtown theaters will have special floats.

Eleven cameras will film the passing march of the progress of the motion-picture industry and arrangements have been made whereby all downtown theaters will show the film on Friday night.

That same day special airplane service will take five prints of the parade to New York and from there hundreds of copies will be sent throughout the United States, broadcasting on the screen of the nation the glory of Los Angeles and proclaim its supremacy as motion-picture capital of the world.

Exhibitors and producers have increased their forces which are working night and day in arranging for the season. Many novelties have been planned and so arranged that there will never be a dull moment for picture fans.

ENTRIES CLOSE TONIGHT

Entries for participation in the parade will close tonight. Late comers must communicate with Louis Golden at TRinity 7141 in order to receive entry blanks.

Hundreds of stars, leading men and leading women, and in fact, everyone connected with the screen industry are spending their time in preparing special acts for personal appearances during "Greater Movie Season."

SCREEN STARS GATHER AT KHJ

Brilliant Assemblage Gets Radio Introduction

'Arthur Kay Steps Forth in New Role as 'Cellist

Songs of Buccaneers Add to Atmosphere of Sea

BY CLAIRE FORBES CRANE

Many of the radio family who listened in last evening no doubt would have given a great deal to be present in person at the KHJ studio, for probably no radio station ever before entertained a greater assemblage of motion-picture stars. The occasion was a program presented by the general committee of the "Greater Movie Season."

Jack Retlaw, chairman of the program introduced Frank Lloyd, whose name is now synonymous with that brilliant screen success, "The Sea Hawk," as master of ceremonies. Mr. Lloyd in turn introduced radioland to Marguerite De La Motte, the beloved heroine of so many film romances.

KAY IN NEW ROLE

Another star, this time a masculine one, who has earned his spurs in the hall of film fame was introduced by Frank Lloyd and proved a most delightful entertainer.

Arthur Kay, director of Loew's State Symphony Orchestra, showed himself last night in a new role, that of 'cellist. He gave two movements from his own trio. It is seldom that the cinema world has had for a musical conductor so versatile and talented a man as Arthur Kay. It was a privilege for radioland to hear him.

Patricia Robanna, soprano sang an aria from "Aida." Although not an Italian herself her constant association with the fine Latin artists have imbued her voice with the fire and passion of Italy.

Acting on the policy that the more the great human family are taken into the secrets and problems of the running of the important picture houses, the more they will appreciate the splendid productions which are offered them, addresses were made by John Bowers, Marguerite De La Mott and J. L. Johnstone regarding "Greater Movie Season."

SONGS OF THE SEA

Heinrick Tandler, pianist, with his brother, Adolph Tandler, conductor of the Criterion Theater Symphony Orchestra, violinist played a charming selection entitled "The Sea Hawk Barcarolle." This was written especially for the "Sea Hawk" by Heinrick Tandler himself. The two Tandler brothers and Edward Roteler, second violinist, together with Robert Alter, 'cellist, delighted radioland with many numbers of beautifully balanced chamber music.

Robert Heen, Hawaiian baritone, sang delightfully many new folk songs of his native land. He revealed a sympathetic and rich voice and the lovers of Hawaiian music hope to hear him often.

As a fitting climax to the evening the swash buckling pirates from the Prologue of the Sea Hawk—by name, Robert Blackwell, first tenor, John Cook, second tenor, Leslie Brigham, first bass and Jack Bergman, second bass, assisted by Harry Hahn, Howard Fawcett, Charles C. Landa and Alexander Pollock made the air resound with wild ballads of the ocean and tales of the fighting main. The radio family heard Uncle John bid them good night with regret, and went to bed with renewed appreciation of the people who inhabit filmdom.

A large map was spread upon the wall, and the teacher was instructing the class in geography. "Horace," she said to a small pupil, "when you stand in Europe facing the north, you have on your right hand the great continent of Asia. What have you on your left hand?"

GRAND JURY TO GET CASE OF FUGITIVE

Body to Hear Details of Girls' Charges Against Man Held in Iowa

Details regarding the asserted activities of Charles Westcott, now in jail at Manchester, Iowa, will be placed before the county grand jury on Tuesday by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Bonner Richardson.

Westcott had previously been accused in a complaint of attacks upon Olive Fern Elliott, 2709 Verdun avenue, and Betty Rorison, 1857 West Jefferson street. He is said to have attacked the girls, while they were walking along the street. Westcott was released on bail, but failed to appear when his case was called for trial.

The fugitive was traced by Deputy Sheriff Fox to Seattle and then in succession to Butte, New York, Rio de Janeiro and back to New Orleans. Learning that Westcott was heir to an estate of $125,000 near Manchester, Deputy Fox informed the police there. The arrest followed.

Because of the seriousness of the asserted offenses, the District Attorney's office decided to ask for indictments and for heavy bail. A deputy sheriff will leave shortly to bring Westcott here for trial.

KIWANIANS TO MEET

A large delegation of members from the Hollywood Kiwanis Club will make a trip to Tujunga this evening, where a special convention of Kiwanians from this district will be conducted. Music and entertainment and a dinner will be the features of the program.

TWO MORE CAMPS FOR BOYS, GIRLS

Commission is Preparing New City Playgrounds in Griffith Park

To the boys and girls of Los Angeles the City Playground Commission has announced that two new camps in Griffith Park are being made and will be turned over for their exclusive use.

The boys' camp will be opened this Friday. Fifty Boy Scouts under Scout Executive DeGroot will hike to the playground and take part in the dedicatory ceremonies.

The camp is situated a mile and a half north of the Griffith Park golf course and is reached by a trail from the end of the bus line. The property that the commission has acquired is the old City Farm and was officially turned over for the commission's use last week by the Park Department.

According to Engineer Hoyt of the Playground Commission, the City Council has been asked to appropriate sufficient funds for rehabilitating the farmhouse into a suitable clubhouse and for the construction of a large swimming pool and athletic fields. Tents are now being set up on the camp grounds to accommodate the Boy Scouts on Friday, Mr. Hoyt said.

The commission plans to start a model farm at the camp, where the boys may learn scientific cultivation. The produce grown will be sold to pay the camp expenses.

Tentative plans for a girls' camp, also in Griffith Park near the golf course, were announced by the commission. Land has been acquired in a canyon opposite the golf course and Engineer Hoyt has been inarfucted to draw up plans for the playground. A clubhouse, athletic fields and a swimming pool will be constructed. The camp will be modeled on the Indian idea. It will probably be opened within a month, Mr. Hoyt said.

Spits Out Bullet as Physicians Prepare Probe

Central avenue gained another name for its traditional hall of fame Saturday night. It was that of Ben Cooper, 769 Ceres street.

Cooper was taken to Receiving Hospital a few minutes after he had been demonstrating his pistol to Fannie Brankley, negress. While the gun was in the hand of Fannie, it accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Cooper's mouth. Police Surgeon Sawyerien began an examination to determine whether the bullet had entered the skull. Ben, However, relieved the doctor's worry.

"Here's the bullet, doc," he explained. "Ah just spit it out with mah teeth."

The only injury sustained by the negro was a bullet hole in his lower lip and the loss of three teeth.

SIXTEENTH STREET TO CELEBRATE

Association Will Have Its Inaugural Banquet at the Biltmore Thursday

The Sixteenth street Improvement Association will hold its inaugural banquet of 600 members at the Biltmore next Thursday evening.

The opening of Sixteenth street to the west beaches forms a link in the major traffic plans of the city for the relief of the present congested condition of traffic. The Sixteenth-street Improvement Association has undertaken to throw open the dead end of this traffic artery. The boulevard already has been opened from Culver City to Venice, but there is much to be accomplished between Culver City and Crenshaw Boulevard.

Among the speakers for the evening will be United States District Judge Bledsoe. Harry C. Culver president of the association, will preside. Other speakers will be Boyle Workman, president of the City Council, and G. Gordon Whitnall, director of the City Planning Commission. W. D. Murray, secretary of the association, has charge of the program.

Gasoline Used for Cleaning Is Fatal to Woman

She was a practitioner and teacher of Christian Science and for the last six years was a Christian Science lecturer. Her mother was one of the pioneer Scientists of Michigan.

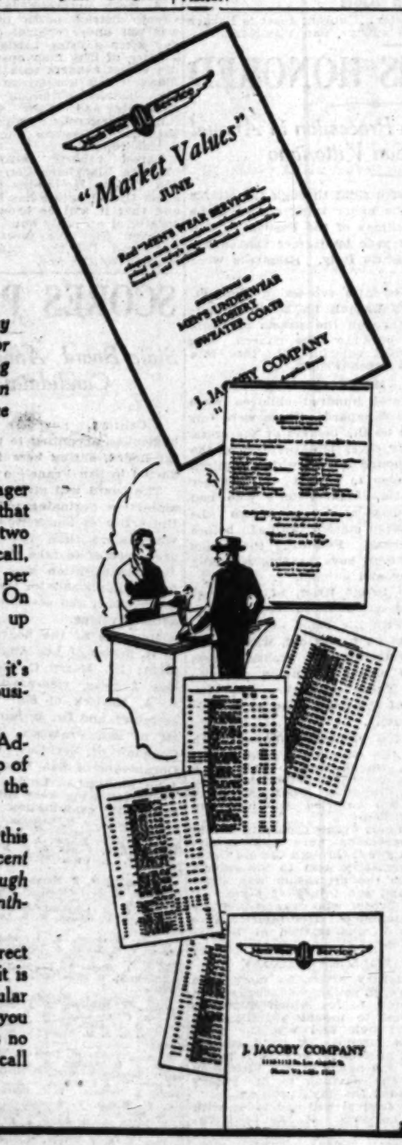
Sim Crabill SAYS

"There's a 'market value' to any kind of advertising, good, bad, or indifferent. But the advertising that comes with calendar precision has about the highest market value of any."



A CERTAIN sales manager in a recent test, found that his salesmen sold only two per cent on the first call, while the second visit netted three per cent and the third, seven per cent. On the fourth his percentage jumped up to fifty-five!

All of which goes to prove that it's the follow-ups that bring in the business.

The same axiom applies to Direct Advertising: It's the regular follow-up of your prospects as consistently as the first day of the month, that pays.

The J. Jacoby Company verified this when they said: "At least ten per cent of our business comes regularly through the mail as a direct result of our monthly issue of Market Values."

The "market value" of your own direct mail advertising will be greater if it is planned and carried out on a regular schedule. Let us get together with you and discuss such a plan. There is no obligation, merely write, phone, or call for our Service Department.

HO! FOR A SUNBURNLESS WORLD

Mr. Andrews of Terre Haute, Out of the Agony-Filled Hours That Follow Indiscreet Tarrying on Southland Strand, Evolves Plan for Brothers at the Bath

From the time of prehistoric man to the present day, humanity has been stimulated to great deeds, brilliant discoveries and epochal inventions by man's ability to translate his experiences, his sorrows and his sufferings into tangible evidence of his superiority, not only over time and distance, but also over those handicaps encountered by a hairless animal in a world of sun and storm, of heat and cold.

Man, beset by the elements, invented clothes, designed a dwelling place and eventually equipped it with a steam radiator or an electric furnace. Handicapped by his inability to move rapidly from one place to another, he continually has advanced the science of transportation until distance no longer impresses him. Unable to pierce the remoteness of space with his unaided eye, he invented the telescope.

The telephone, the telegraph and the radio are other examples of his indomitable will to overcome difficulties. Many of these aids to comfort and to the greater enjoyment of life, as hereinbefore indicated, spring from the depths of human anguish and represent the slow, tortuous and agonized struggling of an unconquerable soul in its surge to success.

NOW AS TO GEORGE

And now we come, logically, to the case of George Andrews, railroader of Terre Haute, Ind., and his stupendous, boon-bestowing invention.

Mr. Andrews, Mrs. Andrews and a party of relatives and friends recently visited a near-by beach—Santa Monica, to be exact—and there disported on the sands and in the waves for several hours. If Mr. Andrews had heeded the repeated warnings of his California friends he would have escaped, it is true, the agony that later was his, but true, also, he never would have evolved his brilliant invention designed to retain all the pleasures of a dip in the surf minus some of its disadvantages.

To be brief, Mr. Andrews, fresh from his humid home in Terre Haute, tarried too long on the sands. He laughed to scorn such words of caution as were offered; for accustomed only to the pallid sun of Indiana he little guessed that the solar system in Southern California possesses an ardency superior to fog banks and seemingly impenetrable clouds. Gazing overhead into fold upon fold of cool, windswept vapor, he thought he was safe.

And then he "came down" with a sunburn that would make Terre Haute gasp a concerted gasp of concentrated consternation. A sunburn in Terre Haute such as Mr. Andrews came down with would be renowned far and wide in Indiana, even so far distant as South Bend and Muncie and way stations.

OH, HOW HE SUFFERED

Mr. Andrews suffered—he will say how much he suffered—for three days and three nights. And then the great idea literally burst upon him. His invention, as in all such cases of genuine import, is very simple. He recognizes that the beaches will be patronized during the summer months by countless thousands—all of them subject, even as himself, to the deadly effects of a sun capable of sending its rays through an unguessed thickness of mist.

His idea, as has been suggested, is simple.

"Just build a tunnel from the bathhouse to the surf," says Mr. Andrews, tenderly adjusting his collar, "wait until high tide, when the water fills the lower half of the tunnel, then advance, through the tunnel, to the water's edge, plunge in and paddle around to your heart's content; then emerge and return, through the tunnel, to the bathhouse, resume your clothes and so return home—happy and wholly free from sunburn. It's a great idea."

Mr. Andrews is not selfish. He does not propose personally to profit from his invention. He freely gives it to a world constantly threatened and harassed. He asks but one privilege—that of being among the first to enjoy its superlative advantages. Until his invention is utilized and becomes a reality Mr. Andrews makes no secret of the fact that local bathhouses will have a regular and faithful customer.

EDEMPTIVE FORCE SEEN AS CHRISTIANITY'S BASIS

Culbertson Declares Love of God Is Higher Law Than Man's Social System

Declaring that the mightiest forces in the universe are redemptive forces, and calling Christianity the world's greatest religion, because of the love and mercy it offers to weak and sinful humanity, Dr. Henry Coe Culbertson, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church, brought an uplifting message to the KHJ audience in his sermon yesterday from The Times broadcasting station. Preaching on "Magnanimity," Dr. Culbertson spoke in part as follows:

...human legal and social systems, all other religions, all undertake to make the world better by rewarding the good and by punishing, reforming and destroying the evildoers. But Christianity thrills us with the message that our God has undertaken to make the world over by a boundless redeeming love and forgivingness, which finds the worst sinner of all as a child whose wilfulness has led him astray, and whose image has ceased to be dear to the Father's heart.

"Science and history alike attest with increasing eloquence that the real result of wrong thinking and wrong acting is suffering. The laws of nature and social relationships are inexorable. The germs of selfishness are as dangerous as germs of disease, but over and above all else is the teaching that our God is full of greatheartedness, who refuses to be insulted or turned away by a traitor's blow in the face, who treats His enemies with an unthinkable love. This universe is not a mere machine of force and law, but it is an intensely personal universe, whose supreme purpose is the developing of men and women into God-like personalities, which is thrilling through and through with God's personal, loving care for all mankind, and the highest laws of all are the principles of redemption.

"LAW OF LOVE RULES

"Life is compared to the ship which sails the ocean like a miniature world with all the laws of its being operating apparently inexorably. But the cry, 'Man overboard' suddenly brings a new group of high-laws into play, and the giant ship in spite of all the urgency of business, swings from her course and boats are lowered and even at the whole ship's company is in the rescue of the unfortunate. That is like the laws of the universe. The highest law of all is redeeming love.

"The love of God is not a mere social sentimentality that ignores wrong. Punishment, suffering and loss follow all unworthy words and deeds, but the purpose of this punishment is love and goodwill, and all the while there is sounding through the call of God's love and promise of possible transformation of character and new life and hope. The mightiest forces everywhere are the redemptive forces. Cyclones may blast and destroy forests, and the shells of war may tear gashes in the hillsides, but God and nature are always working to make the beautiful again if only good have sway. Lives may be torn by sin, but God can make them beautiful again if we give Him a chance. This message is found all through the Bible. We are told that God loves the unthankful and evil, that He makes His sun shine upon the evil and the good and sends fruitful rain upon the just and unjust alike. This sublime quality of mercy was the most outstanding characteristic of Jesus. His heart and the unbroken purpose of His own life were revealed in the words when He solemnly bids us love our enemies and do them good, that we might be sons of God, and to be merciful as our Divine Father is merciful, who forgives as we expect to be forgiven. Everywhere He radiated the spirit of boundless forgiveness and goodwill. Whereas, the leaders of His day, the scribes, turned in scorn and contempt from publicans and sinners, He befriended those outcasts and real friendliness. Instead of driving His followers to stand up for their rights, He undertook to save society by bidding them forgive all wrongs and do for others as much as was received or asked of them. He did not hesitate to think that society could be saved on the basis of exactly as much as by forbearance and forgiveness. The attitude of forgiveness was His chief way of winning hearts to God. Perhaps millions of us have wept over the earnest prayer on the cross, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do!'

"FORGIVENESS FIRST

"The spirit of God takes possession of us, we will be forgiving. Listen to Jesus. When He taught the Lord's Prayer, He was careful to repeat the injunction to forgiveness as the only attitude in which we could receive forgiveness. He declared that if we should come to the altar with a gift while holding a grudge against one he must leave and get right with that one before returned to pray. How beautiful is His parable about the king who forgave a man who owed him $10,000,000 and then that very man went out and began to choke a poor unfortunate who owed him than $20! We are shocked when we are unforgiving in spite of all that God and fellow men have done for us.

"Jesus thrills us when He shows the greatheartedness of the Father to the alien, the stranger, the outcast of soul made him forget all national prejudices and narrownesses to help the poor man who had fallen on the highway. No man before or since has been more unjustly attacked, buffeted, spit upon and crucified than Jesus of Nazareth. But His towers victoriously above all other men of history because He did not return blow for blow, nor let His heart hate for hate, nor let His spirit be filled with resentment, but met it all with victorious kindness and goodwill to everyone. Even when He was betrayed by Judas He called His betrayer 'friend.'"

BRIGHT FUTURE PEOPLE ON EARTH

...on Earth and in the Next ...was the topic of a lecture ...esterday at Trinity Auditorium for the Bible Students, by Arthur W. Sibley. He said in part:

"The sentence of God, in Eden, was a death sentence: 'In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.' God did not say, 'I will send you to heaven because you are disobedient, or to hell because your wife coaxed you to eat the apple. God said, 'Dust thou art and to dust thou shall return.' So Adam and all the people on this earth, who have come through Adam's loins, all have gone down into death—good and bad—100,000 dying daily. What is their hope? God planned it all from the beginning; the lamb was slain before the foundation of the earth was laid—in His plan. 'All that are in their graves shall come forth, both the just and the unjust.' Why do you marvel at this? This earth is the home and eternal residence of the human race. They have had no other promise. Listen to these scriptures. 'Every man shall live under his own vine and fig tree.' 'Not one man shall build and another inhabit, but every man shall live in his own house.' 'The earth was made to be inhabited.' Jesus purchased the world by His death—buying back what Adam lost."

SPEAKS GOOD WORD FOR MOTHER-IN-LAW

A kindly word for the mothers-in-law of the world was voiced yesterday by Dr. Bruce Brown in a sermon at the South Park Christian Church. Dr. Brown said in part:

"We would remember tonight the one so often forgotten and neglected, the mother-in-law. It is one of our popular indoor sports to jibe and jest about her, to malign and abuse her. I ask the young wives to remember that the time is coming when they will be mothers-in-law. There is no other grief so poignant as that of being ignored and forgotten. These young mothers have yet to learn what it means to have these little boys in coming years go first to others with their confidences. The hands that are now so often outstretched for help will hold the hands of another. It is hard, say what you will, for a mother to give her boy, blood of her blood, over to another. All these mothers will know the meaning of that some day.

Does mother-in-law seem to be in the way? She does not take up any more room than you will, sometime. You will gather harvests in coming years from the seed, the words, you are sowing now. How would you like to feel that there was no place for you, that you have no right to make a suggestion to one for whom you had given your love and life? I would speak a word of warning to mothers-in-law. Don't give advice unless it is appreciated. Practice several hours daily keeping the lips closed with a smile upon the face. Remember that your crown and scepter of authority have passed to other hands. Don't stand on your rights. Let other people live their own lives. Make yourself indispensable through love and service. Pray that you may have strength and wisdom to be as good a mother-in-law as you were a mother. Then they shall rise up and call you blessed."

TELLS HOW MAN MAY LEARN TO KNOW GOD

Rev. William C. Isett, pastor of Amanda Chapel, preached yesterday on "Our Fathers' God—and Ours." In part he said:

"We get acquainted with God by association and not by analysis. Physiologists analyze the body, but that only helps them to classify; it does not make them better acquainted with the physical form of their friend. They know his face by its expression—its spirit—not by its contour. A plaster mask of their departed loved one, or a photograph, is the image of only one expression out of millions by which their friend is physically known to them. It is the same with the laws of the mind. Psychology does not reveal the thought-life of our friend, but only the tracks along which his thought operates. A railroad track is not an engine. Psychology is the track. The mind, rushing by in all the power of its own energy, is the engine. The parts of the engine itself may be known, just as we may know the cells of the brain, but the power, what it is or why it is, is not subject to analysis. So with the spirit; so with God. We may study spiritual laws. That is only psychic phenomena. But let us not confuse it with the spirit itself. We learn to know and love God only by association. We learn by experience that His power, which cannot be defined, is infinite; that His holiness, which cannot be comprehended or made according to rule, is penetrative beyond conception; that His justice, which is never cruel, never makes a mistake, is consistent with His Fatherhood; that His goodness flees from analysis; that His truth is the same yesterday, today and forever. It is the over-emphasis of any one of these attributes of God which causes misunderstanding. So that to fully know God we must rest in His immutable, eternal and infinite love."

REVEALS DANGER OF TURNING FROM GOD

Preaching on "Signs of the Times," at the Figueroa Christian Church yesterday, Rev. F. E. Hagin declared that a state of anarchy has always marked the end of those nations that have forgotten God. In part Mr. Hagin said:

"When men cut loose from God, there is no restraint upon the desires and passions. When men cut loose from established laws and customs, they quickly revert to the violence of savagery. A business man, speaking of New York City, its dances, its half-clothed women and sexuality, says: 'There is no restraint of tradition because there is no tradition. There is no restraint of religion because there is no religion. The individual is placed above everything.' Men may cut loose from God and exult in their so-called freedom, but they are sure to meet other men who also have their ideas of freedom. Hence comes violence among men as naturally as ferocity among beasts."

HUNDREDS IN KLAN REGALIA AT CHURCH

Approximately 600 men, women and children in Klan regalia last night heard Rev. Robert P. Shuler preach a sermon in which he warned the Ku Klux Klan that the only way the organization can succeed is to live its program and platform.

Politicians who want to ride into office on Klan support and leaders who do not live their creed will be the ones to wreck the Klan, if ever it is to be wrecked, and not external foes, Dr. Shuler said in his sermon.

"I plead with you, beware those demoralizing and aggressive forces that creep into any large and successful organization," he told his audience. "Vote solidly, but be sure you vote for men whose lives and records are clean," he declared.

The robed and hooded members of the various branches of the Klan marched into the church after the place was cleared for them. After they were seated the general public was allowed.

CIVIC ART BODY TO HAVE PICNIC DINNER

The first meeting of this fiscal year for the Civic Music and Art Association will be conducted in the Hollywood Bowl picnic grounds on Tuesday, August 5, Mrs. J. J. Carter, president, stated yesterday. Mrs. Carter will speak briefly on the objectives of the association. Alexander Carr will act as master of ceremonies and will introduce the artists on the program. Music will be furnished by the Angelus Male Quartet, Charles LeRoy Munro, director. Each member of the association attending is asked to bring a picnic dinner.

COUNCIL WILL HEAR CONDEMNATION PLAN

A public hearing will be conducted this morning before the City Council on the proposed condemnation of property on June street in Hollywood for the purpose of creating a park there. The land is now owned by a colony of Japanese, it is stated, and neighbors recently approved of a district assessment for the opening of a park there. The Hollywood Chamber of Commerce will be represented at this hearing by Harry Barratt, assistant secretary.

NATIVE SONS CHIEF WILL VISIT PARLORS

INITIATION, BENEFIT AND RECEPTION ON LIST OF AFFAIRS

Edward J. Lynch of San Francisco, Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, will make his first visit to subordinate parlors located in Southern California during the week beginning tomorrow. He will visit the San Diego Parlor tomorrow and there superintend the initiation of a large class of candidates.

On Wednesday he will be the guest of Long Beach Parlor No. 239 at the Mission Theater, where a benefit performance will be given to swell the funds of this lodge. On Thursday evening he will be tendered a reception at Oaks Tavern. This will be followed by an open meeting at Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 at its hall at 134 West Seventeenth street. Five Native Sons organizations from this city and surrounding towns will participate in this meeting. On Friday Lynch will visit Pasadena Parlor No. 259.

Lynch will take up with the various parlors he is to visit a number of important problems affecting the welfare of the organization and State. The conservation and protection of the forest reserves in the State he will especially stress at the various meetings.

SENTENCE TODAY FOR SWINDLER CONVICT

FRED MAIN ALSO WILL GET CHANCE TO PLEAD TO ANOTHER CHARGE

When Fred Main appears before Judge Hardy today he will be sentenced to San Quentin for from one to ten years on a charge of grand larceny. He then will be allowed to enter a plea to another similar charge and a date will be set for his trial.

Main was found guilty by a jury last week of swindling several persons out of sums varying from $1000 to $15,000. The asserted offenses took place in 1920 and 1921, but Main was not arrested until two years later when he was found in New York. He put up $5000 bail there and disappeared until last January, when he was discovered in Oregon and brought here for trial.

The new charge may not be brought to trial until Main's release from person. It can be held to prevent his release on parole and to insure his serving of the entire term.

Specializing in sales of worthless stocks, according to Dep. Dist.-Atty. Jordan, Main picked for his victims women and children with little business experience and talked them into purchasing stock in various fictitious enterprises.

DIVIDING THE SPOIL

A production expert in the movies says that of every dollar paid in the creation of a picture 25 cents goes to the actors. An average of 10 cents is paid for the story and scenario. Maybe the carpenter and the press agent divide the other 65 per cent.

A REAL FARMER

Senators Howell and Capper of the wheat belt, who have been doing some voting with the La Follette group in Congress, both definitely announce their hearty support of President Coolidge and the administration policies. Both express their purpose to take active part in the campaign for the success of the Republican ticket. The farmers realize that President Coolidge understands their problems better than all the political ranchers at Washington and can give them more substantial support and sympathy. He is in perfect tune with the agricultural industry.

HELLO, BILL

William Jennings Bryan began his political career as a citizen of Illinois, but removed to Nebraska after his thirtieth year and became of national importance when elected to Congress from that State. He is now a citizen of Florida, where he achieved a residence a few years ago, and it was as a delegate from Florida that he went to the New York convention. Now he is acquiring property and interests in the Los Angeles district and it is his ultimate purpose to make this his permanent home. He told Tammany that he was through with national conventions, but it is very possible that he will turn up in the next Democratic gathering as a delegate from the Golden West. If so, it will be the fourth State he has stood up for in his picturesque career.

SERVITOR OF SUNSHINE

Palmer Cox, the amiable creator of the Brownie cartoons, has passed. His gracefully grotesque drawings were the joy of the generation that is now at maturity. The artist was 84 years old when he died and began his real career as a newspaper worker in California back in the early '70's, but went East in 1876 and had made his home in New York for most of the time since. He had long had a residence, however, at his birthplace in Granby, Que., and he was there resting at ease when the final summons came. His Brownie cartoons in the papers and his extended series of Brownie books and pictures were the especial delight of the little ones and the artist added much to the joys of the world thereby. In his way the artist was a devoted apostle of sunshine.

A VALUABLE ASSET

A wealthy man, a banker, whose name would be recognized by many persons, was heard to say that from his own experience and that of other men of his acquaintance the greatest asset any man can have to promote a successful business career is affability. In this day of rush and competition there is danger of this admirable trait being overlooked. An invalided veteran of the World War complains that he is not treated courteously at the door. It is not so much what you say as the manner in which you say it that seems harsh to the man who is compelled to seek a livelihood. This brings to mind the familiar episode in the life of Salmon P. Chase, who is said to have "licked" a fellow-student for calling him a "Yankee." Chase defended himself by saying that "It was not what he said, but the way he said it." A soft answer turneth away wrath and a cheerful refusal may turn one away with a light heart.

ON A CASH BASIS

At the risk of calling down on his presumptuous head the ire of all the proud parents in California, L. E. Ross, director of the State Bureau of Vital Statistics, has rushed in where angels fear to tread. He has placed the cold, commercial valuation of $254 on the life of each new-born babe.

Fancy telling any proud mother, or father, either, of a cooing, pink-toed, ambrosial infant that the heir to the family misfortunes was worth only a quarter of a thousand dollars to Uncle Sam. Murders have been committed for less reason than this. In the eyes of the family the youthful wonder is beyond price. Considering the ambition with which he usually fills his parent forthwith to work and strive the harder, he is deserving of an increased economic valuation.

One suspects that the director is a bit of a pessimist, since he likewise avers that at the age of 60 the average person's commercial value to society is exactly nothing. While 60 does appear rather a venerable age to those who have to travel a long while, yet before they reach it, nevertheless, when one gazes over the list of great men who are occupying high stations in the world, one can hardly concur with the theory of Dr. Osler. The director asserts that a man reaches the peak of his value at 26, and of course, if most of those one meets who are 26 are at their peak, small wonder they are valueless at 60.

ENDING THE WORLD FLIGHT

In announcing their intention of officially ending the 'round the world flight at Seattle instead of at Clover Field, Santa Monica, the official starting point, as originally intended, those in charge of the flight at the office of the Chief of Air Service, United States Army, state that they are so doing in order to save a total of nineteen days elapsed time on the flight.

They do not set up that it would take nineteen days longer to fly to Santa Monica. Their point is this: The 'round the world planes started originally from Southern California as land planes. They flew to Seattle and at that point switched from wheel landing gear to pontoons for the trip across the Pacific. From the time they left Clover Field until they actually "hopped off" from Seattle was nineteen days. They therefore deduce, possibly assisted by arguments proceeding from the Northwest, that if they wind up the flight at Seattle they can lop off the nineteen days lost at the start.

As originally laid out, the 'round the world flight was not intended as a race. Speed was not the essence of the contract. The Air Service laid out a very carefully arranged schedule and proposed to stick to it. When the British, French and other nations announced entries for a 'round the world "race," the Army authorities in Washington reiterated their stand that they proposed first of all to demonstrate that a squadron of airplanes could fly around the world. They would make what speed was consistent with safety, but they weren't to be "dared" into trying to get around in too much of a hurry.

Fortune has favored the United States and our good judgment has been vindicated by the fact that the Portuguese and French entries have failed and the British entry, in an entirely new airplane, is so far behind us that our squadron, ably commanded by Lieut. Lowell Smith of Los Angeles, is practically certain of the distinction of being first to circumnavigate the globe by air. To resort to a quibble in switching our own announced plans to enable us to make faster time than the British airmen seems a bit unsportsmanlike and unnecessary, especially as it is understood that all time for waits, repairs and weather delays are to be deducted anyway. If this is done, experts say the flying time will be as short or shorter from Clover Field as from Seattle.

But if waits are not taken out, then to be consistent in this new policy we should have the flyers continue to the Aleutian Islands, where the three planes remained from April 19 until May 9 while waiting for the missing Maj. Martin. As long as we are going to switch from the original starting point, why not do a good job of it and save thirty-eight days instead of nineteen?

The 'round-the-world flight is an undertaking of large significance in the history of the world. The completion of the first flight around the globe will rank with the first sail across the Atlantic by Christopher Columbus. Many a ship has since made faster time than the old Santa Maria, Pinta and Nina, but none has ever stolen the glory that lay in being first to make the trip. The flight 'round the world is too great an accomplishment and the United States is too great a country to have our greatest aerial triumph marred by quibbling.

The 'round-the-world flight officially started from Clover Field, Santa Monica, Southern California, on the morning of March 17, 1924. The log books of the planes themselves have so recorded it, and it will so be registered in history. The proper place to end this epochal event is the place where it started. In fact, it can never be truly said that the flight around the world has been completed until the planes once more come to rest on the historic terrain of Clover Field.

WHERE THE WINNER LOSES

Down at El Centro the other day a man had a lucky streak at the gaming table and made a big winning, but in a difficulty that arose over the cards he lost his life, so that he did not quit ahead of the game, after all. As a matter of fact he would not have done so had he left the table with all the money in the house in his wallet.

It is hard to drill into the heads of those inclined to take a chance on everything offered in the way of a wager that their gains, where they make them, are unreal—that if they win they lose; and yet nothing is clearer in a moral or material way, for if one wins one is encouraged to go deeper and deeper into the exceedingly risky business of gambling. A series of winnings at the outset has proved the ruin of many a young man at Monte Carlo, for it has led him to the belief that by continuing he might break the bank and carry away a fortune, whereas what has happened in at least ninety-nine cases in a hundred has been that the player himself has been broken.

We leave the theologian to point out the many ways in which one loses morally while winning in a game of chance, for, aside from the matter of morals, one has to consider the law of the land, which forbids such games and even refuses to countenance lotteries; and most of all one must take into account that rule of human nature based upon sordid acquisitiveness, which often works in the mind a frenzy for gambling that, in the case of the amateur, not only results in the neglect of business, but generally in great material losses. For eventually he runs up against the shark who easily rakes in his pile.

The dispatches tell us of a man who has just emerged from Wall street with a big killing, but who advises others to "keep out of it." It was good advice, for his winnings represented the accumulated losses of probably 10,000 little speculators. A game in which some one must lose in order for you to win is a good one to avoid. Money so acquired seldom sticks. If the winners in all other games of chance were as frank and full of advice to the unwary as this one there would be far less gambling.

There is no lure in losses, but these never are stressed like the gains. The professional gambler always dilates upon the possibility of his victims quitting away ahead of the game, and when the amateur gambler wins he is prone to parade his gains and to do so with an air of encouragement, whereas he is not, as a rule, very keen to advertise his losses.

NOT SO WORSE

Only one mosquito in 1000 is likely to bear any infection or parasite and this one prefers the association of a horse or cow to that of a man. Therefore, the chance of a man getting a nip of poisonous skeeter in his veins is rather remote, after all. Dwellers in New Jersey may still have a few happy years ahead of them.

BOOKS THAT DISGUST

Dr. Joseph Collins, an eastern psychologist of note, asserts the fear entertained by so many people that the present flood of revoltingly realistic literature will have a deteriorating effect on public morals is unfounded. So sure is he of that fact that he has written a book to prove his point, after having waded through countless novels whose writers, he asserts, are "suffering from sex obession."

The literary output of these scavengers of art, he insists, stamps the authors as suffering sadly from abnormality, but the books themselves do little harm. The doctor has spent thirty years of his life treating those who are unbalanced either emotionally or mentally, and not one of his patients ever came to his sad condition as a result of imbibing immoral literature.

The average normal person would react to the especially flagrant books exactly as he would to any other objectionable sight and would derive quite as much pleasure from them, to quote the physician, as he would "from watching hogs root the soil of their sties." If the censors would stop agitating the question and thus giving the books valuable publicity they would die out soon, he avers. Mankind likes potatoes and beef as a regular diet rather than paprika and spices.

For the most part the books are not read by the viciously inclined, according to Dr. Collins. Those who have leanings the wrong way are not wasting time locating wickedness in books, but are out in quest of the real article. Consequently the books influence few and, to clinch the matter, the doctor presents himself as an example. Because of his profession he has had to read "bad books" all his life and, he declares, after each perusal he was revolted anew and, "more beholden to morality, abstract and concrete."

AMERICA MISREPRESENTED

The necessity for a thorough overhauling of our motion-picture standards, as lately determined by leading film producers, is evidenced in a report issued by T. P. O'Connor, president of the British Board of Film Censors. He says: "The board has been able to bring its standards before the notice of American producers, with the result that there has been a noticeable decrease in the number of films submitted by them depicting scenes of extreme violence and lawlessness and a greater avoidance of stories which turn on undiluted crime and immorality."

France threatens to prohibit American productions in Paris and the Department of the Seine altogether, because the films are inflammable, both as to material and stories. Who could have dreamed that anything emanating from Hollywood would be too spicy for the Gallic taste? Italy, too, finds itself obliged to censor Yankee films, not because of their immorality, but out of repugnance for the free display of pistols and views of crimes of violence.

In commenting on a speech made by Will H. Hays in London recently, in which he assured the British public that "steps have been taken to insure that every film leaving America shall faithfully portray American life and aspirations," a foreign writer in the New York Times remarks that our movies displayed abroad libel us sorely. "Westerns" and "thrillers" are what the foreign cinema appetite expects in the way of American productions, and these convey a wholly false idea of our national life. We are depicted as a country of outlaws, where the fair lady's hand goes rather to the handy wielder of a revolver than to the virtuous hero.

Thus the less educated portions of the foreign public conceive America as a country where a major portion of the inhabitants earn their livelihoods running dance halls and holding up stages and walking around looking like artillery exhibits. In the interests of international understanding the writer suggests that we send over some pictures that portray our normal life in all its charm and wholesomeness.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Scene in the French Chamber

"In the interest of religious peace France must treat its citizens of different denominations with equal good will, but that does not mean that the republic as a temporal power should treat with the Pope as a sovereign," says M. Herriot in the French Chamber. "With that declaration itself you will create division amongst the people," shouts Gen. Saint Juste. "You general, murderer, shut up!" comes from Simond Reynaud, orthodox radical. At this moment Garcehery comes down the aisle shouting: "Long live the soviets." Two Socialist Deputies, Parny and Claussart, throw themselves upon him and pummel him right and left. Then Marty, leader of the Communist bloc, strips for action. That is enough. M. Painleve, President of the Chamber, puts on his hat, signalling that the session has been adjourned. The usual melee follows blows, curses, epithets, wild gesticulations, ushers getting the worst of it.

Sons of the Moon

For the first time in missionary work the Lutheran Church of America proposes to use the airplane. Dr. E. A. Late, formerly of the British aviation service, is to be the pioneer missionary aviator. He sails shortly on the Aquitania and will make his headquarters in Liberia. From there he will visit several uncharted districts in the heart of the black continent. To the natives the sight of an airplane will be like a miracle and ought to establish the missionary's reputation at once as something at least akin to the supernatural.

Singing to Freedom

Ernest Toller, young German poet, has sung his way to freedom. He was thrown into prison for lauding the new republican government in the days of Bavaria's opposition to the new order of things. He also steadfastly opposed bloodshed during those days of turmoil and excitement. While in prison he wrote a play, "Mass-Man," that became the most successful production in German theaters during the past two years. The Junkers detested it and made the more certain that Toller served his full term for participating in the revolution. The play and a subsequent one called "Hinkermann" depicted Germany with an ugly reality. Not the country of genial beer-garden parties, but of starving children, cruel, bloodthirsty reactionaries and ridiculous monarchists, with spiked helmets, that was the picture drawn by Toller.

RIPPLING RHYMES

UPS AND DOWNS

Said Mr. Ups to Mr. Downs, "You've lived in fifty-seven towns; you always were inclined to roam, while wiser people stayed at home. To keep on moving was your plan, to far Beersheba, then to Dan; no useful job could hold you long, though you were capable and strong; the lure of villages remote still summoned you and got your goat.
Now both of us are growing old, the silver hairs displace the gold; we lack the pep we used to have and we must rub our joints with salve. But I have kopecks placed in brine; I need not murmur or repine; in summer heat or winter blast I do not need to stand aghast. But you are busted, Mr.
Downs; you have no store of minted crowns; your plan of life I don't indorse; you surely suffer keen remorse." Said Mr.
Downs to Mr. Ups, "You surely hand me bitter cups. Had I been blessed with prudent dome I should have stayed right here at home, improving all the precious time and saving now and then a dime. But I have journeyed east and west, at Gaffer
Wanderlust's behest, and old age finds me, as you say, without a ruble put away. But I have memories, my friend, that are a solace without end. I've seen the Panorama,
Life; I've had my share in noble strife;
I've played a hand in thrilling games, I've known great men and splendid dames, while you collected cobwebs here in sad old Punktown-by-the-Weir. Though on poor fare the roamer supe, he may be happy, Mr. Ups."

THIS IS THE DAY

The first official railway mail car was tried out in the year 1862. The scheme was invented by William A. Davis, postmaster of St. Joseph, Mo. The first mail car was improvised out of an ordinary baggage coach in which pigeonholes and pouches were arranged. It was an immediate success and the idea was at once adopted for all trunk railroads. Montgomery Blair of Missouri was at that time Postmaster-General in President Lincoln's Cabinet.

NEW THEORY OF SOLAR SYSTEM

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT

For more than a century the Laplace theory of the origin and development of the solar system out of a vast tenuous nebula has held the sanction of astronomers. But under the new and exacting mathematical demands of physicists the beautiful nebular theory has been deemed inadequate to account for some features of the existing system.

The powerful telescopes of recent years have revealed many binary stars—pairs of great suns revolving swiftly round a common center of gravity. Only a few million miles apart, their vastness and proximity to each other must occasion the production of enormous tides.

This is evidenced by the fact that when we see them broadside, so to speak, great atmospheric cones of blazing light are pointed toward each other and they appear much brighter in consequence of these expanded cones of light than when the two suns in their revolutions about each other are placed one behind the other and we consequently see only the disc light of each sun.

Now suppose that among the thousand million swift-moving suns within the ken of our great telescopes some vagrant orb should sweep past another great sun so close that it would raise an enormous tide, in other words, drawing a vast segment of the blazing atmosphere toward itself.

Suppose again that this visiting star was powerful enough to wrench this blazing atmospheric cone from the parent orb, then, obedient to the rotary motion with which it was moving round the parent sun's axis, the detached cone would continue to revolve round that body in the same direction.

But this long, slender cone of partially condensed, cloud-like matter would be easily broken up into separate fragments, each of which would condense into globular bodies of various magnitudes. The larger fragments would be from the central portion of the cone at a considerable distance from the parent body, of which Jupiter and Saturn are examples in our system.

But these fragments would be somewhat smaller near the distant and narrow end of the cone; and so we have Uranus and Neptune the most distant and smallest of the giant planets in our system. As it is assumed that the fragments near the sun would be much smaller or because its great attractive power would tend to draw all matter to a dense core to itself. This may account for the existence of Mars, the earth, Venus and Mercury in our own system.

In proportion to its size the earth is the heaviest body in our solar system, being five and one-half times heavier than the same bulk of water. Saturn, on the other hand, is so light that if there were an ocean large enough the ringed planet would float on its surface like a ship.

And now the question arises in the inquisitive mind: Whence the stars that adorn our firmament? It was the massive vagrant sun that in its swift flight through space almost grazed our own orb, producing a gigantic cone-like flame in its burning surface and, in tearing off that massive cone of its flaming atmosphere, spun on its destined course through the universe, leaving our own sun to take care of its little family of worlds as best it might?

Was it Sirius, the brightest star in one of the nearest stars to us in the heavens, now flying away from our section of the sidereal system with almost unthinkable velocity? If so, it has traveled through millions of miles since that tremendous disruption of our system has given us our beautiful family of planets.

Looking in the opposite direction we find that our sun is actually sailing, at the rate of twenty miles one-half miles per second, toward the giant star Vega, thirty light years distant. But countless millions of years before the sun reaches its astronomical goal it will be a burned-out cinder, and the earth will roll a frozen ball in lifeless space.

Do you ask why one should waste mental effort in contemplating such a dismal future for our prosperous earthly sphere? The human mind is so constituted that it cannot refrain from glancing through the abysmal corridors of the past, nor does it hesitate to traverse the celestial highways of the future wherever they may lead.

THE DREAM!

BY KATHERINE LIPKE

He hadn't a cent with which to go
Out to the boundless west.
He was just a boy in a small, small town,
Too tired at night to rest.

He hadn't a cent and he had a load
To bear, but he loved to dream
Of himself astride a flying horse
Toward the distant mountain's gleam.

The country where he lived was flat,
But he dreamed of the mountains high;
His body was small, but he dreamed of strength
And massive arm and thigh.

He lived his dreams at his drudging work,
They wandered through his sleep;
Until his thoughts of free, swift strength
Had sunk within him deep.

And so he found as he worked each day
That his body tense had grown,
It leaped to the call of the daily task
For his seed of strength was sown.

The work he did was just as hard,
But this fact he did not guess;
For he dreamed he rode the sweeping plain;
. . . And he lived in happiness.

I WAS THINKIN'

By The Foothill Philosopher

I wonder if our reflections on the things we think we know don't often interfere with our thinking clearly about the things we'd like to find out?

David Hume concluded that the Bible is true because, he argued, it would be a greater miracle if it could be proved to be false. I've been wondering if it wouldn't go even harder with these cultists who have a habit of marrying many women if all of their wives proved faithful instead of carrying their troubles to the police?

* * *

I've been thinking that these persons who are forever spouting about "cities being so unnatural" would be the first ones to kick if our great municipalities were suddenly reduced to the pristine wilderness whence they sprang. One had as well call a house a picture or a garment unnatural as to characterize a city as unnatural. It is as natural for man to construct things of beauty and usefulness as it is for him to think—and, indeed, he cannot think without creating.

* * *

It is true that modern civilization contains many features that most of us do not like, but how many of us would be willing to exchange all that is best with all that is bad in modern life for all that was good with all that was worst in the dawn of man's history?

* * *

If you can't be optimistic, at least be resigned. If you must "kick," don't kick so hard that it shall hurt your foot worse than it does the object of your attack. If the criticism in your mind isn't constructive, leave it unvoiced. Maybe, after all, everything is right and maybe it's only your attitude toward life that is in need of change.

A TIP TO TOURIS

A Pittsburger returning from the Pacific Coast brings the information that in some parts of the [illegible] and particularly in Canada, tourists are being made the victims of a conspiracy of the unscrupulous [illegible] son. There appears to be no uniformity of prices and strangers especially are "taken in." This does not apply to all sections. Los Angeles and Southern California are conspicuous exceptions. Los Angeles, of which so many other sorts are exceedingly jealous, pays more regard for the stranger within the gates. It has a Chamber of Commerce which endeavors to be sure that travelers are not taken advantage of and one result is that Los Angeles has shown a greater development in the last few years than any other Pacific Coast city. The Chamber of Commerce receives complaints of unfair dealing and takes to task those persons who try to mulct the guest. Already the 1920 census showed a population of less than [illegible] but claimed that Los Angeles now has in excess of 1,000,000 persons. The tourists travel northward to Los Angeles, however, they are impressed with the difference in cost of living, which is "upward," and the farther one goes, with few exceptions, the greater the rise in the price of first-class accommodations, both in hotels and restaurants.

At some of the Canadian points of attraction for tourists the proprietors have only about three months in the year to make profits, but the wide difference in living costs is the cause of much unfavorable comment on the part of those who travel. Before undertaking tours would be well to consult the established agencies which can furnish them with accurate information concerning the cost of accommodations of various sorts in the West. By engaging rooms in advance much annoyance and inconvenience are avoided. Unfortunately, most headaches come to others dealing with persons who are coming to see where they can invest their interests lie and realize that there is no better advertisement than a satisfied guest.—[Pittsburg Dispatch to Telegraph.

PHARMACOPOEIA

The "wets" are up against another obstacle. It is "the pharmacopoeia." The United States Supreme court has brought out this monumental work to-day. It was a decision handed down by physicians cannot legally prescribe liquor as medicine. The court has also fortified itself with the Willis-Campbell ruling. Among those who have read the ruling is the Willis-Campbell bill. Under the provisions of this measure the Willis-Campbell beer Prescription Act provides for the sale of beer "an arbitrary and unreasonable prohibition of the use of a valuable medicinal agents." Thus was this final knock-out blow delivered.

"Neither beer nor any other intoxicating liquor is found as a medicinal remedy in the United States pharmacopoeia."

The only plausible argument left the "wets" is to have the United States pharmacopoeia declared unconstitutional. — [Kansas City Times.

PLAN FOR CITY COURTS URGED

Judge Valentine Has Report on Amendment Idea

Superior Tribunal Relief is Held Vital Factor

New Bench to Take Place of Two Now in Use

What is regarded unanimously by judges of the local Superior Court as one of the most important issues to be decided at the November election is the proposed Constitutional amendment approved by the State Legislature last year calling for the establishment in cities of 40,000 or more population, of municipal courts to take the place of township justice courts and police courts.

Judge Valentine of Superior Court, an active worker in the campaign to have the proposed law ratified by the voters, has prepared a report explaining the provisions of the contemplated amendment. The report will be read, by the jurist today at a meeting of the Women's City Club in the Philharmonic Auditorium Building.

TWO CHIEF AIMS

According to the report, there are two principal purposes sought to be accomplished by the proposed amendment. They are:

First, speedy and economic trials of civil cases involving values not to exceed $1000.

Second, relief for the Superior Court from the congestion now existing in this tribunal.

It was pointed out by Judge Valentine that from 24 to 25 per cent of the cases now tried in Superior Court involve amounts of less than $1000 and more than $300. Cases involving not more than $300 under the present laws are tried in Justice Court.

Under the terms of the proposed amendment, all cases up to $1000 would be tried in the Municipal Courts, thus relieving the Superior Court of the present congestion.

MUCH DELAY NOW

Judge Valentine pointed out that, despite the fact that Gov. Richardson in 1923 appointed five new judges to the Superior Court of the county, and notwithstanding the fact that four extra sessions are being conducted, it is almost impossible to have a case tried in Superior Court in less than a year after the complaint has been filed.

The proposed amendment provides that all cases filed in the municipal courts would be tried chiefly on their merits. In case of an appeal, the case would be brought to Superior Court on legal points only, and if not satisfied with the decision of the Superior Court, the losing litigant could file a petition for a rehearing of the case in the District Court of Appeals. The decision of this court would be binding.

CITY FINAL JUDGE

If the bill is ratified by the people a municipal election will be called to give the voters of the city the privilege of determining finally whether the city shall adopt the municipal court plan.

Under the bill, justices of the Township Courts and police judges automatically become judges of the municipal courts for the remainder of their terms.

C. Shanley, alias Tom Welch, an asserted bootlegger, succumbed to his own wares and was found dead yesterday in his room at 211 Ninth street, Los Angeles Harbor, according to a report by Officer Vigneau of the Harbor division. Police estimated he had been dead three days.

Vigneau said he found forty quarts of alcohol in the man's room. Shanley's landlady said she had not seen him since Thursday and that at that time he was intoxicated.

The police declared they had been searching for Shanley for three weeks to arrest him on bootlegging charges.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

YOUTHS SURVIVE OVERLAND PERIL

Columbus-Fresno Hike Sets Record, They Believe

Pair Fall in El Paso Net for Two Army Deserters

Water Supply Falls Low in New Mexico Desert

FRESNO, July 27.—Nearly arrested as United States Army deserters, hiking twenty-seven miles across the desert in New Mexico with little more than a quart of water for five persons; spending a day in Juarez, and driving 1150 miles at an average speed of fifty miles an hour, are some of the experiences of a Fresno man's grandson and his chum.

Twenty-three days ago the youths left Columbus, O., with $22 each and packs containing clothing and personal necessities, with their destination as Fresno.

The two lads arrived here with a combined wealth of 31 cents in their pockets.

Charles Seman, Jr., 19 years of age, grandson of U. L. Jones, 1258 Irwin street, and his buddy and school chum, Francis A. Nau, Jr., of Columbus, O., are the boys.

4000 MILES

As the crow flies, the youths journeyed 2053 miles, but they believe they actually have covered nearly 4000 miles since the 1st inst., the date they left home.

"To get a thrill, to see California and Seman's granddad," is the way the lads put it when asked the purpose of the long hike.

They believe they have set a national hiking record. The route of their trip was from Columbus to Indianapolis; St. Louis, Kansas City, through Oklahoma, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso, across New Mexico, through Arizona and into California.

One of the biggest thrills of the trip came at El Paso, Tex., when the boys were looking into a store window. Three policemen, at the point of a gun, demanded that the boys hold up their hands. The officers, the boys learned, were looking for two Army deserters corresponding to them in appearance. They were released after they had established their identity with letters and cards.

THEY CROSS DESERT

From El Paso, the boys visited Juarez. Both were impressed by the Mexican city. "If the wine and women were removed from Juarez, there would be nothing left," Nau said.

The boys were unable to get a ride out to Mesilla Dam, N. M., and after waiting two days decided to hike across the desert. They were informed it was twenty-seven miles to the next town.

Both lads are in their second year at the University of Ohio, studying mechanical engineering.

Dr. W. H. Wateman of Virginia, picked up the hikers at Terre Haute, Ind., and carried them 1150 miles, making as high as seventy miles an hour in his automobile, the boys said. More than 500 miles was made in one day.

The boys will leave in six weeks for their home, going by train this time, they agreed.

HONOR PARK FOUNDER

San Fernando Pays Tribute to Miss Hettinger

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN FERNANDO, July 27.—The outstanding feature of the community picnic held this afternoon and evening in Memory Garden at the Old Mission was the unveiling of a sun dial. This was in honor of Miss Eva F. Hettinger and came as a pleasing surprise to her.

The community took this method of showing its appreciation of her work in the preservation to the public of what is now Brand Park.

Some years ago the property that is now a Los Angeles city park was offered for sale and was to have been utilized as the site for an orange packing-house. The tract lies between the Old Mission and the trolley tracks and the boulevard and the utilization of the tract for commercial purposes would have hidden the historic mission. As a result of the activities of Miss Hettinger the seven-acre flat was donated to the city for park purposes.

WRITER IS DEAD FROM POISONING

Chicago Newspaper Man Takes Own Life in Orange Grove Near Pomona

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

POMONA, July 27.—Pursley B. Ogden, 34 years of age, former Chicago newspaper man and recent arrival in Southern California, committed suicide yesterday afternoon in an orange grove east of San Antonio avenue here, thereby carrying out a threat made two weeks ago to his brother, H. Ross Ogden, of Laverne.

The man had been in a state of melancholia and extreme discouragement during this time and when his wife left for Chicago with their two children to be at the bedside of her father, who is in a critical condition there, his mental attitude became worse.

Ogden had carried a small package of poison with him for two weeks and chose a moment when he was alone in his brother's automobile to mix the deadly potion with water from an irrigation standpipe near by. He drank the poison while seated in the car and his death was almost instantaneous. His brother rushed the man to his home at Laverne, but life had long been extinct.

The deceased is survived by his wife and two children, Lloyd Palmer, aged 6 years, and Patricia, 3, both of whom are with the widow in Chicago, who was immediately notified on his passing.

The body is at the Todd & Reeves morgue, waiting action of the County Coroner, and no funeral arrangements will be made until the Coroner's verdict is rendered.

A note found on the dead man asked to notify a large Los Angeles insurance company of his death. He held a $10,000 policy, which is unaffected by his act.

Garrity was captured in Universal City and returned to the station this morning, where he is being held to answer on charges of passing more than $400 worth of bad checks in the Bay District. Warrants for his arrest were sworn to in May. Since that time he has been sought by Southland police.

Garrity, who was arrested late yesterday when he attempted to obtain employment at a motion-picture studio, appeared before Police Judge Garrett this morning and his preliminary hearing was set for the 30th inst.

Complaints against the asserted bad check passer have been filed with Santa Monica police by G. A. Evans, W. A. Tinkle and A. W. Rice of local banking institutions. He is said to have lived at 109 Western avenue, Los Angeles.

CENSORSHIP BUG HITS

Long Beach Brotherhood Proposes Close Scrutiny of All Theatrical Bills-of-Fare

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 27.—Censorship in its strictest sense as it pertains to Long Beach movies, vaudeville and legitimate plays, will be asked by members of the Federated Brotherhood of this city when they appear before the City Council Tuesday morning. If they are able to convince the City Fathers of the need of such a drastic regulation an ordinance will be drawn up providing for a board of censors to pass on all Long Beach theatrical bills-of-fare.

An ordinance has been drafted by the Brotherhood to be presented to the Council. This ordinance provides for the appointment of a board of review of three persons, one of which must be a woman. The proposed legislation would make it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $500 to exhibit a picture or an act which had not been passed by the censors.

Permits would be applied for by theater managers in writing and must state the following facts:

(2.) The number of reels of film in each picture.

(3.) The general nature of the picture.

(5.) The time and place at which it is proposed to show the picture.

(6.) The name and address of the applicant.

The Federated Brotherhood has patterned their proposed ordinance after the one now in effect in Pasadena.

Officers of the Brotherhood are Frank F. Merriam, Speaker of the California Assembly, president; Dr. A. F. Hammon, first vice-president; Dr. Henry F. Miles, second vice-president; Eugene I. Fisher, secretary.

OWNERS INDORSE PLAN

Imperial Valley Farmers Favor Colorado River Control Club's Activities

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

EL CENTRO, July 27.—Hundreds of cards have been received by the Colorado River Control Club from owners of Imperial Valley land indorsing the club's plan for furthering Federal legislation for river flood control. The cards are coming from property owners residing in Los Angeles and vicinity, as hundreds of owners of valley land there are interested in settling once for all the question of flood control.

"We have been surprised at the manner in which the club's plans are being approved by property owners," asserted C. E. Paris, in charge of the campaign intended to inform landowners of the purposes of the club. "It merely goes to show that owners of valley land are impatient with the projects that have heretofore been proposed and attempted to be worked out at their expense and now they desire to get behind a plan that will result in constructing a dam in the Colorado River to assure a steady supply of water for Imperial Valley and other Southwestern irrigation districts without entangling the legislation with local issues. Many thousand acres of land are represented by the signatures to the cards we have received and every mail is bringing a large number of them."

One of the valley's largest landowners, who formerly was a supporter of the all-American canal project in connection with the construction of the Boulder Canyon dam, has now come to the support of the club's program for flood control legislation alone. This was D. R. Crawford, whose indorsement has been received at the club's office. He is owner of more than 2000 acres of Imperial Valley land. Crawford is also owner of the American Bank Building in Los Angeles and considerable business property in San Diego.

The Colorado River Control Club will hold another meeting next Tuesday in El Centro, when reports of progress made in the campaign will be made.

Girl's Modesty Makes Failure of Beach Show

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 27.—San Diego girls are too modest to wear scanty bathing suits. This was proven today when a bathing beach tried to hold a bathing-girl parade in which the entrants were limited to wearing suits weighing five ounces or under.

The event, widely advertised, attracted a huge crowd, but the five-ounce suits failed to appear. The lightest suit there was worn by a 4-year-old child. There were two other entrants; but the suits weighed considerably more than the five-ounce limit.

"The girls are too modest," apologized the promoter of the show.

It has been decided that the citizens of this city be solicited to ascertain just how much stock will be subscribed among them. This committee consists of Ray Moeller, J. C. Morse and Peter McCallum. COURT PROVES MONEY MAKER

El Centro Township Justice Collects $15,000 In Fines In Year

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, July 27.—El Centro Township Justice Court collected nearly $15,000 for the benefit of the county treasury, according to Justice Isaac Mayfield, who has just completed his report of business transacted in the fiscal year ending June 30. Five thousand, three hundred and eighteen criminal cases were filed in this court in the year, many of the cases being traffic violations. As the expenses of the court are hardly more than $2000, including the justice's salary, Justice Mayfield said that he considered the receipts of his office nearly all net to the county.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, July 27.—Several thousand dollars for the milk fund of the City Mothers of Los Angeles was realized yesterday from an entertainment at Crystal Beach. The program included three boxing bouts under the direction of George Blake of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and refereed by Jack Dempsey.

Motion-picture studio folk who took part in the entertainment included Baby Betty, termed the 1924 starlet baby of the Wampus Club; the Loomis twins, "Our Gang" from the Hal Roach studio, and Harry Wilson. The latter executed several stunts in an airplane. Motor-boat races were a feature of the affair.

General dancing was in the Rendezvous Ballroom with music by Carl Allen's orchestra. Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Harris were in charge of the entertainment. A crowd estimated at 15,000 persons was present.

Tax Reduction Forecast for Santa Barbara

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, July 27.—Reductions in the city's assessment roll totaling $91,790 were made yesterday by City Assessor W. W. Smith, following the close of the Board of Equalization meetings. The Board of Equalization held its final meeting Thursday and turned the books over to Mr. Smith for correction after hearing seventy-one protests. Its record is in marked contrast to last year, the year of the "scientific appraisal," when approximately 900 protests were entered. The final reading of those protests, with action taken, occupied two and a half hours.

The uncorrected 1924-25 assessment roll total of $35,000,000 on which the bonding capacity figure of $3,500,000 was based, will be reduced to about $34,900,000 when all corrections are certified, reducing the estimated bonding capacity also by approximately 10 per cent.

Further cuts in finances are indicated in an effort to bring the Santa Barbara county tax rate for general administration purposes down from $1.10 to at least $1 per $100, assessed valuation, according to Supervisors and County Auditor Albert T. Eaves, who have been preparing budgets for several weeks.

MELON SEASON ENDS

Kern County Community Sends Out Big Shipments

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 27.—Wasco is now entering upon the last week of this year's big cantaloupe harvest. Local shippers say that they will wind up their activities next week. Only a few more cars will be shipped. More than 400 cars of cantaloupes have left the Wasco district this year. This is the largest number ever shipped out of the region in a single season. Prices have been good, and though the yield was cut by about 35 per cent by the hot winds at the beginning of the season, the returns have been high enough to warrant an even larger planting next year.

Wasco Marketing Company has handled the major part of the crop, shipping more than 300 carloads of cantaloupes. C. H. Weaver Company of Chicago handled about eighty cars, and the rest was shipped through Hering Ritter Company and independently. Sixty per cent of the crop was sold in eastern markets, most of the rest going into the Pacific Northwest. As many as forty-nine carloads were shipped out in one day, according to figures of the various shippers.

FORMER ILLINOISANS MEET AT BIXBY PARK

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 27.—Over fifteen thousand former residents of Illinois who are now living in Southern California gathered yesterday at Bixby Park for the thirtieth annual summer picnic of the Loyal Illinoisians. The picnic was the largest in the history of the organization, according to Henry J. Brubaker of Los Angeles, president. Following an address of welcome by Mayor Ray Clark, to which a response was given by Judge Carlos S. Hardy of Los Angeles, a short program was given. Approximately 200 cities and towns of Southern California were represented at the picnic, officials declared.

PLAN LANDING OF WET GOODS

Cargoes Said Anchored Off Santa Barbara

Fatal Gun Battle Rumored Among Bootleggers

Supply of Liquor There is Reported Plentiful

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, July 27.—Two cargoes of Canadian whisky, brandies and cordials, now in the holds of rum-runners anchored safely off the coast of Santa Barbara in the lee of Channel Islands, will be landed somewhere on the beach near here this week, and Tuesday night has been definitely set as the occasion of the landing party, according to word brought ashore this morning by Vladimir Stephanson, captain of a fishing boat, who returned from a four-day trip in the island fishing banks.

The two ships arrived off the islands Friday morning, and dropped anchor. Fishing crews at that time brought back word that they were waiting for a foggy night when they would attempt to land liquor to relieve the shortage caused by several raids by Sheriff Ross during the last week.

Yesterday morning excitement gripped the members and officers of the three-county syndicate, which, with the support of a powerful ring, employs fleets of high-powered motor cars and speed boats, when it was stated that a rum-chaser, which has been plying up and down the Coast for the past six months, was about to put off to drive the two strange boats away.

Late yesterday reports of a gun battle in which two men were killed were received at the water front here and whispered along the underground bootlegging channels.

Today, however, is was indicated that if the local schooner had given battle to the two strangers in the lee of some island cove she had been worsted and that the cargoes would be landed.

In hotels, road-houses and other gathering points here, however, it is said, the shortage of wet goods is not apparent and gin, brandy, all of the well-known makes of whisky and cordials are reported in open and frank evidence, though practically all of the stuff is brought into the places by patrons.

SANTA MONICA TAX LEVY TO BE HIGHER

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, July 27.—Owing to the recent water bond issue and the fact that two payments must be made on the principal next year, the city's tax rate for the year 1924-25 will in all probability exceed $1.80, it was pointed out. The rate was $1.58 last year and the bond issue payments of interest and principal will represent the increase. The double payment of the bonds is accounted for by the fact that the time of receiving taxes is in October and the bond payments will be due in August. Provision must therefore be made in the present levy to meet it. According to Commissioner Helton, the rate cannot be officially made until next month according to law, but budget calculation can be made now and a possible estimate of the rate.

CONDUCTOR ACQUITTED

Fail to Prove Charge of Starting Fire

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, July 27.—Ernest A. Barstow, conductor employed by the Pacific Electric Railway and who was charged with setting a blaze in the Angeles National Forest, was acquitted in Justice Newell's court today after a lengthy trial.

The fire in question burned approximately thirty-five acres of mountain country on San Gabriel Peak and at times threatened Mt. Wilson and Mt. Lowe.

Justice Newell ruled that the evidence presented was all circumstantial and was insufficient to warrant a conviction. Barstow was represented by Pacific Electric attorneys.

IOWA EDUCATION HEAD INQUIRY ENDS IN DRAW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DES MOINES, July 27.—The investigation of Miss May E. Francis, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and of her department instituted by the State House of Representatives three months ago, ended yesterday apparently in a political "dog fall." After voting to substitute the minority committee report, which consisted of a refusal to acknowledge the allegations made by the judiciary committee's majority report, the House refused to adopt the report it had substituted. The vote on the substitution was 56 to 50 and on the adoption 52 to 54.

BRIDGE IS PLANNED ON HIGHWAY TO BURBANK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, July 27.—According to information given out by the Burbank Valley Boosters' Association today, County Supervisor Wright and County Engineer Griffin have informed the officials of that organization that the Riverside Drive bridge across Los Angeles River at Crescent street will be the first improvement on the bridge program in connection with the Victory Boulevard paving project. The statement is that the building of this bridge will be started just as soon as the flood control engineers complete their surveys and establish the flood-control lines in the district to be served by the projected bridge. This bridge will be the outlet of Victory Boulevard into Riverside Drive.

IMMUNITY PLEA OF PAIR UNIQUE

Vagrancy Suspects' Claim of Kinship to Liquor Informer Fails

PORTERVILLE, July 27. "You can't arrest us. We work for the District Attorney's office," was the unusual alibi given Porterville police when they arrested Steve and Frank Granillo for vagrancy.

An investigation revealed that the men had no connection with the District Attorney's office, but had based their exceptional plea on the fact that their cousin, Mexican Mary, recently informed on a local bootlegger and received a fee of $50 for her services.

The men later pleaded guilty when taken before Judge Avery and were given twenty-four hours in which to leave town.

MUNICIPAL PLAYGROUND INSPECTION

Venice Lions Taking Steps for Benefit of Children of Beach City

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, July 27.—The local Lions' club will make the first move toward the establishing of a municipal playground for children, when a delegation headed by Dr. Joseph Saylin, will visit Long Beach to inspect the municipal playground in that city, early in the week.

Another committee is at work gathering data and members are acquainting themselves with good and bad features of numerous playgrounds in other Southern California cities. It is proposed to establish a milk station in connection with the new kiddies' paradise, which will make it virtually self-supporting. All civic organizations and women's clubs are co-operating with officials of the Lions in putting the project over.

Legal obstacles have been removed, City Attorney Acret pointed out this morning, when the Board of Trustees was advised that the necessary equipment for the grounds could be constructed at street ends on the municipal sands.

The Woman and Her Job

[Questions concerning the problems of women will be answered in this column if addressed to Mrs. Watrous at the Times. Requests for personal replies must be accompanied by a stamped envelope.]

ONE GIRL WANTS TO KNOW

Dear Mrs. Watrous:

This hasn't a thing to do with your work, but I think you'll help me anyhow. I always look for your page and read it, and never once have I bothered you with questions. Now, I'm going to begin, and you can answer me in the paper so you won't know who I am.

I'm to have a home of my own very soon—we go look at it every Sunday. The living room is to be all mine, furnished with the money I've saved, so when you tell me what to do, please remember I've only a bit over five hundred to do it with. There are two windows each side of the fireplace—little ones, and a long low one in front. My beloved wants brown woodwork and broad beams in the ceiling—almost rustic. What shall I do with the walls? What do you think of blue? Do I have to have a three-piece set? Now, please don't tell me to go to an interior decorator, for I want that room to be mine. I've been dreaming about it for all the eight years I've been in a lawyer's office.

Here's a secret: I hate typewriters, and the day before I'm married I'm going to buy one, take it out in the back yard and take an axe to it. That's how tired I am. Gratefully, Norma."

You stop hating them this minute. Once I knew a girl who said she hated typewriters and would like to bite the man who made 'em. And what'd'y 'spose? The devil heard her, an' he tied a typewriter on her back, and she's been wearin' one ever since!

And now about that room. You didn't say whether it faced north or west, and that makes quite a difference. But if it's large and has only two small and one long window, I don't think it will have much light even if it gets the afternoon sun. The brown beams and trim will absorb some of the light, too.

I'm not an interior decorator, but I do know some of the things you shouldn't do. You can avoid figured wall paper, which will dwarf your space, unless the outlines are soft and indistinct. If you choose yellow tones they will harmonise with the brown, and give more light than any other color save white, also they are warm and cheery.

Drapes of gold gauze, with black fringe are effective, or you can get white china silk, give it three rows of hemstitching in black for decoration, and have it dyed a dull gold. Select a sample of ribbon in the old-gold that is soft in tone, and have the drapes dipped to match it. Blue is a cold color, and that room needs warmth.

I suppose you mean three-piece upholstered sets. They happen to be my pet abomination. You could get two pieces alike—say a davenport and wing chair—in mohair. Unless you are impatient to finish the room, you might wait a bit and watch the sales. A two-toned effect in a soft faded blue would be very pleasing, or taupe with a gold back. I'd avoid a figured design, they're so tiring after a while. Remember that furniture is to be lived with. Simple lines, quiet tones, and plain weaves are satisfying year after year. Mahogany and cane straight chair and rocker will go well with your davenport, or any other style of equally substantial appearance. Windsors are alluring but they are too light in design to keep company with the heavy-weights.

Be sure there are lamps convenient to the davenport or big chair. There is a kinship between tables, chairs and lamps, and you shouldn't estrange them with much space. A long Italian table in dull finish should suit that room.

Floors darker than walls and walls darker than ceilings is a good rule. A rug unobtrusive and that will not show footmarks is ideal. Should you follow the gold tones I've suggested, then an earth-colored rug without pattern would be harmonious. Do you know that you can pick up good orientals at most attractive prices if you watch for sales? You might start with two and add others later.

You can brighten the room by using gay pillows, pictures with rich colorings, a vase or candlesticks of brilliant hue. As for the pictures, if you will send me an envelope I'll be glad to make you further suggestions.

Don't scorn the interior decorators. No matter how they furnish us, we always put our own personality into a room.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. D.: If you are an experienced dressmaker you should be able to work up quite a business in making alterations for the small shops. Why not solicit those in your own neighborhood which you tell me interfere with your success in getting work because the ready-made is cheaper than you can make them up. In many of these stores a flat charge is made for an alteration whether there is much or little to be done. If you were given the work from three or four of these places you should be able to help the family income considerably.

Dear Alice: The requirements for a law course are a high school diploma from a school recognized by the State universities. You must then have two years in college and your studies are called a "prelaw course." After that you are required to have four years in a college of law.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

MY PROMISES AND THEIR FULFILLMENT

When I ran my instructions on reducing I made you the following promises if you would follow them:

(1.) Better health.

(2.) Increased efficiency and strength. One hundred fold.

(3.) Better dispositions. Fat people are not good natured! They are apathetic.

(4.) Better looks. Clearer skin. No matter how you look during the process, when you are reduced your looks will be improved. Five hundred fold. And you'll look younger!

(5.) A reorganization of your mode of living. A cure of your habit of unnatural craving for large amounts of concentrated foods, with the creation of a new natural appetite for more wholesome foods.

(6.) A restoration of marital felicity. No one loves a fat man or woman.

We have had thousands of letters testifying that these promises have been fulfilled. The letter I am giving you today, shows that there are possibilities of spiritual as well as physical help in getting rid of the excess mortal man. I know you will agree with me that the letter is a valuable contribution to our column. Here 'tis:

Dear Doctor: My hat is off to you! You know your stuff! And more than that, what more can be said to one professional 'man' by another?

"March 24 last, to my alarm, the scales showed that I weighed 175 net. I am 45 years of age, five feet seven and one-half inches tall, which, according to your standard, would entitle me to 151—no more. I was alarmed for I had been struggling against that increasing girth for years, each year registering a little more. There is a question painted on the wall of the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium in San Francisco, that has been haunting me for years, to wit:

"'Will you be fat at 40 or fit at 50?' Not so bad, is it?

"I introduced a system of setting up exercises ten minutes night and morning, a four-mile hike 7 to 8 o'clock each morning, ending with a few minutes in the outdoor gymnasium in our public park, and I feel like a man among men, sure enough.

"Now, as to the habit of eating: When I sit down to a real meal, which is about once in twenty-four or thirty-six hours, instead of old-time three-per, I eat about half of what is set before me and get up satisfied, instead of eating everything in sight and hollering for more as of old. Funny isn't it, what habit will do to one?

"By far the greatest benefit derived from my metamorphosis is that suggested on the cover of your little book: 'Spirituality' now predominates in my life over 'materiality.' For the first time I am able to put my body under. Instead of being the means of satisfying the 'lusts of the flesh,' my body is now 'the temple of the Holy Spirit.' Of course, I am not saying that merely the matter of dieting brought about all this wonderful transformation. On the contrary, I can see in it the Divine Love, and patience and guidance of a wonderful Heavenly Father, but the fact remains that the change came to me within this period, although I have been a professioning Christian and active worker for thirty years. So we will not know until the books are opened how much good you are doing in the spiritual realm, as well as in the material.

"And now for results: Right now I experience the thrill that comes once in a life-time when I tip the scales at the exact standard—151 pounds net.

"Your promises: They 'listen good,' Doctor, and you have made good all of them that you possibly could. It isn't your fault that I tied into your system too late for you to make good on number six.

"Fraternally yours,

"W., D.D.S."

(Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.)

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a stamped, envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose 4 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 250 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me, and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.p.a. s. a. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Chamber to Give National Guard Farewell Party

The Chamber of Commerce will hold a luncheon Wednesday noon at the Biltmore Hotel in honor of the departure of the One Hundred and Sixtieth Regiment of California National Guard for the annual encampment of the State militia at Del Monte.

Col. Walter P. Story, commanding the regiment, will be the guest of honor and will be accompanied by all of the officers and members of the one Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry staff.

In addition to the regimental officers the entire band of the organization will be on hand to provide entertainment for the occasion. They will be given an ovation by officials of the Chamber of Commerce, a special demonstration having been arranged by President William Lacy.

The speaker of the day will be Miller McClintock, chief of the Bureau of Municipal Research of Harvard University. He will talk on the relation between street traffic and community prosperity.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Will Preserve Them

Pour a half inch of olive oil on top of the brine in the half-finished bottle of olives and then cork tightly. The olives will last indefinitely and still retain their favor.

Did You Know

That tomatoes may be placed on the prong of a fork, held above the gas burner for a few seconds to sear the skin and then peeled in less time than it takes to tell it?

Will Need More

When buying materials for chair covers or curtains, more will be required if the design is one of large set figures, on account of having to match the figures. If you wish to economize in material, buy either plain or small-figured material.

A Shock Absorber

A small rag rug, such as can be purchased for about 50 or 75 cents, is splendid to have in the kitchen for the housewife to stand on while ironing. She will be delighted to find how much less tired she will be than if standing on linoleum or bare floors.

A Gift for Mother

The mother who has a baby to bathe every day will enjoy a rubber apron to wear during the process. It will prove a wonderful protection.

Return the Jars

We are so often sent good things to eat in jars, dishes or glasses, which we entirely forget after the good things are eaten and in consequence, they are never returned. It is a good idea to write the sender's name on a slip of paper and tuck inside the container. Then it will stand a chance of being returned—and soon.

FILMDOM TO GET SCHOOL FOR ACTORS

Lou Tellegen Has Plan for National Academy Backed by Financiers

Plans are now being formulated by Lou Tellegen and a group of western and eastern philanthropists, whose names cannot be revealed until after incorporation under the laws of California, whereby an endowment fund will be established for the creation of a National Academy of Motion Pictures.

The major portion of the endowment will come from a New York banker, who has distinguished himself as a benefactor to children and struggling college students. Another part will be the contribution of a Los Angeles realtor. Still another founder will be an eastern manufacturer who hails originally from the West.

Actively interested with Lou Tellegen in the consummation of the idea and its operation from a practical viewpoint as well, are B. P. Schulberg, motion-picture producer, and Louis Gasnier, director and friend of Tellegen.

"Such a national institution," said Mr. Tellegen, "would provide scholarships for all the aspirants who hound the producing companies. It would do away with the menace of the fake motion-picture schools and agencies; it would do away with all the unwelcome and unwarranted notoriety attending every other publicity-seeking actor and actress. And it would bring about a condition of motion-picture development along highly artistic and educational lines. It would cause the motion picture to become America's great, if not greatest, pride and inspiration. I hope to be in a position to say more about it later on."

LANDSCAPING LIBRARY AREA RECOMMENDED

The Chamber of Commerce has recommended to the City Council that if the cost of the work is reasonable, the city landscape and otherwise improve the north side of Fifth street, between Grand avenue and Flower street. This will face the new $1,500,000 central public library. The chamber supported the City Planning Commission's recommendation that the property be beautified with trees, shrubs and lawns.

Broker to Get Fraud Charge Hearing Today

Harry C. Weist, a broker with offices at 714 South Hill street, will appear before State Commissioner of Corporations Daugherty this morning to show cause why his license should not be revoked. Weist, according to a complaint filed against him by Floyd L. Eddy, is charged with fraud and the operation of a bucket shop. The complaint was issued by Deputy Commissioner Praul, who will prosecute the case.

Weist is said to have negotiated with Eddy for the purchase of Standard Oil of California stock. After a payment was made on the securities, Eddy contends, he was urged by the broker to transfer his holdings to another investment.

Deputy Praul declared Saturday that numerous complaints have been filed against the broker and nearly a score of witnesses will be ready to testify against the asserted bucket-shop operations this morning. Citing Weist to appear before the department for hearing is the commission's first open move toward a clean-up of asserted "bucketing" in Southern California, Deputy Praul said.

Boys Charged With Stealing Films for Fire

The ambition of four boys, ranging in ages from 9 to 13 years, to stage a wild-West show, came to an undignified end when complaints were filed in Judge Archbald's Juvenile Court charging the boys with grand larceny.

According to the complaints, the youths purloined a box of motion-picture films from Henry Blackburn, of Oakland and started out to build a camp fire in a vacant lot in Boyle Heights. But instead of feeding wood to the fire, the boys found the films ignited much more readily and while one of them fed pictures to the flames the other three pranced around as Indians in the approved fashion set forth in a wild-West story book.

The boys, however, finally tired of this pastimeas d forthwith repaired to the Southern Pacific tracks where they dispatched the remainder of the films by placing them beneath the wheels of a steam locomotive, according to juvenile authorities.

The boys are Edward Walker, 9; R. H. Edwards, 11; Leon Farey, 13, and Frank St. Clair Farey, 11. All of them are residents of Boyle Heights. They will be given a hearing this week on the charges preferred against them at the instance of Salzbium.

Give the Children WRIGLEY'S after every meal

The following is from a recent work on teeth and health:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth. . . ."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S is a benefit and a pleasure combined. It serves two purposes—and its cost is very small.

Aids digestion, too, and acts as an antiseptic wash for the mouth and throat.

Choice of several flavors—all of WRIGLEY quality, standard of the world.
